Burton Tower

In May 1919, an editorial in the Michigan Alumnus called for construction of a new clock tower "set high in the center of the Campus, to be at once a landmark and a thing of beauty." Two years later, according to The University of Michigan: An Encyclopedic History, U-M president Marion Leroy Burton used his commencement address to suggest building such a tower as a memorial to Michigan's World War dead. But it was only after Burton's own premature death in 1925 that the proposal finally became active—as a memorial to Burton himself.

An alumni fund drive had to be put on hold during the Depression. But in the mid-1930's, two crucial commitments finally got the bell tower project off the ground. Former athletic director Charles Baird pledged $75,000 for a clock and carillon, and the University Musical Society donated funds that it had raised to build a new U-M School of Music. (At the time, the School of Music was still owned by the UMS; it became part of the university only in 1940.)

The commitment undoubtedly had the approval of UMS president Charles A. Sink. Like his contemporary Fielding Yost, Sink was an ambitious master builder—his greatest achievement was persuading one-time regent Arthur Hill to bequeath funds to build Hill Auditorium. The tower was sited directly behind Hill Auditorium on Ingalls Street (now the Ingalls Mall). Architect Albert Kahn's plan for the tower incorporated forty classrooms and practice rooms on the upper floors. The prime ground-floor space eventually became the Musical Society office.

Built of reinforced concrete with a skin of Indiana limestone, the tower was erected during the 1935–1936 school year and dedicated on December 4, 1936. During the Depression, money went a long way. The 212-foot tower—including the fifty-three bell Baird Carillon—cost exactly $243,664.61.

Local Landmarks

The Anson Brown Building

GREGORY FOX

The Anson Brown Building, the three-story, Federal-style brick structure at Broadway and Swift, is easily the most striking building in the small business district at the foot of Plymouth Road. The oldest commercial structure in the city, it's a monument to thwarted ambition.

The young Anson Brown moved to Ann Arbor from New York in 1826, just two years after the village's founding. He built the building that bears his name in 1832, the same year he and Edward Fuller platted the surrounding area as the settlement of "Ann Arbour on the Huron." Their lofty ambitions for the north side were revealed in the street names they chose: Broadway, Wall Street, Maiden Lane, and Canal Street all took their names from busy streets in Manhattan.

For a while, it looked as though Brown might succeed in making his development Ann Arbor's center. He added two more substantial commercial buildings on the other side of Broadway, creating a business district that outstripped the fledgling downtown on Main Street. He had himself appointed Ann Arbor's postmaster and moved the village's only post office into the Brown Building. The town's biggest hotel, the Washtenaw House, opened next door, and Brown lobbied to have the planned new Territorial Road routed along Broadway.

But the road was built north of Ann Arbor, and when Brown perished in the cholera epidemic of 1834, "Lower Town" lost its champion. Three years later, when the University of Michigan agreed to move from Detroit to a site on State Street, it ended any lingering hopes that Lower Town might one day eclipse the older settlement south of the river.

Anson Brown's small commercial district remained remarkably unchanged until the 1950's, when the buildings on the east side of Broadway were demolished. His namesake structure survived, thanks largely to the long stewardship of Tom and Grace Colvin, whose Ann Arbor Bedding occupied the building for decades. Since the 1960's, its street-level storefront has been rented to the St. Vincent de Paul thrift shop.

Though it's probably not the kind of business the ambitious Anson Brown envisioned, it's a needed service. At least as far back as the beginning of this century, the area along the river and railroad tracks was a "hobo jungle" of itinerant workers. Today, a hardy core of homeless people still camps out in secluded spots along the river and patronizes both St. Vincent's and the Ann Arbor Thrift Shop nearby. ♦

The Big Red A

Over its thirty-three-year history, the Arborland shopping center has gone from success to failure and back again. Through it all, its towering sixty-five-foot sign has flashed the time and temperature to passing traffic on Washtenaw Avenue, its glowing red A serving as a sort of urban monogram.

Arborland was the city's first shopping center. When it opened in 1960, it was an immediate hit, but its fortunes declined when Briarwood opened in 1973. The big new mall drew business not only from downtown, but from older shopping centers as well.

In the late 1970's, new owners tried to go head-to-head with Briarwood, spending $10 million to transform the center's original open courtyard into a handsome, fully enclosed mall. But their efforts to woo upper-middle retailers away from Briarwood failed. The mall was sold again, this time to the Indianapolis-based Melvin Simon organization. Simon repositioned it as an off-price mall and brought in a flock of new anchor stores, led by Burlington Coat Factory, Service Merchandise, and Toys R Us. The crowds came flocking back, and have been there ever since.

The big red A is something of an endangered species, as a combination of changing fashion and Ann Arbor's restrictive sign ordinance have taken their toll on its once-flamboyant neighbors on the strip. But there's no likelihood that the sign will come down anytime soon. It always shows up as a recognized landmark in the mall's marketing surveys. (When the time and temperature sign broke down earlier this year, the mall was flooded with calls from commuters who rely on it to stay on schedule.) And the sign today is actually more visible than it has been in years. A former manager turned off the lights inside the big red A. When his successor arrived two years ago, he promptly had them switched back on.

The First National Building

The glory years of the auto industry were a gilded age in Michigan. Between 1900 and 1930, the state rode a rising tide of prosperity unmatched before or since. There are legacies of the period all over town—U-M buildings paid for with increasingly generous state funding, the sprawling Hoover Ball and King Seeley factories, and even a few tycoon's mansions (Leander Hoover's on Washtenaw and Harry Earhart's on Geddes Road are among the most striking).

But Ann Arbor's grandest monument of the period is the ten-story First National Building, at the corner of Main and Washington. By far the biggest commercial building in the city, in its day, it was also the most lavish. Its gleaming terra-cotta skin was lit up at night like a monument, and its two-story lobby boasted black terrazzo floors and marble walls.

When it opened in 1929, the building rented out so swiftly that the owners immediately began a five-story addition next to the tower on the Main Street side, matching one already built on Washington. They were planning to raise both wings to a full ten stories when the Depression hit.

Downtown never fully regained the ebullient optimism of the 1920's. But the First National Building proved to be a hardy survivor. In the 1960's, it was eclipsed as a prestigious business address by the then-new City Center Building, and the construction of One North Main in the 1980's threatened to be its death blow. But since a painstaking restoration by local developer Bill Martin, First National has staged a remarkable comeback. When both City Center and One North Main fell into financial problems in the wake of the commercial real estate bust, the First National proudly reclaimed its position as downtown's premier commercial landmark.

Veterans Park

Veterans Park is an oasis in Maple Road's desert of parking lots—forty acres of green space right at one of the busiest corners in town. Sprawled across the valley between Jackson and Dexter roads, it's a favorite playground, with the city's only indoor ice arena, skateboard ramp, and lighted softball diamonds, along with a perpetually busy swimming pool.

How did so desirable a spot escape the wave of development that swept over the west side after World War II? The answer lies in Ann Arbor's agricultural past: Vets Park used to be the Washtenaw County Fairgrounds.

As the county seat, Ann Arbor for decades was home to the annual county fair. Those who remember its later years describe a classic midwestern fair. It was a celebration of agricultural bounty, with farmers competing to show the finest livestock and crops; a domestic arts showcase, with contests in everything from sewing to pie baking; and an alluring carnival, with a midway, rides, and sulky racing on a half-mile dirt track.

Vets is one of two popular Ann Arbor parks that are legacies of the county fair. The previous fairgrounds, on Wells Street, is now Burns Park. The fair moved to Jackson Road after World War I, as the Burns Park neighborhood was built up. But by the 1950's, it was the west side's turn to be overtaken by the city's growth. By then, with the county as a whole increasingly developed, the fair was in decline.

The fate of the Jackson Road fairgrounds was hotly debated. One grandiose plan called for moving all city and county government offices away from downtown Ann Arbor into a massive new suburban government complex there. When that was rejected, the city acquired the land as a park. On April 7, 1955, city council formally named it Veterans Memorial Park. "It is believed that when the park is developed," the resolution read, "it will provide a suitable expression of the gratitude which the community feels and holds for all the veterans of all wars."

Michigan Stadium

To the fanatical football fans who buy out its 102,501 seats year after year, Michigan Stadium is a shrine to a century-old athletic tradition. To the people who run the U-M athletic complex, it's a gold mine so profitable it supports not only the football program but most other intercollegiate sports as well. To Fielding Yost, the nation's biggest football stadium was the culmination of a life's ambition.

Yost was already one of the most sought-after coaches in the country when the U-M hired him in 1901. Though he had finished law school at West Virginia just four years earlier, he commanded the princely salary of $2,300 just to work the ten-week football season. (At the time, a U-M full professor earned $2,500 a year.) Yost quickly justified the U-M's investment. His "point-a-minute" teams went undefeated in 1901, 1902, and 1903, outscoring their opponents by a total of 2,821 to 40.

Yost and his teams brought national fame to U-M athletics for the first time. But as late as 1921, athletics was still a small-scale operation, its only physical plant the football bleachers and clubhouse on Ferry Field.

That was the year Yost was appointed athletic director as well as coach. He promptly doubled the number of seats at Ferry Field to 42,000, then poured the added ticket revenue into construction of Yost Field House. When university authorities protested naming the building after a living individual, Yost mobilized a lobbying campaign that overpowered the objections.

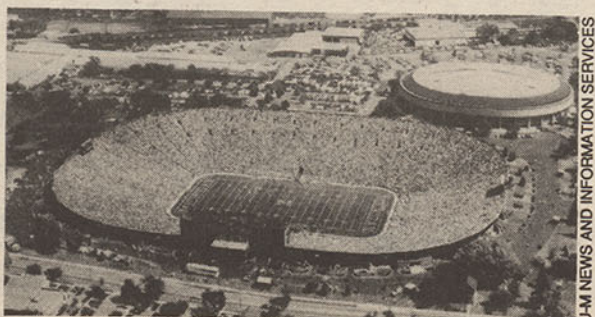

He did it again in 1924, when the U-M's regents questioned his ambitious plans for Michigan Stadium. According to a letter from a U-M administrator, they felt "that amateur college contests should not be transformed into public spectacles."

Yost counterattacked, drumming up support from students, alumni, and even state legislators. Within two years, he won approval for a gigantic construction package that included not only the stadium but also a women's sports building, the intramural sports building, the purchase of the Weinberg Coliseum ice rink, several new tennis courts, and development of the U-M golf course.

Yost did give ground on the stadium—a little. It was originally built to seat 70,000 people. Yost had argued that he could eventually fill a structure twice that size. As a compromise, the foundations were built to allow subsequent expansion.

The Depression ended any further expansionary hopes Yost might have had. But in 1956, Yost's successor as athletic director, Fritz Crisler, completed the second of two additions to the stadium that increased seating to over 100,000—finally fulfilling Yost's dream of making Michigan Stadium the largest in the U.S.

WHO TO CALL

City Hall is located at 100 N. Fifth Ave., at Huron St. The city's mailing address is P.O. Box 8647, AA 48107.

If you have a question about a particular city service, call the appropriate department. (The basic functions of each city department are outlined below. For a brief index of services and phone numbers, see box at right.) Complaints about existing services are handled by citizen advocates in the City Clerk's Office (994-2725). You may also call this office if you feel you have been mistreated by a city employee or department. If you want to see changes made in any city law, rule, or procedure, call one of your council representatives (see p. 25). For general information, call 994-2700.

People with disabilities who need assistance with city services should call 994-2700 (TTD equipped). With advance notice, the city will provide braille or voice-recorded documents to the blind (this can take up to two weeks) and interpreters at public meetings for the deaf.

CITY COUNCIL

City Council information: 994-2885 or 994-2892. Questions or comments can be relayed to a council person via the council message line: 994-3313. For a ward map and a list of current council members, see p. 25.

This legislative body of city government has eleven members: two representatives from each of the five city wards, plus the mayor. Council members are elected for staggered two-year terms. Every November, one of the council seats from each ward is available in a partisan contest. The last five years have seen a shift in the council's composition from a 7-4 Republican majority to the current 7-4 Democratic majority. Despite the dynamic nature of the council's composition and Ann Arborites' reputation for a high level of political involvement, council elections tend to generate little interest and low turnouts. In April 1992, with no mayoral candidates or controversial issues on the ballot, the election drew just 12,774 voters; the combined mayoral and council election in April 1993 brought in 17,505. By comparison, 56,245 people voted in the November 1992 presidential election.

City council adopts the city's annual budget and determines city laws and policies. In theory, this is a part-time job; council members receive just $8,800 per year for their work.

Regular city council meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. on the first and third Mondays of every month, in the council chambers on the second floor of City Hall. Additional special or working sessions usually take place on the second and fourth Mondays of the month. Citizens are welcome to attend meetings and working sessions. Meetings are telecast live on cable television's Channel 10 and repeated twice each week: on Tuesdays at 1:30 p.m. and Fridays at 7:30 p.m.

The two party caucuses meet together the night before scheduled council meetings at 7:30 in the second-floor conference room above the fire station (across the street from City Hall). Caucus meetings are open to the public and afford a better forum than council meetings for citizens to talk directly with council members.

The public is welcome to speak at council meetings, but only eight four-minute slots are available at the beginning of each meeting. You can sign up for one of these slots by calling the city clerk (994-2725) beginning at 8 a.m. on the day of the meeting. Would-be speakers should call early: slots often fill within the first ten minutes. Speakers must announce the subject of their address when they sign up. Members of the public can also address council, without having to sign up in advance, at the end of council meetings, usually around midnight. Public hearings, at which anyone can speak without advance notice for up to five minutes, are held during council meetings on many proposed council actions. The agendas for council meetings and notices of public hearings are published in the Ann Arbor News the Saturday before the each meeting.

Mayor, third floor, City Hall. 994-2766. The mayor, elected in a partisan election every two years, presides over and is a voting member of city council. Republican Ingrid Sheldon was elected to her first term in April 1993. She appoints council committees, has the power to veto most council actions, has certain police powers in the case of an emergency, and acts as ceremonial head of the city. This is designated as a part-time position and pays $16,500 a year.

To become a member of any of the more than 100 city boards, committees, or commissions, request an application from this office. The city clerk's office has a list of all citizen groups that have openings.

CITY ADMINISTRATION

City Administrator, third floor, City Hall. 994-2650. Ann Arbor's administrator, currently Al Gatta, is responsible for seeing that the Republicans and Democrats tend to look more alike in Ann Arbor than they do in other cities, especially when they're talking about social issues. It's rare to see a GOP candidate who isn't pro-choice, and the city's 1991 domestic partnership ordinance, granting recognition to same-sex couples, passed on a unanimous bipartisan vote.

The two issues that dominate council, and distinguish Republicans from Democrats, are the size and the cost of city government. Republicans tend to favor a government that costs less, even if it means getting fewer services in return. Democrats are far more likely to support activist city policies than tax cuts, though they, too, are wary of anything that might raise taxes.

That sensitivity to taxes—a lesson taught in years of council and millage elections—is yet another thing the parties have in common. But the issue may recede in the wake of the state legislature's stunning vote to slash school property taxes. That's because even though the city takes only about a quarter of all property taxes, citizens seem to feel it takes more, probably because the city collects the taxes. Voters scrutinize council spending and cast votes based on it, and council bends to the whip. If they end up paying less money out-of-pocket for property taxes, Ann Arborites will likely pay less attention to fiscal issues—and council will have to find something new to debate.

This section is divided into the following parts:

Elections
Ann Arbor City Government
Court System
Washtenaw County Government
Township Governments

Elections

Ann Arbor used to hold city elections on the first Monday in April. Last year, however, voters decided to move them to the fall. They now take place on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November. The first November city election will be held on November 2, 1993, although newly elected officials won't take office until April in order to allow current officeholders to complete their terms. National, state, and county elections, except special elections, are held on the same day, every two years. School board elections are held on the second Monday in June. For all elections, polls are open 7 a.m.—8 p.m.

The city clerk's office, the public library, Secretary of State offices, and volunteer deputy registrars register voters. To be eligible to vote, you must register your Ann Arbor address at least thirty days prior to an election. After registering, you will receive information by mail about where to vote. (See city clerk listing, p. 20.)

City primaries are held each August. In even-numbered years, candidates for state offices are nominated in party conventions; a statewide primary election is then held for county, township, state, and judicial offices. In the primary, voters may vote for the candidates in one party only. Would-be precinct delegates to the political conventions can file a petition with the county clerk. For more information, call the county Democratic Party headquarters (487-9691), or the county Republican headquarters (971-4622).

CITY OF ANN ARBOR TREASURER'S OFFICE

Information for: Ann Arbor residents
From: City Treasurer's Office

The City Treasurer's office collects payments owed the city—parking violations, water bills, property taxes, and service fees. For your convenience, there is a drive-up window on the Ann Street side of City Hall, open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday (except legal holidays).

WATER BILLS can also be paid at branches of NBD-Ann Arbor, or by mail. If you pay by mail, please include your account number with your address. If you have roommates and are sharing utility payments, please pay with only one check. Multiple checks for one account can cause problems.

PARKING VIOLATIONS: Check the violation code on your ticket to be sure you submit the right amount; fines increase if not paid promptly. If you accumulate six or more unpaid tickets, your car can be impounded and renewal of your driver's license can be withheld.

A NOTE TO NEW HOMEOWNERS: Property tax bills go out twice a year, in July and December. Since there is often a lag in recording property in a new owner's name, your bill could be delayed. To avoid a charge for late payment, call the Treasurer's Office if you don't receive your tax bill by the 10th of July or the 10th of December.

If you have questions about your water or city tax bills, call 994-2833. For questions about parking violations, call 994-2775.

A 24 hour drop box is located in the lobby. Payment by check or money order only.

Brenda L. Smith
City Treasurer
P.O. Box 8647, Ann Arbor, MI 48107

city bureaucracy carries out the policies established by council. He prepares an annual budget for adoption by council, and most city department heads answer to him, either directly or through another department head. The permits that used to be distributed by this office are now issued through the Central Permit Desk (994-2674).

Accounting and Control, fifth floor, City Hall. 994-2730. This division of the Finance Department, formerly called the controller's office, is headed by Steve Hendel. It manages the city's money and provides citizens with information on bond issues and the city's general financial condition.

Assessor, fifth floor, City Hall. 994-2663. This division of the Finance Department, headed by Jim Rushton, keeps tax and ownership histories of Ann Arbor real estate. Property taxes are based on an assessed value, determined by this office; under state law, the assessed value is supposed to equal one-half of the current market value.

Every year, the city assessor reviews the assessed value of all residential and commercial properties in the city. If an assessment is contested, or if a home owner cannot afford to pay the full tax, he or she can appeal to the council-appointed Board of Review. The six-member board forms two panels that hear appeals once a year for at least four days, starting on the third Monday in March. Residents may address the board in person; nonresidents, seniors, or homebound people may mail their claims to the assessor's office. Last year the board reduced about 40 percent of the tax assessments it considered. It also has the power to increase the amount of an assessment under appeal, and does so occasionally.

Anyone who has recently purchased a home or paid off a mortgage should notify this office in writing. Failure to contact this office may cause the property tax bill to be sent to the wrong address, which can result in a penalty if taxes are paid late as a consequence.

Businesses that are opening or closing should contact the city assessor about personal property taxes. Despite the name, the personal property tax is levied only on businesses.

State tax relief. Seniors and low-income families are eligible for a Homestead Tax credit when they file their state income tax returns. The assessor's office can assist in the application process.

City Attorney, third floor, City Hall. 994-2670. City Attorney Betty Schwartz provides legal advice to city council and city officials, prepares legal documents, represents the city and city officials in suits, and prosecutes violations of city ordinances. If you have a question about the legality of something you want to do—or about something your neighbor is doing—as it pertains to the city code, call the city attorney. (To lodge a complaint against someone who you think is violating the city code, call the police.)

City Clerk, second floor, City Hall. 994-2725. City Clerk Winnie Northcross and her staff provide a variety of services to the public and to city council. The clerk issues licenses for bicycles ($2.50 onetime fee), dogs ($10 for up to two years), peddlers ($35 per year), Ann Arbor handicapped parking (short-term, within city limits only, no charge—state handicapped stickers are available from Secretary of State offices), and going-out-of-business sales ($110 for 30 days, renewable twice). Applicants must submit serial numbers for bikes, license plate numbers and a doctor's statement certifying disability for handicapped parking, rabies certificates for dogs, and two passport-type photos for peddlers. Most other licenses and permits are issued by the city's Central Permit Desk (994-2674).

Domestic partnership certificates also fall under the clerk's jurisdiction. Ann Arbor's new system for recording the committed relationships of couples who cannot or choose not to marry offers a method of public expression but creates no legal rights or benefits. To register under the domestic partnership ordinance, just pick up an application at this office, sign it in the presence of two witnesses, and get it notarized (the notary can be one witness). The charge is $20 for city residents and $25 for those outside the city.

This office also maintains records of city council acts (including members' voting records), which can be inspected by the public. Copies can be made for 20¢ a page. People who wish to speak at a city council meeting can reserve a time slot by calling the city clerk on the day of the meeting (see City Council, above). The city code and charter are available for inspection and copying at this office.

Ann Arbor residents can register to vote at the city clerk's office, at a Michigan Secretary of State office, or at any branch of the public library. If you are disabled or homebound, the city clerk will attempt to send a deputy registrar to your residence. (See Elections, above.)

A division of the city clerk's office, the Public Information Office (994-1766) publishes the city's newsletter, For the People, and produces periodic "Citybeat" programs on cable television. It also handles complaints and questions about Americans with Disabilities Act compliance. Despite its name, the public information office does not provide general information about city government; those inquiries should be directed to the information clerk (994-2700).

Office of Cable Communications, second floor, City Hall. 994-1833. Administrator: Harry (Hap) Haasch. This office, a division of the city clerk's office, regulates cable television locally and oversees Ann Arbor Community Access Television. It deals primarily with consumer issues and complaints. The Cable Communications Commission—the policy-making body for CATV—meets the fourth Tuesday of every month in the fire station's second-floor conference room. When openings are available, applications for cable commission membership can be picked up at the mayor's office.

Community Access Television, 107 N. Fifth Ave. 769-7422. See Media, p. 151.

Treasurer, first floor, City Hall. 994-2833. Run by Treasurer Brenda L. Smith, this division of the Finance Department collects property taxes, parking fines, and water and sewer bills. While the city encourages mail-in payment of property taxes, all of these bills can be paid at the cashier's window on the first floor of City Hall, at the adjacent inside drop-off box, or at the drive-up window on the building's north side. (The drop-off box is primarily for after-hours payment.) The city treasurer is available to discuss any outstanding invoices, taxes, or bills.

Property taxes are billed twice a year—in July and December. Property tax rates are decided in June and November. The July 1993 tax rate was $38.52 per $1,000 assessed valuation of property—18¢ less than the 1992 rate. Of that, $14.54 goes to the city, $2.15 to the Ann Arbor Transportation Authority, $3.10 to Washtenaw Community College, $1.72 to the Washtenaw Intermediate School District, and $17.01 to the public schools. December's rate is limited to funding for the public and intermediate schools and for Washtenaw County. The December rate was undetermined at press time; for the past two years, it has been $24.62 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

The city's share of tax revenues from July 1993 was divided among general government operations ($6.36), refuse collection ($2.51), major street repairs ($1.87), employee benefits ($1.77), debt service ($1.19), and parks development and parkland acquisition ($1.84).

Bills for summer property taxes not paid by the July 31 deadline increase by 1 percent if paid during August. The penalty climbs to 5 percent if the bill is paid during September or October. After October, unpaid summer bills (plus penalties) get added to winter bills. Winter bills are due December 31; they go up 1 percent if paid in January and 2 percent if paid in February. The county assumes responsibility for collecting property taxes on real estate that

Police Department, first floor, City Hall. Emergency: dial 911 anywhere in Washtenaw County. Ann Arbor residents will automatically be connected to the city's police and fire departments. The 911 phone number has multiple lines, so don't be reluctant to use it. For non-emergencies, call 994-2911. The complaint desk number is 994-2875; this is also the number to call to check on the status of towed vehicles. The department is currently being reorganized; if you have trouble reaching any of the programs or offices described below, call the city's information desk (994-2700) during the day or the police complaint desk after hours.

Led by Police Chief Douglas Smith, the Ann Arbor Police Department functions 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Smith has implemented a new community policing system, in which pairs of officers are assigned to one of four areas of the city. These officers handle all incidents occurring in that area except domestic violence and youth-related calls. For information or to contact your area community police, call 994-2880. The youth and family services unit (994-2710) handles all incidents involving domestic violence or children. An officer from this unit can also address youth groups or talk to concerned parents. Other police numbers: special investigations unit (994-1835); embezzlement and fraud unit (994-2661).

In addition to law enforcement, the police department serves as a catch-all for services that the city's other departments do not provide. Lost and found is on the first floor of City Hall (994-2874). The department holds a police auction twice a year, or whenever the volume of found or confiscated goods becomes large. To find out how to take part in the Neighborhood Watch Crime Prevention program, call 994-8775. The Office of Disaster Preparedness (24-hour line, 761-2425) supplements police in the event of a disaster and notifies the public. For animal control, call 911 (emergency) or 994-2911.

Safety Town (994-2242, or 994-2111 when in session), which takes place at Bryant Elementary School, is offered every year in late June and early July to teach incoming kindergarten children pedestrian, playground, and bicycle safety.

The crime prevention officer (994-2979) will survey your home and point out possible security weaknesses free of charge. The same advice is provided to businesses. The crime prevention office also runs the department's sexual assault awareness program (994-8779), which sends a speaker to schools, professional groups, and community groups.

Fire Department, 111 N. Fifth Ave. 994-2774 (emergencies, dial 911). Fire Chief: George Markus. The Ann Arbor Fire Department operates within Ann Arbor city limits. Fire prevention programs, in cooperation with the public schools, are conducted for children in grades three through six. Fire station tours are available by appointment year-round. Tours can be scheduled for 11 a.m. and after 4 p.m. daily and anytime on the weekend. The department also routinely provides fire inspections of commercial properties and all new buildings, ensures that fire lanes are maintained during special events (like the notoriously crowded Art Fair), and investigates all fires of a suspicious nature.

Cats stuck in trees are on their own. But, advises one fireman, they'll eventually come down of their own accord if whatever caused their flight is removed. "I've never found a cat skeleton in a tree," he says.

GENERAL CITY SERVICES

Engineering Division, fourth floor, City Hall. 994-2744. Chief Engineer Sabeh Yousif and his staff design and oversee new city subdivisions, road construction and resurfacing projects, and environmental projects, including the landfill. Residents of an area of the city that lacks an adequate sewer or a paved street can request improvements from this office or from the Utilities Department (994-2666). All work must be approved by city council. Do not call this office to report potholes (call 99-HOLES) or streets and sidewalks needing repair (call the transportation division, 994-2818.)

Forestry Division, 415 W. Washington St. 994-2769. City Forester Bill Lawrence and his crew from the forestry division of the Parks and Recreation Department plant trees on lawn extensions and care for them at no charge. Home owners who want trees larger than those normally supplied can choose one and have it added to an extension, but they must pay for moving it. Trees are planted in the fall and the spring. Call by March for spring plantings, by July for fall plantings. The forestry division also inspects public and private trees for disease, cares for the public ones, and provides advice for the owners of private ones for a $25 fee. Advice on shrubbery is also available. Tree clinics (no charge, call for location) are held once a month in May, June, and July in city parks. Foresters examine leaves, bark, or twigs brought to the clinics and provide information and advice.

Parks and Recreation Department, fifth floor, City Hall. 994-2780. Superintendent Ron Olson and his department run the city parks, swimming pools, golf courses, and ice rinks, the skateboard ramp at Veterans Park, several community centers, and assorted other facilities. Brochures describing park facilities are published in early spring and early fall and mailed to all Ann Arbor households. For detailed descriptions of city parks and of recreational facilities and programs, see Recreation, p. 121.

Reservations for park shelters may be made in this office. Applications must be made a week in advance and must be accompanied by a nonrefundable fee ($10 for picnic areas, $15 for park shelters). There is also a refundable cleaning/damage deposit ($25). The city does not allow alcohol in any city park without a permit; if you intend to drink, request permission when you reserve the park shelter or picnic area.

Solid Waste Department, lower level, City Center Bldg., 220 E. Huron, P.O. Box 8647, 48107. 994-2807. Directed by John Newman, this department coordinates the weekly collection of trash and seasonal collection of yard waste, and oversees curbside recycling. Trash must be placed at the curb in 35-gallon maximum capacity cans or plastic bags. There is a 50-pound limit for each container. Persons with a physical handicap can arrange to have garbage containers carried to the street at no charge. Yard waste is collected from April 1 through November 30. Use 30- to 35-gallon containers with a "compostable" sticker (available from this department) or 30-gallon paper bags. Brush and tree limbs up to six inches in diameter must be cut into three-to-four-foot lengths and tied into bundles not more than 18 inches in diameter or 50 pounds in weight. Plastic bags are not accepted for yard waste. During the fall, street leaf pickup is coordinated by the Transportation Division (see below). Large items, including furniture and appliances, are collected by appointment. Fees are $15 for most appliances and $30 for each 4 cubic yards of other debris. Call to arrange pickup.

Recycling collection and processing is contracted to Recycle Ann Arbor. General recycling guidelines are listed in the ad on p. 18. Telephone books are collected, mixed with newspapers, during the month of November only. In July 1993, the city added magazine, catalog, and glossy flyer collection. Business recycling collection begins in October 1993; call 994-4176 for information. Twice a year, the Solid Waste Department sends a newsletter on recycling and solid waste to all households.

Transportation Division, lower level, City Center Bldg., 220 E. Huron St. 994-2818. This division of the public service department, managed by John Avenet, offers a variety of services. It oversees on-street parking and some surface lots (see Parking and Transportation, p. 27) and maintains the city airport grounds. Leaf pickup is scheduled twice for each neighborhood in the fall; snow removal is done when necessary in the winter (for most streets—sidewalk snow removal is the responsibility of the property owner); and Christmas tree removal is performed once for each neighborhood in January. Leaves should be raked into the street for pickup only during the fall. Dates of tree and leaf removal are listed in the Ann Arbor News and in For the People (the city's newsletter) and shown on cable television. At other times, use the city composting program for yard waste (see Solid Waste Department, above).

For emergency street cleaning, such as for broken glass, call 994-1617 weekdays or 994-2911 (the Police Dept.) weekends.

Street and sidewalk maintenance. For pothole repair, call 99-HOLES. For fallen street signs or sidewalk repair, call 994-2818.

Streetlights and traffic signals. For inoperative streetlights or traffic signals, call 994-2818. Neighbors can petition to request additional streetlights and traffic signals. The city welcomes streetlight requests but fulfills only about 30 percent due to budget limitations. The waiting list is four years long. On-street parking modifications can also be requested by petition.

Utilities Department, fifth floor, City Hall. 994-2666. For after-hours emergencies, call 994-2840. This department, headed by Frank Porta, provides water, sewer, and storm water service to Ann Arbor and parts of the surrounding townships. It also offers emergency services (for a broken water pipe, for instance) 24 hours a day. Residents of an area of the city that lacks an adequate sewer or a paved street can request improvements from this office or from the Engineering Division (994-2744). For all Ann Arbor buildings, water costs $1.32 per 100 cubic feet (about 750 gallons). Sanitary sewer service costs $1.92 per 100 cubic feet. Storm water service costs $9.01 per quarter for single family and duplex residences. The average three-month bill (including water, and storm and sanitary sewers) for one residence is about $102, less a 10 percent discount if paid by the due date.

PLANNING AND BUILDING

Building Department, fourth floor, City Hall. 994-2674. Department head Jack Donaldson and his staff enforce city building codes, inspect rental housing, and enforce city ordinances regarding yard care (or neglect).

New construction. Building permits are required for work that affects the structure of a building, outdoor decks or fences, or any other improvement estimated to cost in excess of $600. Permits can be obtained by submitting an application form (available at this office) and two drawings of the proposed work to the Building Department. Applications are reviewed for compliance with code and safety requirements. Fees are based on the cost of the work.

Rental properties. Rental properties are routinely inspected once every two and a half years. (Tenants can request inspections for specific problems.) Buildings will not receive certification unless requirements are met or waived. Uncertified buildings cannot be rented. Code requirements can sometimes be waived with an appeal to one of four boards: housing, zoning, sign, or building. Property owners can file a substantiated claim for waiver with the

In addition, this desk conducts exams and issues licenses for various skilled occupations, including appliance installer and journeyman electrician.

Historic District Commission, 312 S. Division St. 996-3008. This commission administers 14 historic districts, including the Old West Side, the Old Fourth Ward, Washtenaw/Hill, Main Street, State Street, and a Landmark Historic District. It has jurisdiction over buildings that are designated historic sites and can prevent or control changes to the exteriors of those buildings. If you have concerns about an historic building, contact the commission.

Commission personnel also have a vast knowledge of the histories of city buildings and obligingly handle inquiries about them. The commission meets in city council chambers (second floor of City Hall) at 7:30 p.m. on the second Thursday of every month. The public is welcome, and the meetings are telecast live and replayed on cable Channel 10.

Planning Department, third floor, City Hall. 994-2800. The Planning Department, headed by Karen Popek Hart, acts as the administrative staff for the Planning Commission, a nine-member citizen body appointed by the mayor and city council. The commission makes recommendations to council on proposed site plans, zoning changes, and modifications of the city's master plan. All commission actions include at least one public hearing.

Council usually follows Planning Commission recommendations, but sometimes overrules it on controversial issues. The commission has final say on minor modifications of already approved site plans and on special-exemption uses (such as sorority houses in single-family areas) as defined by city zoning ordinances. The department makes demographic information available to the public and sells the city's basic planning documents for a small fee ($2-$10). In addition, planning staff is sometimes available to make presentations to local groups.

Individuals concerned about a development proposal are encouraged to call, stop by, or write to the Planning Department. You can also state your concerns or objections when the Planning Commission holds its public hearing on the issue. Strong debate is common at these hearings. Public hearings and action meetings are held the first and third Tuesdays of every month at 7 p.m. in council chambers (second floor). These meetings are telecast on cable Channel 10, and agendas are published in the Ann Arbor News and telecast over Channel 10 beginning the Thursday before the meeting. A working session is held the second Tuesday of every month at 7 p.m. in City Hall's fourth-floor conference room.

HUMAN SERVICES

Community Development Department, lower level, City Center Bldg., 220 E. Huron St. 994-2912. Director: Eileen Ryan. This office provides funds for a number of community development and service projects. Low-income home owners and landlords who rent to low-income families can apply for low-cost loans for home improvements at this office. Community development also handles city funding of public services, including legal aid, emergency food programs, crisis intervention, dental services, child care scholarships, and services for seniors, the homeless, and the mentally ill. Contact the office for a list of currently funded programs. About half of the money for these programs comes from the city's general fund; the other half comes from federal block grants.

Housing Commission, 727 Miller Ave. 994-2828. Commission-owned housing is available to qualified Ann Arbor residents. Expect a short wait for senior citizen housing and disabled/handicapped housing, and a year or longer wait for low-income family housing. The commission accepts applications at times announced in the classified section of the Ann Arbor News. Rent is set at 30 percent of a tenant's income. Miller Manor, at 727 Miller Rd., has 105 apartments for seniors and the disabled/handicapped, and Baker Commons, at 106 Packard St., has about 64. Family and disabled housing is spread across the city, often in duplexes and townhouses with room for two to four families. The commission runs about 350 units in all. This office also handles the Section 8 federal subsidy program in which tenants pay 30 percent of their income for rent of privately owned apartments. Again, check the News classifieds for application dates.

Human Resources Department, Suite 340, City Center Bldg., 220 E. Huron St. 994-2803. Beginning September 13, this dual-purpose department will be directed by Thomas White. The Personnel Division takes applications for all city jobs. New city jobs are posted every Tuesday afternoon. (Cable Channel 10 also shows job announcements on the message generator during off-the-air time.) Advice on equal opportunity employment for adults and youths is also available. The Human Rights Division handles complaints about discrimination in employment, housing, and public accommodation and other violations of the city human rights ordinance. A separate seven-member Human Rights Commission, appointed by the mayor and city council, monitors problems with discrimination in Ann Arbor and makes recommendations to council and other parties (such as the school board or the U-M) on ways to eliminate it.

THE ANN ARBOR CITY CODE

A quick look at some things that are legal and illegal in Ann Arbor.

Cars, bikes, skateboards, and pedestrians. Except where it is specifically prohibited, turning right on a red light is legal after stopping and yielding to pedestrians and oncoming vehicles. It is legal to turn left on a red light onto a one-way street, after yielding to pedestrians and oncoming cars.

It is illegal to drive past stopped school buses that are displaying two alternating flashing red lights. It is legal for pedestrians to cross the street on a red light or a "don't walk" signal as long as there is no danger or obstruction of traffic. It is illegal to get into or out of a vehicle that is moving. It is illegal to drive "in such a manner as to splash snow, rain, water, mud, dirt, or debris" onto pedestrians.

Roller skates, sleds, coasting wagons, toy vehicles, or "similar devices" are not allowed on streets, except to cross. Bikes on the roads more than half an hour after sunset or before sunrise must have headlights and rear reflectors, and "every bicycle shall be equipped with at least one effective brake." City council also has banned skateboarding in city parking structures, in Liberty Plaza, and on certain downtown sidewalks. The U-M Diag is off-limits to skateboarders as well.

Pets. Dog owners must have their dogs under "reasonable control" (that is, leashed or confined) at all times. They are also required to clean up after their dogs on both public and private property.

Owners of all pets must provide proper food, drink, and shelter for the weather for their animals, as well as medical attention necessary to prevent the animals from suffering. Animals may not be left confined without adequate ventilation. This includes being left inside a car with the windows up.

Domestic violence. Ann Arbor's domestic violence law requires police to arrest people suspected of spouse abuse if there is reasonable cause to believe the abuse took place, without requiring that the other spouse press charges and without waiting for a complaint. Both of the people involved are offered counseling.

Landscaping. Home owners are prohibited from growing vegetation (such as hedges) higher than 36 inches if that vegetation is within 25 feet of an intersection. Trees within that distance must be trimmed to provide clear vision of the intersection. No weeds, grass, or "other vegetation" higher than 16 inches is allowed to cover a lawn, or the city will mow your lawn for you—and give you the bill. "Fences charged or connected with an electrical current" are prohibited.

Boom boxes. In city parks, it is illegal to "use any device transmitting electronically amplified sound, including, but not limited to, radios [and] tape recorders. . . ."

Liquor. The city code states that "[no] person shall consume liquor on the public streets" or in any business not licensed for on-premises liquor consumption. Certain events with outdoor liquor sales are exempt. Alcohol is not allowed in any city park unless a permit is obtained in advance.

Begging. "No person shall beg in any public or private place." Tickets are issued to those caught breaking this law, but patrollers suspect that offenders merely stop when police are in the area.

Marijuana. Under the provisions of a charter amendment passed by voters in April 1990, possession of small amounts (one ounce is a rule-of-thumb limit in general use by the city government and police) of marijuana is a civil infraction carrying a penalty of $25 for the first offense, $50 for the second offense, and not less than $100 for the third offense. State law makes possession or sale of any amount of the drug a criminal offense. The city of Ann Arbor can choose to follow either its own law or the state law, according to its judgment in any individual case, so the above fines don't always apply. On U-M property, the university's police force follows state law.

Food vendors. Mobile food vendors, such as hot dog sellers, must change locations every five minutes or risk being ticketed.

Landlords and tenants. The city produces a booklet entitled Rights and Duties of Tenants. City law requires that landlords distribute it to their tenants; failure to do so is punishable by finances of up to $500. The booklet outlines city tenancy laws, reflecting in its composition the succession of Democratic and Republican administrations that have governed Ann Arbor in recent years: one section was written by "tenant advocates," and a rebuttal from "landlord advocates" was added later.

Court System

General information about the judicial system is available toll-free anywhere in Michigan through Tele-Court, (800) 968-5669, an information line funded by the State Judicial Institute and administered by the State Court Administrative Office. Via Touch-Tone phone, citizens can learn about the various courts, jury duty, victims' rights, wills, and many other issues.

U.S. Courts, 200 E. Liberty St., in the Federal Building, 741-2380 (clerk of court). The U.S. District Court hears all civil and criminal cases involving federal law, and civil cases between citizens of different states in which the suit is more than $50,000. (Suits for less are handled in the state court system.) Most of the appointed federal district judges for southeastern Michigan serve in Detroit, but two hold court in Ann Arbor's Federal Building: George La Plata and Charles Joiner. The Federal Building also houses the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, which hears appeals of federal district court decisions. Judge Ralph B. Guy presides.

Circuit Court, 101 E. Huron St. 994-2550. The five-judge 22nd Circuit Court is the general jurisdiction trial court for Washtenaw County. Presiding judges are Melinda Morris, chief judge; Donald E. Shelton, chief pro tem; William F. Ager Jr.; Patrick J. Conlin; and Kurtis T. Wilder. Circuit court judges are elected for six-year terms.

The circuit court has a broad range of authority in criminal, civil, and domestic relations cases. It has jurisdiction over all criminal felonies in the county, all civil cases in which the amount in dispute exceeds $10,000, domestic relations cases, including divorces, and equity jurisdiction matters. The court also hears appeals of cases from state district court. The 22nd Circuit Court is one of four pilot sites currently authorized by the Michigan Supreme Court to design and implement a unified court system that clears away jurisdictional boundaries between district, probate, and circuit courts.

Friend of the Court. General bookkeeping: 994-2466. Enforcement: 994-8211. Account information: 994-9261 (automated Touch-Tone line; have your case number ready). The Friend of the Court assists the circuit court in domestic relations cases; investigates and makes recommendations in contested child custody, visitation, and support cases; enforces support and visitation provisions ordered by the court, and mediates in child custody and visitation disputes. Child support payments may be made at the Friend of the Court office (8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. and 1:30-4:45 p.m.) and at any Society Bank branch office (generally 9 a.m.-4 p.m.; $2 service charge for paying at bank).

Circuit Court Probation. 994-2530. A unit of the Michigan Department of Corrections, this office provides support services to the circuit court judges, including pre-sentence investigations, supervision of people assigned to do community service, probation, delay of sentence, and electronic monitoring.

Probate Court. Estate and Mental Health Division, 101 E. Huron St. 994-2474. Juvenile Court Division, 2270 Platt Rd. 971-2240. The probate courts operate on the county level and, in general, hear cases concerning those who cannot care for themselves—the mentally ill, orphaned and dependent children, juvenile delinquents, and the estates of those who have died. The Estate and Mental Health Division, John Kirkendall presiding, settles the estates of those who have died, determines inheritance tax, appoints guardians for minors and legally incapacitated persons, and decides whether people are mentally ill and require hospitalization. This division also handles marriage ceremonies and change of name hearings and is a depository for wills. Nancy Francis holds court in the Juvenile Court Division, which hears cases concerning children under the age of 17. The court investigates cases to determine the measures necessary to protect and treat children in their own homes, and in group homes, foster homes, or restraint facilities. It also authorizes adoptions (971-2639) and hears juvenile traffic cases. Juvenile court also provides parenting classes, youth sex offender treatment, sports and summer camps, and family programs. The operation of the Juvenile Detention Home and detention alternatives is under the authority of the county Board of Commissioners.

District Courts, sixth floor, City Hall, 100 N. Fifth Ave. (will move to county courthouse in 1994). 994-2740. District Court No. 15, handling cases within the city of Ann Arbor, includes the Civil Division (994-2749); the Criminal Division (994-2747), which also covers drunk driving cases; the Probation Department (994-2751); and Traffic Violations (994-2745). Judges are elected to six-year terms. Judges Elizabeth O. Pollard, Pieter G. V. Thomassen, and Timothy P. Connors preside.

Small-Claims Court (994-2749) is a section of the civil division. Suits are restricted to claims under $1,750, with a limit of $400 for car accident claims. Suits can be handled without a lawyer by filling out a claim form (25¢ each), reading the provided pamphlet, paying a fee ($12 for claims under $600 and $22 for larger claims, plus a certified mail fee of $5 to serve an individual, $2.50 to serve a business), and appearing on the scheduled court date. A wait of about one month for a court date is common. Landlord-tenant disputes over security deposits and other money matters can sometimes be tried without lawyers, depending on the details of the case. There is a $22 to $54 fee, and disputes filed by Wednesday are generally heard the following Tuesday.

District court cases outside the Ann Arbor city limits are heard elsewhere. Pittsfield and Ann Arbor townships fall under the jurisdiction of District Court No. 14-A-1 (4133 Washtenaw Ave., 971-6050, Judge Thomas F. Shea), and Scio Township under that of District Court No. 14-A-3 (122 S. Main St., Chelsea, 475-8606, Judge Kenneth Bronson).

Washtenaw County Government

The general information line for Washtenaw County is 994-2400. TDD relay service for the hearing impaired: 994-1733. The county's mailing address is P.O. Box 8645, AA 48107.

County offices are scattered throughout Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti. Downtown Ann Arbor locations include the County Courthouse at 101 E. Huron St., the County Administration Building at 220 N. Main St., and the Courthouse Annex at 110 N. Fourth Ave. The sheriff's department is in the Service Center at 2201 Hogback Rd., and all Human Services groups are located in Ypsilanti, at 555 Towner.

This is a guide to the structure of county government. Specific county services are also listed in Community Services (p. 113), Health Care (p. 85), and Recreation (p. 121).

Washtenaw County, one of the first counties in Michigan, was established in 1822 and fully organized by 1827. An agent of the state government, the county government carries out responsibilities of the state. But it also has independent executive and, in a few cases, legislative powers.

The county has overlapping jurisdiction with the governments of the cities and townships within it. For instance, Ann Arbor has its own city charter and its own police force. Although the county sheriff's department provides law enforcement for the entire county, it usually does not do so in areas that have separate police forces. The county does, however, prosecute all crimes, such as murder or arson, that fall under state law. County government also carries out state law by issuing marriage licenses, recording births and deaths, and conducting the circuit courts, which operate under state laws. The county funds departments that provide services to all citizens, such as the Human Services Group and the Department of Social Services.

Unless otherwise noted, the county officials listed are in elected positions and are up for election in November of 1996. Contact numbers for elected officials can be found in the box on p. 22.

Board of Commissioners, 220 N. Main St. Commission information: 996-3055. Meeting changes: 994-1914. Agenda information tape: 994-2401. For a list of county commissioners from Ann Arbor districts, see p. 22. The chief policy-making body of county government, the board expanded last year from nine to fifteen members, elected to two-year terms. Their duties include the adoption of countywide ordinances; oversight of county operations and facilities; adoption of the annual budget for county government, including all county departments; apportionment of property taxes for the operation of county government; and establishment of and appointments to county boards, committees, and commissions. Commission working sessions are held the first and third Thursdays of the month at 7 p.m.; board meetings are first and third Wednesdays at 7:15 p.m., preceded by a ways and means meeting at 7 p.m. In summer, all meetings are held the first week of the month only.

County Administrator, 220 N. Main St. 994-6451. Appointed by the Board of Commissioners, the county administrator, currently Larry J. Brown, is responsible for the overall management of county departments, agencies, and offices. This includes the financial duties formerly handled by the controller. The county administrator also assists the board with policy-making and acts as a liaison with other units of government.

County Clerk/Register of Deeds, 101 E. Huron St. 994-1638. This combined office, run by Peggy Haines, maintains official county records (births, deaths, marriages, divorces, military discharges, assumed names, concealed weapons permits); provides administrative services in the issuance of passports; provides administrative assistance to the county and is clerk of circuit court; monitors the conduct of elections; and maintains all county property records.

Marriage licenses are $20 ($30 for out-of-state residents). A health certificate (available from local physicians and clinics), a valid state identification, a certified birth certificate, and a divorce certificate (if one of the partners has been divorced within the last year) are required.

County Law Library, 101 E. Huron St., basement. This small library houses a collection of state and federal cases and statutes. It is open to judges, lawyers, and persons doing business with the courts. Patrons should know their way around a law library because there is no librarian. Open during courthouse hours (generally 9 a.m.-5 p.m.).

County Treasurer, 101 E. Huron St. 994-2520. The custodian of county funds, Treasurer Nancy L. Davis receives all revenues (taxes and fees), invests county funds, collects delinquent property taxes, collects inheritance taxes, keeps records of tax histories, and sells delinquent property taxes, collects inheritance taxes, keeps records of tax histories, and sells tax liens against real estate on which taxes have gone unpaid for at least three years.

Drain Commissioner, 110 N. Fourth Ave., Suite 202. 994-2525. The drain commissioner, Janis Bobrin, handles problems such as pollution and storm water management and develops water and land use strategies for flood and erosion control. The drain commissioner has jurisdiction over many urban and most outlying storm drains and waterways within the county and is responsible for preventing or abating storm drain pollution, providing information on water quality to the public, and responding to pollution emergencies.

Emergency Management, 2201 Hogback Rd. Business: 971-1152. Emergency: 911. This office, managed by Dan Harsh, coordinates the dissemination of vital information during emergencies, including severe weather, fires, floods, and spills of hazardous materials, and responds to large-scale disasters in the county. When necessary, the office works cooperatively with the city's Disaster Preparedness Office (761-2425) to provide mutual aid and resources. Emergency Management also serves as an advisory source to the Emergency Broadcast System, the county apex of which is WAAM Radio, 1600 AM. County residents should tune to WAAM for information during an emergency.

Environmental Coordination Office, 110 N. Fourth Ave. 994-6361. This office, directed by Rebecca Head, coordinates county programs and offices that deal with environmental issues, including hazardous materials and hazardous waste reduction. It handles emergency incidents involving hazardous materials, provides water resource protection, and educates the public.

Environmental Services, County Service Center, 4101 Washtenaw Ave. Public Health: 971-4542. Building Inspection: 971-1441. This office, managed by Nancy Heine and Dick Fleece until a director is appointed, provides public health and safety services. Environmental Health inspects public buildings and facilities outside the city of Ann Arbor for water supply and sewer disposal, does radon and other indoor air testing, and runs the Home Toxics Reduction Program for household hazardous waste (971-7356). Building Inspection performs electrical, mechanical, and plumbing inspections and provides soil erosion control.

Human Resources, 220 N. Main St. Verna McDaniels and her staff supply postings and applications for county jobs in the ground-floor lobby of this building. New postings go up every Monday. The job line (994-2409) is a recorded list of available jobs.

Planning Department, 110 N. Fourth Ave., 4th floor. 994-2435. Veteran Planning Director Thomas J. Fegan and his staff provide services to both the county administrator and the Washtenaw County Metropolitan Planning Commission. He offers professional planning advice to the administrator and to county departments and agencies, and he provides staff to the planning commissioners (who are appointed by the board of commissioners for three-year terms). With the planning commissioners, he develops master plans for county land use and undertakes surveys of the economic, social, environmental, and physical development of the county. The office is also an official U.S. Census repository and provides census information (at a small fee) to citizens, organizations, businesses, and developers.

Prosecuting Attorney, 101 E. Huron St. 994-2380. Prosecuting attorney Brian L. Mackie and his assistants are responsible for the prosecution of criminal cases in the county that fall under state law. As the chief law enforcement officer for the county, the prosecutor must authorize, in writing, any criminal prosecution. The prosecutor also represents all children in divorce cases, enforces child support, and handles Juvenile Court administrative matters. Call 994-2385 for questions about child support. Staff of the Victim Witness Assistance Program (936-3026) inform victims of their rights and about the status of their cases.

Public Defender, 101 E. Huron. 994-2244. Reporting to the board of commissioners, Public Defender Lloyd Powell and his staff provide legal counsel to indigent and partially indigent people facing charges in criminal or civil cases, including felonies, juvenile cases, and civil Friend of the Court child support and contempt proceedings. It also assists local units of government in meeting future water and waste water treatment needs throughout the county, oversees the county's recycling program, and provides information on recycling and composting.

Road Commission, 555 N. Zeeb Rd., P.O. Box 1528, AA 48106. 761-1500. Although the streets in many new suburban developments are privately owned, most paved and dirt roads in outlying areas of the county are still maintained by road commission personnel, supervised by Bob Poland.

Sheriff, 2201 Hogback Rd. 971-8400. For all emergencies, dial 911. Jail information: 971-8426. Sheriff Ron Schebil enforces all criminal, civil, and traffic laws of the county, and conducts investigations of unusual, violent, or accidental deaths. The sheriff executes the orders of the courts, arrests and detains accused offenders, manages the county jail facilities, and coordinates various law enforcement activities of the county and the state. The sheriff provides support and coordination to local police departments, which may duplicate some of the sheriff's duties. In outlying areas of the county, the sheriff's department responds to calls for assistance and provides uniformed road patrols.

Township Governments

The townships surrounding Ann Arbor have all grown explosively in recent years. At times they have squabbled with the city over the linked issues of development, annexation, and utilities. The various townships maintain different levels of services, leaving Washtenaw County to provide the ones they don't offer.

1993-1994 Ann Arbor City Council

City Council members are elected to two-year terms in staggered elections: one council person from each ward runs yearly. Seats up for election on November 2, 1993, are noted with an asterisk (*). Because this is a changeover year (elections formerly were held in April), council members elected in November will not take office until April 1994 to allow current members to fulfill their terms. If you cannot reach council members at the phone numbers listed below, contact the council message line (994-3313) to relay your concerns.

PARKING PERMITS

There are 2,629 parking permits available that allow all-day parking in specific lots and structures in the city system, although they do not guarantee the availability of parking spaces. National Garage now sells the parking permits for all available city spaces, with the exception of the lot at First and William (see below). Permits for National Garage spaces cost $60 a month ($65 for nonresidents). All permit parkers also need a key-card, for which a refundable $15 deposit is charged. Permits are issued on a first-come, first-served basis and availability of spaces changes daily. In May 1993, National Garage had 20 spaces available in the Ann-Ashley structure and only two at Tally Hall on Washington. No permits were available for surface lots around town. National Garage advises individuals to call for space availability before applying. Applications and initial payment for these spaces must be made at the National Garage office (761-7235) on the first floor of the Ann-Ashley parking structure, 220 N. Ashley, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or by appointment. Anyone can park in permit spaces after the posted hours of operation.

The cost of a permit in the city-managed lot at First and William is only $40 a month ($45 for nonresidents). Call the city's Parking Operations Office (994-2707) for permit availability; only four permits were available in May 1993. Permits for this lot must be purchased at Parking Operations Headquarters, 415 W. Washington (second floor), during the first and last weeks of the month (Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-3:45 p.m.), and on Fridays (11 a.m.-2:45 p.m.) throughout the month.

University of Michigan Parking

U-M Parking Services, 508 Thompson St. 764-8291. University parking facilities are marked by blue and white signs that note restrictions and hours of operation. The U-M has two types of parking lots—one with metered spaces open to the public (marked Visitor) and the other open for staff permit parking only. The U-M has 1,660 metered visitor spaces spread out between the Central, Medical, Athletic, and North campuses. Over 1,000 of them are located on North Campus. An additional 1,700 visitor spaces are available in attended structures. The cost of parking at a U-M meter goes up to 50¢ an hour in September 1993, matching the city rate. University officers usually patrol the parking system, issuing tickets payable to the City of Ann Arbor, which returns the revenue to the U-M.

Eligibility for U-M faculty and staff parking permits is dependent on numerous criteria, but more employees are eligible to buy permits now that 11,433 staff-paid spaces are available. Permits for Central Campus parking cost $393 for 12 months. Permits on North Campus and on the Athletic Campus cost $168 for 12 months.

The U-M Parking Services office has changed its approach to student parking again. Attempting to relieve parking pressure in the Central Campus area, the U-M has allotted a total of 600 student spaces in underutilized staff-only lots. U-M student parking permits cost $168 for the year and allow parking at two lots on the Athletic Campus off Kipke Drive, one lot on Central Campus at the corner of Hill and Fifth, and two lots on North Campus. These permits are now valid for the entire year. Free transportation from the lots to Central Campus is provided via U-M buses. Permits are sold on a first-come, first-served basis at the U-M Parking Services office, 508 Thompson, beginning this year on September 9, 1993, between 6 and 9 p.m. Students are now able to choose the lot they would like when purchasing the permit if they bring proof of enrollment.

U-M commuter lot parking permits, also available from the U-M Parking Services office, are free and can be obtained at any time by U-M students and employees. Permit holders may park at the U-M satellite lot on South State Street near Briarwood Mall. No permit is necessary to park at the AATA Park-n-Ride lots at Pioneer High School and at the Maple Village shopping center. Commuters from these three lots who show student or staff identification to AATA bus drivers receive free transportation to and from Central Campus.

Visitors to U-M can purchase daily parking passes at the Thayer Street parking structure for $5.75. The Fletcher Street parking structure has attended spaces available to visitors (they are not time-restricted) which cost $5.75 a day. At the U-M Medical Center Taubman structure, visitors can park for $4.50 a day. No reservations for any of these facilities are accepted. Another good place to search for parking is at the metered visitor lot adjacent to the Thompson Street parking structure.

Transportation

AIRPORTS AND AIRPORT TRANSPORTATION

Ann Arbor Airport, State and Ellsworth roads, 994-2841. Ann Arbor Airport is the ninth-busiest airport in Michigan, with over 110,000 takeoffs and landings annually. Operating 24 hours, the airport handles business, corporate, and private flights and provides air ambulance service, charter flights, and flight instruction. Repairs, service, fuel, and hangar rentals are available. A 24-hour courtesy phone in the terminal building lobby connects directly to area hotels, cab services, and aviation services. The airport is located south of the city, near the Briarwood business district. Access to downtown Ann Arbor is available by bus, taxi, limousine, or prearranged car rental.

Detroit Metropolitan Airport. (313) 942-3550. "Metro" is a major airport (over 22 million passengers in 1992) offering regional, national, and international flights. It's a hub for Northwest Airlines and is serviced by 13 other regularly scheduled domestic and international airlines and a number of charters and air taxis. Metro is located off I-94 at the Merriman Road exit, approximately 25 miles east of Ann Arbor. For specific flight information, call the individual airlines or a travel agent.

The Merriman Road-Metro Airport exit off I-94 lets out onto Rogell Drive, which circles Metro's facilities. The International Terminal is the first one off to the right (enter at the traffic light). Just past that turnoff, Rogell Drive splits into upper and lower levels. The upper roadway goes to departure/drop-off areas and the lower goes to the arrival/pickup areas. The first building, on either level, is the modern, concrete Davey Terminal (north terminal), which is occupied solely by Northwest. Just beyond that is the Marriott Hotel, and at the south end of the Rogell loop is the old turquoise L. C. Smith Terminal (south terminal), which houses all other domestic airlines servicing Metro.

During the holiday seasons of Thanksgiving, Christmas, New Year's, and Easter, it's advisable to call Metro's Parking Hotline, (800) 642-1978, for traffic and parking conditions well in advance of your departure. Over 250,000 cars park at Metro each month.

To save money and hassle, make sure you are driving into the type of parking lot (short- or long-term) that's appropriate for your trip. A total of 12,000 on-site parking spaces are available. Short-term parking is $1.50 per half-hour with a maximum charge of $24 a day. There are numerous long-term facilities, including the newly expanded parking deck in the center of the Rogell Drive loop ($3 first hour, $9 maximum per day), which provides golf cart transportation from your car to the terminal walkways; the International Terminal Lot ($3 first hour, $9 maximum per day); the Yellow Lot, located just beyond the traffic light on inbound Rogell Drive ($2 first hour, $6 daily, $36 weekly); and the Green Lot, located on outbound Rogell Drive ($5 daily, $30 weekly). All lots have free shuttle services to all Metro terminals. Valet parking for a $10 daily flat rate is available off inbound Rogell Drive just past the traffic light at the entrance to the Yellow Lot. (313) 942-4865. Ten percent discounts are available for corporations that register with the valet service in advance. Handicapped parking at Metro is available with wheelchair-equipped vans that meet you at your car and at the terminal upon return. Call at least a day in advance to arrange service: (313) 941-6855.

There are five private parking lots with over 10,000 parking spaces on Middlebelt and Wickham roads with 24-hour shuttle service to Metro terminals. Cost is between $4.50 and $5.20 per day. Contact Airport Parking, (313) 729-3999; Park-N-Go, (313) 729-3999; U.S. Park, (313) 946-9360; Airlines Parking, (313) 728-6066; or Express Parking, (313) 326-4530.

Transportation to Metro from Ann Arbor is provided by the Commuter Transportation Company, (800) 351-LIMO or 763-8587 (U-M Michigan Union Ticket Office). Dark blue vans and large white buses with an airplane insignia on the side provide service seven days a week between Metro Airport and all area hotels and motels. Reservations are required for pickup from hotels and must be made at least three hours in advance. With reservations, transportation is available 24 hours a day. At least one van leaves from the U-M Michigan Union every hour on the quarter-hour from 5:15 a.m. to 11:15 p.m. (In summer after 7:15 p.m., the Union stop is made only by prior reservation.) From Metro, vans leave both the north and south terminals (lower level) once every hour from 7 a.m. to midnight. The one-way trip takes about an hour and fifteen minutes (a bit longer than usual due to construction at Metro). Tickets can be purchased at the U-M Michigan Union Ticket Office (basement level) for $14 one way or $23 round-trip. At most area hotels, at Metro, or from the driver, tickets are $14.50 one way or $26 round-trip.

Door-to-door transportation to Metro is provided by Transit Passenger Services, 769-2135. Service is available by reservation only, 7 a.m.-10 p.m., at a one-way rate of $15 for one person. It costs $35 to rent the whole van for as many people as can fit, making this a deal for families or students traveling in groups.

SAVE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS A YEAR!

Driving alone is by far the most expensive way to get to work. Just take a typical example.

Imagine that you live 20 miles from work, a 40-mile round-trip commute. That's not very far. By joining a three-person carpool, you save $2217 per year. If you join a 15-person vanpool, you save even more: $2684. And if you drive the van, you commute for free. You can keep the $3326 it costs you to drive alone in your pocket, where it belongs.

Which raises a very interesting question. What could you do with an extra two or three thousand dollars a year?

Call 973-6500 for more information.

BICYCLE TRANSPORTATION

Ann Arborites do a lot of two-wheeled traveling. City surveys have found that approximately 60 percent of the city's residents own a bicycle, and half the owners report riding at least once a week. Even among the 60-and-over age group, a startling 20 percent classified themselves as bicycle riders.

It's possible to reach almost any part of the city on the marked network of street, sidewalk, and park bike lanes and paths. (See map on p. 123.) The city has bike lockers at three locations: City Hall, the Amtrak Depot, and the Fourth and Washington parking structure. Lockers offer bike commuters a low-cost way ($45 for the whole year) to keep their bikes safe and dry while at work. Call the city's Bicycle Program at 971-5471 for bike locker rental information. The city's Bicycle Master Plan, adopted in 1992, outlines goals to further enhance bicycle travel and safety through low-cost construction and maintenance of bicycle facilities, safety education programs, and improved enforcement of current bicycle laws. Contact the city bicycle coordinator, Jayne Miller (994-2786), with questions or suggestions.

Bicycle registration is required in Ann Arbor. The lifetime fee is $2.50, and you can register at the city clerk's office (City Hall) or at bicycle shops around town. Report stolen bicycles to the Ann Arbor Police Department (994-2875). Bicyclists must give pedestrians the right of way and follow the same laws as motorized vehicles when riding on the street, including coming to complete stops at all stop signs and using a headlight after dark. Cyclists can expect to receive tickets for ignoring these rules. The Department of Parks and Recreation (769-9140) offers bicycle safety courses, expos, group rides, and maintenance clinics. Call for more information.

The Student Bike Shop at 607 S. Forest Ave. (662-6986) offers bike rentals for time periods from one hour ($4.50) to one month ($45) for a ten-speed bike. Prices are somewhat higher for mountain bike rentals. A cash deposit is required.

Service is free for U-M students, faculty, and staff. No pass is necessary to ride. Buses run on two commuter routes every 15 minutes. (The first bus leaves Crisler at 6:45 a.m.; the last bus leaves the Medical Center at 6:15 p.m.) The north route connects Central Campus to the Medical Center; the south route connects Central Campus to Crisler Arena. Change commuter buses at the Central Campus stop to travel from a destination on the north route to a destination on the south route. The commuter buses connect with two North Campus routes that run about every ten minutes (20 minutes on weekends, weekdays after 7 p.m., and all summer). There are two transfer points: one at North University and Church St. connects all buses; one at Zina Pitcher Place and Catherine on the Medical Campus connects the north commuter bus to North Campus routes. North Campus bus hours: daily (except holidays) 7 a.m.-2 a.m. (Sept.-Apr.), or 7 a.m.-12:30 a.m. (May-Aug.).

LIMOUSINES

Five limousine companies serve the Ann Arbor area. Sedans, town cars, and stretch limos are available at an average cost of $40-$45 per hour, but limo services suggest looking at the car before renting since quality varies in this unregulated industry. Limousine services include Altra Limousine (971-7122), Ann Arbor Limousine Service (663-3388), Executive Limousine (971-9240), Golden Limousine (668-8282), and World Class Coach (482-7142).

This map compiles data from monthly Ann Arbor Observer crime maps between June 1992 and May 1993. Unlike the monthly map, symbols denote ranges (see key at left), rather than individual crimes. Also, symbol locations denote the total number of crimes committed within each of the city's 52 neighborhoods during the year, rather than the exact location of specific crimes. The map is based on data provided by the Ann Arbor Police Department. Totals include attempts.

As usual, the densely packed student neighborhoods near the U-M campus recorded the highest overall crime totals. But not all criminal activity was centered there. The Briarwood Mall area actually suffered the largest number of auto thefts, and sexual assaults occurred all over the city.

Flight to the suburbs offers little escape from Ann Arbor's high property crime rates. Per capita auto thefts were higher in all three of the surrounding townships (Pittsfield, Ann Arbor, and Scio) than in the city itself, and burglaries were significantly lower only in Scio Township. Violent crime was below city rates for partially rural Ann Arbor and Scio townships, but higher in Pittsfield.

The good news? Ann Arbor still has considerably fewer violent crimes than most American cities. You, at least, are safer than your car stereo is.

Housing

For most people, Ann Arbor's character is defined by its small-town core, with its neat, individualized turn-of-the-century houses closely packed together. But in fact, four out of five Ann Arbor homes were built since 1940, and most new housing built in recent decades has come in the form of apartments and condominiums.

Until the mid-1980's, most Ann Arborites owned their own homes. Now renters are in the majority, and with little room left in the city for new subdivisions, that trend is continuing. According to the city's unpublished 1992 Household Survey, only one neighborhood saw an increase in the percentage of home owners last year: Scarlett/Mitchell, where buyers are snapping up homes in the relatively inexpensive Turnberry subdivision as quickly as they can be built.

Other noteworthy trends: the number of households with children at home is declining (only Maplewood, Huron Highlands, and North Central reported increases in the 1992 survey), while Ann Arbor's senior population has grown significantly (up 23 percent between the 1980 and 1990 censuses). And at least among the households that responded to the city's survey, median income jumped dramatically between 1990 and 1992—from $36,000 to approximately $45,000.

Neighborhood numbers are keyed to the map on this page. Home price information (current as of July 1993) was provided by Tracy Cherney of the Charles Reinhart

Company and Dawn Foerg of the Edward Surovell Company.

For neighborhoods outside the city limits but within the boundaries of the Ann Arbor school district, see "The Suburbs," p. 53. For a detailed street map of both the city and nearby residential areas, see pp. 14–15. For listings and maps of major apartment and condominium complexes, see p. 57 (apartments) and p. 64 (condominiums).

Demographic data are listed in symbols at the end of each neighborhood section. The information comes from the city's unpublished 1992 Household Survey; samples from some areas were small, so the survey provides only an approximate guide. The key to the symbols is as follows:

Median Household Income
$10,000–$24,999	$
$25,000–$49,999	$$
$50,000–$74,999	$$$

1 & 2: NORTHBURY/CHAPEL HILL & ORCHARD HILLS/MAPLEWOOD

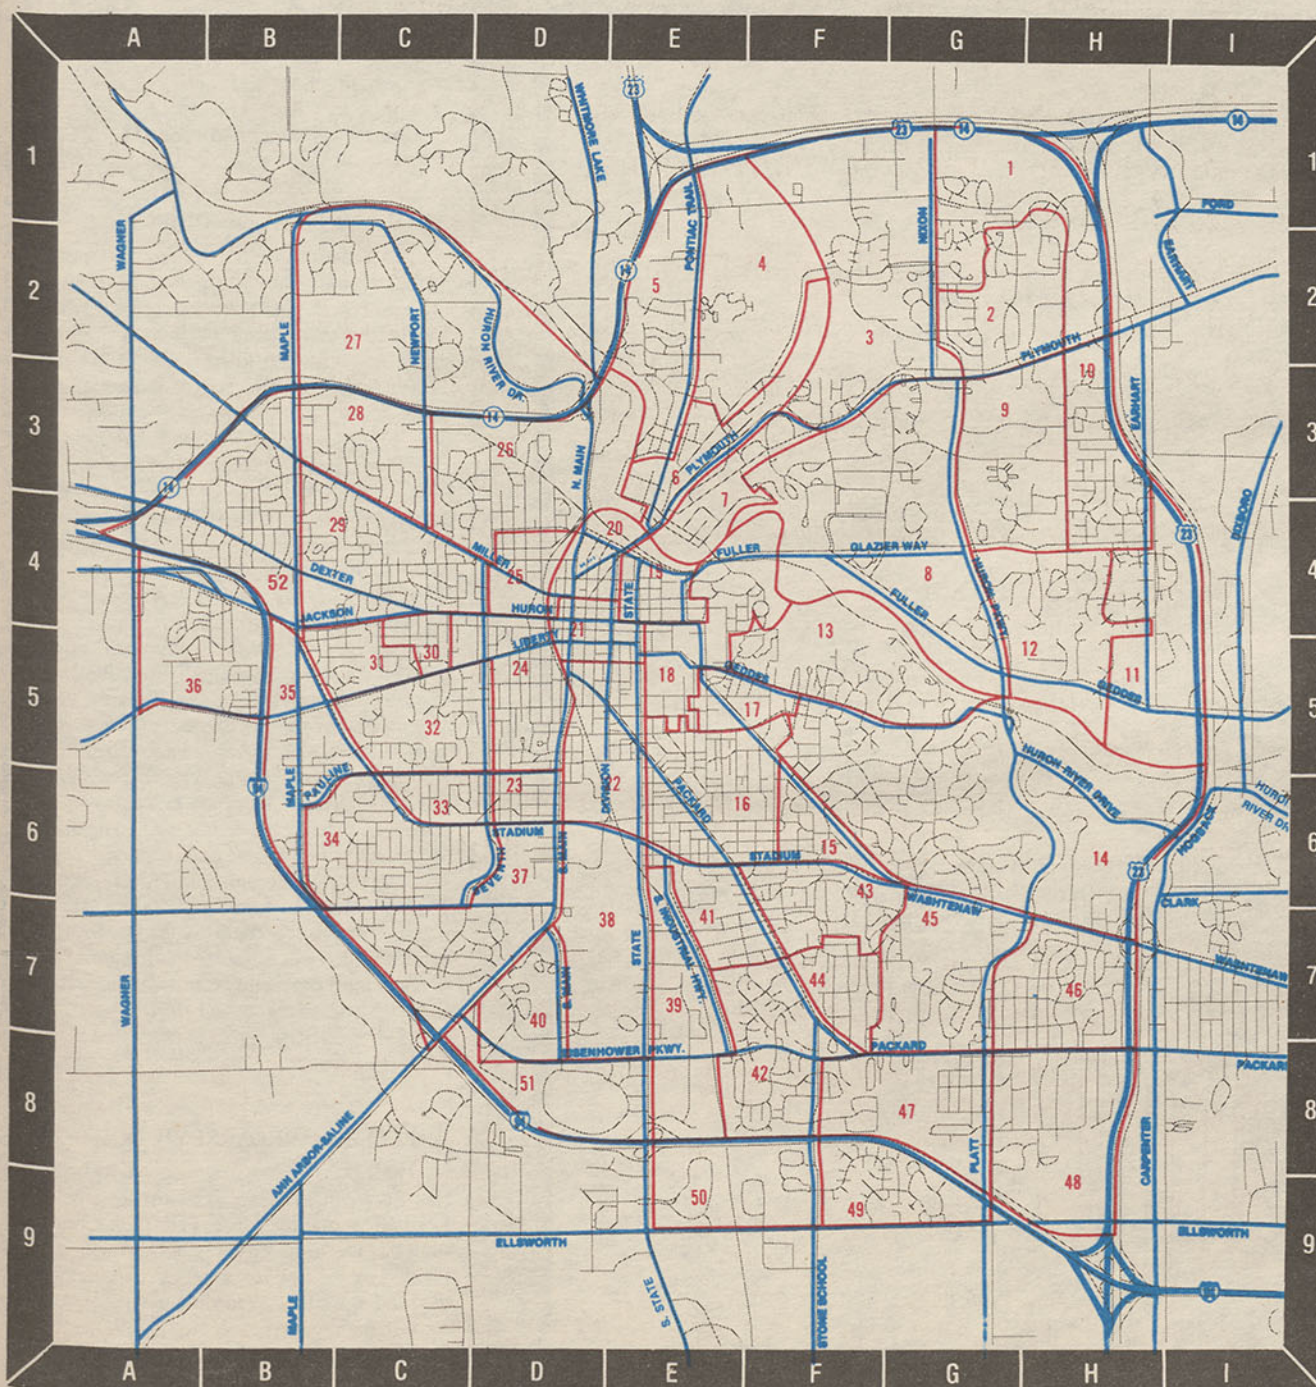

Before sewers were extended out Plymouth Road during construction of the U-M's North Campus in the 1950's, much of this area northeast of the Plymouth and Nixon intersection was the Bolgos family's farm and dairy. The gently rolling hills were originally a pile of sand and gravel left behind 13,000 years ago by the retreating Wisconsin glacier. Today it's a well-manicured mixture of subdivisions, condominiums, and apartment complexes. Plymouth Road itself is lined with offices, shopping centers, and research facilities.

The Northbury Condominiums lie east of Nixon Road just before the M-14 overpass. Because of Northbury's proximity to Clague Middle School and Logan Elementary, there are many children (their parents are often business professionals and U-M faculty and staff), as well as retired people. To the north lies the huge Windemere Park luxury apartment complex.

The Chapel Hill area east of Green Road is a diverse community of townhouse condominiums and single-family homes. With its neat lawns and recent renovation work, Chapel Hill prides itself on its upkeep. The turnover rate for residents is fairly high, reflecting the large percentage of U-M students, staff, and foreign visitors. A significant segment (about half) of Chapel Hill residents are seniors. The playground and open areas of adjacent Sugarbush Park are popular with Chapel Hill families, typically professional working couples.

The Orchard Hills, Maplewood, and Bromley single-family subdivisions make up the Orchard Hills/Maplewood neighborhood. Bromley's houses are slightly smaller, Maplewood's homes are somewhat newer.

Orchard Hills/Maplewood is fairly stable, with many younger families with children at home and an extremely high home ownership rate (94 percent), the third highest in the city. The family orientation makes for a very social atmosphere, with numerous block parties, cookouts, and even parades. The Orchard Hills Athletic Club on Yorktown has a pool that is a social hub for area members. The family atmosphere continues in the Bromley subdivision, which also has its own swim club, Dolphins Pool. Its 231 homes are built around Bromley Park and are adjacent to the Thurston School Nature Center. It also boasts an extremely active home owners association.

Prices for houses in the three subdivisions range from $125,000 to $200,000 and up. Median household income in 1992 was well above the citywide median. Both neighborhoods are located in Ann Arbor's Second Ward. Northbury children attend Logan Elementary; all others go to Thurston. Clague is the middle school and the high school is Huron.

3: TRAVER/WILLOWTREE

The Traver/Willowtree area is dominated by apartments, including Willowtree, Willowtree Tower, and Parc Pointe on Plymouth Road; Parkway Meadows (which includes a group of senior buildings) near Nixon; and Traver Ridge off Traver Road. The terrain is hilly; many of the complexes about a stream now mostly funneled into underground pipes. The Traver Lakes development includes single-family homes and some condos. Traver Vistas, north of Placid Way, is made up of single-family homes. After many years in the works, the new Foxfire development north of Dhu Varren Road is under construction, with a planned total of 361 homes.

The neighborhood has many open areas and ponds throughout; residents frequently walk or jog through what is still a peaceful area, despite recent development projects like the new Traver Village shopping center on Plymouth Road. Residents of Traver Ridge, Traver Lakes, and Traver Vistas all belong to an association that shares the clubhouse, pool, and tennis courts at the Traver Lakes condos.

Single-family colonials in Traver Lakes and Traver Vistas cost from $125,000 to $185,000. Foxfire homes sell for $170,000 to $230,000. Traver/Willowtree is located in the First Ward. Schools are Logan and Northside elementaries, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

4: LESLIE PARK/ARROWWOOD

The Leslie Park/Arrowwood neighborhood lies between Pontiac Trail to the west and Leslie Park and the Leslie Park Golf Course to the east. The hilly terrain is pocked with gravel pits left by the flowing waters that carried away the sand and silt of a receding glacier.

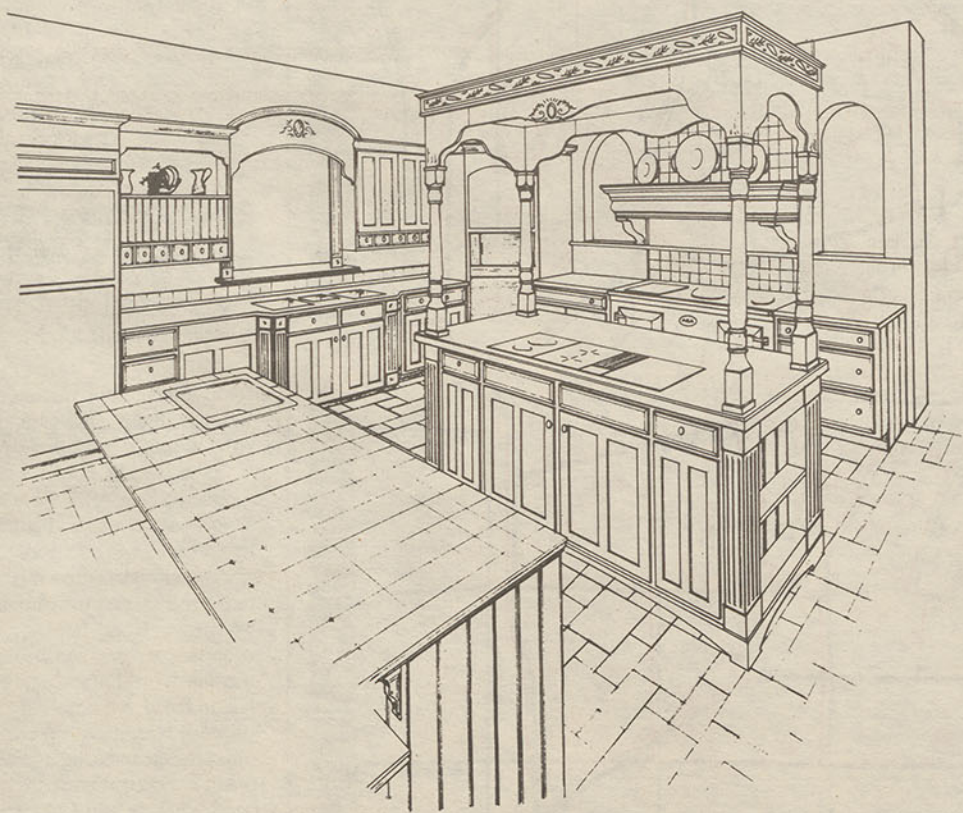

For many years, the area's chief housing source has been the 350-unit Arrowwood Hills Cooperative, a low-income townhouse complex built in the late 1960's, which accounts for this area's $15,000 median income, the lowest in Ann Arbor. Now as the city extends its water and sewer lines into the northern part of this neighborhood, along Dhu Varren Road, it's gaining new developments like the 35-home Orchard Place subdivision off Pontiac Trail.

With a wide racial and ethnic mix, Arrowwood has a diverse but cohesive atmosphere; members participate in many shared programs and have cooperative garden plots. Cash-poor U-M graduate students often join the co-op's long waiting list. The Leslie Park/Arrowwood neighborhood is home to Ann Arbor's second-highest concentration of households with children. Arrowwood children are bused to King, Logan, or Thurston elementary schools; all others attend Northside Elementary. Clague is the middle school, and the high school is Huron. This neighborhood is located in the First Ward. $, CCCC, RRR.

5: HURON HIGHLANDS

Huron Highlands is located on a high ridge overlooking the Huron River valley and the downtown skyline between US-23/M-14 and Pontiac Trail. The ridge is the northern portion of the Fort Wayne moraine, the foundation of the high bluffs that rise from the Huron north and west of Ann Arbor.

Single-family ranches built in the late 1960's are priced at $89,000 and up; despite their nearly identical appearance, their well-treed, quiet setting keeps them in great demand among first-time home buyers. There are also a few quite substantial contemporary homes dotted throughout this neighborhood, which sell for as much as $200,000. There are few renters in the neighborhood, and families predominate.

Despite its proximity to the downtown area, Huron Highlands is a quiet, stable neighborhood. Residents tend to be either professional younger families or retired people who greatly value their seclusion. Children attend Northside Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High. Huron Highlands, like Leslie Park/Arrowwood on the other side of Pontiac Trail, is located in the city's First Ward.

$$, CCC, R.

6: NORTHSIDE

This area immediately north of the Huron River flourished in the 1830's but soon became a quiet backwater as the growth of the U-M focused development south of the river. Today, apartments and small, moderately priced ($87,000 and up) ranches share the neighborhood with some of the city's oldest surviving houses.

Many of the older houses are now rented, and there are also newer apartments, including the Shoreview complex on Kellogg and the Argo Park Townhouses on Longshore Drive. There is a moderate student presence in this pleasantly diverse area. One of the few stably integrated neighborhoods in Ann Arbor, Northside is located completely within Ward One. Schools are Northside Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

$$, CC, RRR.

7: BROADWAY/RIVERSIDE

This neighborhood just north of the Huron River adjacent to Northside includes the spot where several Indian trails once met at a ford on the Huron River. That same clustering effect is visible today where Broadway, Plymouth Road, Maiden Lane, Wall Street, Moore Street, Swift Street, and Pontiac Trail all converge near the Broadway bridge. Known as Lower Town in Ann Arbor's early days, the neighborhood contains the city's oldest commercial structure, the 1832 Anson Brown Building at Swift and Broadway. (See Local Landmarks, p. 11.)

Cedar Bend Drive, located near the crest of the Broadway hill, offers a spectacular view of the Huron River valley below and of the U-M Medical Center across Fuller Road. It follows one of the high river terraces left behind by the meandering Huron, which flows past Wall Street and Maiden Lane along Fuller Road. Extended river terraces just west of Fuller Pool, toward the U-M's North Campus farther to the east, border a pre-glacial lake bed.

Broadway hill distinctly separates the Broadway and Riverside areas. Located north of the crest, the Broadway area combines rental housing with older single-family houses on large, well-kept lots on and near Cedar Bend. There has been a recent increase in the rehabilitation of older homes, and more families with young children have moved into the area. Single-family homes vary from small ranches that start at about $90,000 to large, stately homes in the Cedar Bend area that are priced in the $300,000 range.

Apartments predominate in the valley to the south. Young professionals and U-M graduate and medical students, plus a small concentration of retirees, predominate in the Riverside complexes, which include the Island Drive and Medical Center Court apartments off Maiden Lane. Riverside, with its transient population, has much less civic activism than the Broadway area.

The high-rise Riverside Park Place condominiums are located at 1050 Wall Street along Riverside Park—the 1875 site of the Alber & Co. Blacksmith and Wagon Shop. The Riverhouse condos face Island Park a little downriver. Broadway/Riverside votes in the First Ward. Schools are Northside Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

$, C, RRRR.

8: NORTH CAMPUS

The area south of Plymouth Road and west of Huron Parkway is dominated by the U-M's North Campus, a mixture of classroom and research buildings, residence halls, and apartments and townhouses for married students. The U-M's School of Music stands on a sand and gravel flood plain terrace created by meltwater streams that ran off part of the Defiance moraine, which can be traced as far south as the Ohio city for which it was named, to form a glacial lake. The area near Arbor Crest Cemetery (east of Beal Street on Glazier Way) is also sand and gravel, part of it from glacial meltwaters, some of it from the Huron River. Now, the hilly glacial landscape is well manicured, but retains many woody patches.

The Huron River Plaza apartments and high-rise Huron Towers on Fuller Road augment the U-M's Baits and Bursley dorms and U-M married housing on Cram Circle and McIntyre to create a densely settled neighborhood dominated by students. Almost all of the residents in the North Campus neighborhood are renters. But the family housing gives this a very different demographic profile from the older student areas near campus. Here, 70 percent are family households and 42 percent of survey respondents have children.

Most of the few houses in the North Campus neighborhood were custom-built in the 1950's along Fuller Road and Glazier Way. They sell for anywhere from $200,000 to $600,000 or even more. The 1836 Orin White House, at 2940 Fuller Road across from Huron High, with its distinctive herringbone-patterned stone facade, is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Most North Campus children are bused to Angell, Logan, and Northside elementaries. Clague and Tappan are the middle schools. The high school is Huron. North Campus east of Murfin Avenue is located in the Second Ward; those west of Murfin Avenue vote in the First Ward.

$$, CCC, RRRR.

9: NORTHWOOD V/ VINTAGE VALLEY

Northwood V is a large complex of townhouses for married U-M students. Half the residents come from other countries, and nearly all have young families. Vintage Valley is a subdivision made up of expensive custom-built homes; prices start at $250,000. The recently built Woodlands subdivision, located near Vintage Valley in the hilly, wooded area just north of Glazier Way, is even more expensive: custom-built houses there are selling for $450,000 and up. The 18-unit Oakridge detached condominiums are located on Glazier Way at Huron Parkway.

The vast economic differences notwithstanding, these adjoining areas share an overwhelming emphasis on family; in the 1992 survey of thirty-one households in the neighborhood, the Northwood V/Vintage Valley neighborhood recorded the highest percentage of households with children—77 percent—in the entire city. Children living in Northwood V are bused to Northside Elementary; other neighborhood children attend King. Clague is the middle school, and Huron is the high school.

Northwood residents considerably outnumber those in Vintage Valley (renters predominate heavily in the neighborhood as a whole), which probably explains why its median income is relatively low. Northwood V/Vintage Valley is located in the Second Ward.

10: GLACIER HIGHLANDS/ GREENBRIER

The Glacier Highlands subdivision is set on terraces formed by the drainage of the Huron River along the eastern edge of Green Road south of Plymouth (near Glazier Way). The sandy and silty loam soils in the area, which are part of the Defiance moraine, support large stands of oak, hickory, and other hardwoods.

Moderately winding streets are bordered by the manicured lawns of 15- to 20-year-old single-family colonials that sell for $195,000 to $300,000. The Earhart Knolls homes, recently constructed off Glazier just west of Earhart, can cost $300,000 or more. Farther north, off Green Road, is the 501-unit Greenbrier apartment complex and the Greenbrier subdivision. Colonial, Cape Cod, and tri-level houses line the wooded streets. Greenbrier houses cost from $145,000 to $175,000.

The large number of renters in the Greenbrier and the newer Woods of Earhart apartments depress somewhat the median income level of this upscale area, which votes in Ward Two. Children attend King Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

11 & 12: EARHART/CONCORDIA & GEDDES LAKE

Along Glazier Way on Ann Arbor's far eastern side are the heavily wooded Earhart, Earhart West, and Watershed subdivisions and the Geddes Lake co-op town houses. Built on hilly sand and gravel terraces that were shaped 13,000 years ago by streams flowing off the Defiance moraine, these neighborhoods range from contemporary custom-built homes on big lots in natural settings to neatly landscaped townhouses and condominiums. The heavy ground cover shelters a surprising amount of wildlife.

Earhart/Concordia's median household income is approximately $80,000, the third highest in Ann Arbor, reflecting the area's home prices—$250,000 to $525,000 for homes ranging in age from new to twenty years old. The Geddes Lake units, across Huron Parkway from Huron High and due west of Waldenwood, sell for $60,000 to $110,000.

East of Earhart Road, in a wooded, hilly natural setting, are the Earhart Village Condominiums. They were built about twenty years ago in varying floor plans. A clubhouse and pool provide a focal point for residents, many of whom are prominent figures in the city and the U-M. The area is also home to two new luxury condominium complexes—the Heritage Ridge single-unit condos, at Geddes and Huron Parkway, and Ridgemaar Square, just off Earhart Road.

The Watershed subdivision, south of Glazier just west of Watershed Road, features recently built single-family houses and condos. Adjacent Earhart West houses are about ten years old and slightly larger, costing $350,000 and up.

Not surprisingly, given the presence of the Glacier Hills retirement center, 35 percent of Earhart/Concordia's households have residents over age sixty. Both areas are located within Ward Two. Schools are King Elementary, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

Earhart/Concordia: $$$$, CC, R.
Geddes Lake: $$$, CCC, R.

13: GEDDES/ARBORETUM

Once known for its oak and hickory forests atop the Defiance moraine, and now known for its huge, U-M/city-owned park, the Geddes/Arboretum area south of the Huron River is made up of large and stately older homes built in the 1920's and 1930's, along with some modern custom-built houses toward the river, a few fraternity and sorority houses, and some apartment buildings near the university. The majority of the neighbors are longtime residents, with some recently relocated younger families. Geddes/Arboretum is home to many prominent U-M professors.

Houses are priced anywhere from $225,000 to $700,000 or more for the recently built contemporary homes on Riverview. This is one of the half-dozen most affluent neighborhoods in the city. The moderate household income level reflects a shared border with the U-M's Central Campus. Geddes falls within the Second Ward. Schools are Angell Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Huron High.

$$$, C, RR.

14: ANN ARBOR HILLS AREA

This neighborhood includes the whole area west of US-23 and north of Washtenaw up to Geddes Avenue and Huron River Drive. Winding, heavily wooded streets characterize the western portion, located just north and east of Washtenaw Avenue west of its split with Stadium Boulevard. Situated here are the Ann Arbor Hills, Tuomy Hills, and Woodhaven Hills subdivisions. Homes range in price from $200,000 to $600,000. The architecture is varied, and many of the houses sit in isolated splendor on one-third to full acre lots.

Residents describe the neighborhood as friendly and quiet; neighbors are often seen walking along the shaded, winding roads. The maze-like streets are easy to get lost on. The Ann Arbor Hills area is home to a large number of U-M faculty and staff. Although it has a substantial segment of seniors, it has seen an increase in younger families over the last decade. New single-family houses currently under construction will expand Woodhaven Hills farther east on Overridge toward Huron Parkway. Huron Chase is a pricey new 50-unit condominium development just off the parkway itself.

The area east of Huron Parkway includes large older single-family homes along Chalmers and Woodland roads, and the small Thornoaks subdivision, consisting of smaller, custom-built homes constructed in the 1950's and 1960's. Houses in Thornoaks are priced from $160,000 to $230,000.

Ann Arbor Hills is the city's wealthiest neighborhood, with a median household income of approximately $90,000—a little richer than the exclusive Newport area on the city's northwest side. It also is home to many people over age 60, the second-highest percentage in Ann Arbor. Residents vote in the Second Ward. Schools are Angell, Burns Park, and King elementaries, Tappan and Clague middle schools, and Huron High.

$$$$, CC, R.

15 & 16: IVES WOODS & BURNS PARK

An older, established neighborhood, Ives Woods has one of the highest median household incomes in Ann Arbor. Older homes nestled within this neighborhood's tree-lined streets sell for $250,000 to $500,000, and the city's 1992 survey uncovered no renters at all. Many families (37 percent) have children at home. Schools are Burns Park Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Just west of Ives Woods, slightly more modest homes mark the boundary of the Burns Park neighborhood. This neighborhood centers around the park itself, which began in 1890 as the home of the Washtenaw County Agricultural and Horticultural Society's fairgrounds. Moderately expensive single-family homes favored by academics are found in the eastern half, with student rental property dominating the area west of Packard. (On either side of Packard, though, the proportion of student housing drops off sharply as you leave the campus area.) The North Burns Park area, north of Wells to Hill Street, also has a high student presence. Larger fraternity, sorority, and cooperative houses and apartment buildings blend surprisingly well with older houses occupied by longtime residents and families.

Sixty percent of the residents of Burns Park are renters—which probably explains why what many in town think of as a posh faculty ghetto reports a below-average median household income relative to the city as a whole.

Houses in the Burns Park area sell for $110,000 to well over $350,000. Ives Woods lies completely in Ward Three. Burns Park residents vote predominately in Ward Three, but those west of Packard (and a few campus neighborhoods east of Packard) vote in Ward Four. Schools are Burns Park Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

17 & 18: SOUTH UNIVERSITY & CENTRAL CAMPUS/ MEDICAL CAMPUS

A wide range of housing can be found in these student-dominated neighborhoods bordering the U-M's Central and Medical campuses. Generally, these are older neighborhoods, dating back to the late 1800's and early 1900's. In the 1960's, apartment buildings replaced many of the older houses before zoning restrictions effectively ended new construction near campus.

Fifty-five percent of all households in South University are comprised of unrelated adults—the highest percentage in the city. Central Campus/Medical Campus is also a popular student area; the sample from the 1992 survey turned up no home owners at all. The median household income here and in the neighboring Central Campus/Medical Campus neighborhoods is under half the citywide average. The city's 1992 survey of ninety-four households in the two neighborhoods found a median annual household income of just $20,000—the second lowest in the city. The survey also turned up no households with children in the Central Campus/Medical Campus area. The southern half of the South University area is located within Ward Three; the northern half is in Ward Two. The Central and Medical campus areas vote in Ward One, and the households surveyed in those areas didn't include a single person over the age of 60.

few minutes' walk from the Farmers' Market, Zingerman's, and downtown. Longtime residents, who remember when it was poor, polluted, and racially segregated, have trouble seeing what all the fuss is about. For years, this was one of the few areas in town where blacks could buy homes, and it still houses a racially and economically diverse population, including city workers and retirees, U-M faculty and staff, professionals, and an increasing number of young families. Though big new houses and condos are conspicuous on a few of North Central's streets, 75 percent of the households in the last city survey were renters.

Homes in the Old Fourth Ward vary greatly. There are nineteenth-century historic structures along North Division and many superb Victorian houses in the Kingsley area. These are interspersed with the squat brick apartment buildings that replaced many older houses in the 1960's. Today, over 97 percent of the households in the Old Fourth Ward are occupied by renters, mostly U-M students. Both the Old Fourth Ward and the North Central areas are located within the First Ward.

Old Fourth Ward: $, C, RRRR.

North Central: $$, CC, RRRR.

21 & 22: DOWNTOWN & SOUTH CENTRAL

Most of the Downtown area lies on a plain between the Defiance and Fort Wayne moraines. When the Huron-Erie lobe of the Wisconsin glacier was in place 13,000 years ago, the Huron River was diverted to the west and flowed through the center of town toward Saline, leaving a flat lowland area in its path.

The first house in Ann Arbor, built in 1824 by one of the city's founders, Elisha Rumsey, was at the corner of Huron and First streets. As the downtown grew, it—and almost all other housing in the present downtown area—was demolished for commercial construction. It's only in the last decade that rehabbers have begun to rescue a few of the long-vacant upstairs apartments in many downtown commercial buildings. More recently, they have been joined by a significant growth in owner-occupied housing, with construction of the Sloan Plaza condos on Huron and conversion of the Tower Plaza apartments to condos. There is also a handful of condos on top of One North Main. Downtown is also home to quite a few U-M students living in old houses within a few blocks of the State Street edge of campus.

Overall, 60 percent of the area's households contain just one person—the highest percentage among Ann Arbor neighborhoods—and not a single survey respondent in 1992 had children at home.

In the South Central area, toward Hill Street, a bluff descends from the downtown area to Allen's Creek, a tributary (now hidden in a storm sewer) of the Huron River. Across the railroad tracks, the ascent is part of the slope of the Fort Wayne moraine.

South Central is largely student housing: 96 percent of all households rent; 54 percent are shared by unrelated adults; and just 5 percent of the neighborhood households have residents over age 60. Median household income is rising slowly Downtown, while income remains low in the South Central area. The northeast corner of the Downtown area is located in Ward One; the remainder of Downtown votes in Ward Five. The majority of the South Central area is located within Ward Four, but small portions vote in Wards One and Five.

This neighborhood is bounded on the east and west by Main and Seventh streets, and on the north and south by Pauline and Stadium. Although a few houses date to the 1920's and 1930's, most were built after World War II. norm here, and families are fairly common. Allmendinger Park, on Pauline, is a center of activity throughout the year with its softball diamonds, a playground, tennis and basketball courts, and picnic facilities. Its huge groves of lilacs on the perimeter are a special treat in May.

The area is located within the Fourth Ward. Schools are Mack Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, CC, RR.

24: OLD WEST SIDE

The Old West Side's tree-lined streets, particularly near Seventh and Liberty streets, stand on the silty clay soil of the Fort Wayne moraine. As the land slopes down to the east toward Ashley Street, it changes to sand and gravel near where the Huron River once flowed southwest through downtown.

This area, much written about in city histories, has the distinction of being placed on the National Register of Historic Places, not just for its architecture, but for its overall historic character. A few of its houses are over 125 years old and can be seen in photographs taken in the mid-1800's. Most, though, are small Victorians with one or two finely crafted details. Many residents have painstakingly restored their homes, and show them off in an annual homes tour. With its modest yet beautifully individual homes and its tree-lined streets, the Old West Side offers a much sought-after small-town quality.

Part of the charm and character of the Old West Side is the mix of people—students, professionals, families, faculty, and retirees—who live comfortably here in the German-built Victorians, and in some newer two-story colonial and custom-built houses and scattered apartment buildings. Prices run anywhere from $90,000 to $200,000.

The Old West Side, like many Ann Arbor neighborhoods, is seeing an increase in the number of affluent young professional families. The small student presence is concentrated around First Street in small apartment buildings. Owner and rental households are evenly split (the 204-unit Nob Hill apartment complex is unobtrusively integrated into the neighborhood's southern edge).

The Old West Side lies entirely within the boundaries of the Fifth Ward. Schools are Eberwhite and Mack elementaries, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, CC, RRR.

25: WEST PARK/MILLER

In this area, Miller Road starts its ascent onto the Fort Wayne moraine. Part of this hilly terrain is dominated by one of the city's best-known parks, West Park, established in 1910. At manholes in the park, you can hear the gurgle of Allen's Creek as it flows through a storm sewer on its way east toward the Ann Arbor Railroad. Today, 63 percent of households are renters; the remainder own small frame houses that sell for around $85,000 to $140,000.

Thirty-three percent of the area's households are families. Thanks in part to the presence of Miller Manor, the city-owned senior and disabled apartment building that towers over the northern edge of West Park, and the Lurie Terrace senior apartment complex on its south side, 37 percent of households have residents over age 60.

Until the city passed a fair housing ordinance in the 1960's, most of Ann Arbor's black residents were steered to the Miller area and the adjoining North Central neighborhood across the Ann Arbor Railroad tracks. Always racially heterogeneous, in recent years the Miller area has become more economically varied, as low-key young professionals and families found they liked the neighborhood's American small-town look and neighborly sociability.

This neighborhood includes precincts in wards One and Five. Schools are Mack Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, C, RRR.

26: MACK SCHOOL/SUNSET

Houses come in all sizes and shapes in this immensely varied neighborhood: big nineteenth- and early twentieth-century houses, modest ranches, and even prefab steel Lustron homes can be found in the area south of Sunset and east of Newport; prices start at $100,000. Secluded, custom-built contemporary houses north of Sunset cost $160,000 to $200,000 and up.

The neighborhood is marked by the impressive hills of the Fort Wayne moraine. Hunt Park at Spring Street and Sunset offers a splendid view of the downtown area. Another notable landmark is the city's water treatment plant, high on a hill on the south side of Sunset near Newport Road, which pumps water from the Huron River at Barton Pond to Ann Arbor residents. This is the city's highest point.

Mack School/Sunset is comprised mostly of owner-occupied households. It is located in Wards One and Five. Schools are Mack and Wines elementaries, Forsythe and Slauson middle schools, and Pioneer High.

$$$, CCC, R.

27: NEWPORT

On the city's far northwest side, the spacious Newport area offers custom-built single-family colonials, ranches, and condominiums in an almost rural setting bounded by the Huron River on the north and east. Developed on former farmlands, these affluent subdivisions are dominated by family-minded professionals and business executives. Median income for this neighborhood is the second highest in the city.

The Newport West Condominiums are off Newport just north of M-14 and adjacent to Bird Hills Park. Farther down Newport Road just north of Bird Road is the new Newport Hills subdivision, which when completed will include 73 single-family dwellings. Still farther down Newport Road, near the Huron River, is the posh River Ridge subdivision. One-of-a-kind homes, set back off winding streets, sell for $230,000 to over $400,000. Large custom-built homes along Blueberry Lane and west of Newport are comparably priced.

Renters are rare to nonexistent in Newport, which has a median household income of approximately $85,000. This neighborhood lies within the First Ward. Schools are Wines Elementary, Forsythe Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$$$, CC, R.

28 & 29: GARDEN HOMES/ CRESCENT & HAISLEY/ VETERANS PARK

These neighborhoods in the Miller, Jackson, and Stadium/Maple area are dominated by moderately priced ranches, Cape Cods, and small colonials. Some are less than ten years old; others have been around for half a century.

Garden Homes' bi-level and ranch houses are in the $90,000 to $110,000 price range. The Martin Acres subdivision, within the Hatcher-Saunders Crescent loop, has ranches and tri-levels for $90,000 to $130,000. Home owners make up 86 percent of this neighborhood's households. Residents vote in the Fifth Ward. Schools are Wines Elementary, Forsythe Middle School, and Pioneer High.

The Haisley area ranches, like those in Garden Homes, cost between $80,000 and $110,000. In the nearby Wildwood area between Dexter and Miller roads, two-story traditional houses sell for $110,000 to $150,000. Median income here is just above the city's average of approximately $45,000.

The Haisley neighborhood is within the Fifth Ward. Schools are Haisley and Mack elementaries, Slauson and Forsythe middle schools, and Pioneer High.

Haisley/Veterans Park: $$$, CC, RR.

30 & 31: VIRGINIA PARK & WINEWOOD/THALER

Between Jackson and Liberty from Crest Street west to Stadium, homes go from old to relatively new in a fairly steady progression on the slightly rolling crest of the Fort Wayne moraine. The transformation recapitulates the west side's gradual expansion away from the downtown core. Virginia Park is the eastern and older section, running from Crest to Glendale; Winewood/Thaler continues west from there to Stadium, where its western edge is lined with small commercial buildings.

The Virginia Park area has many two-family duplexes, particularly on Bemidji Street. Most were built in the 1960's and sell for about $120,000 to $150,000. The newly constructed duplexes at the south end of Glendale start at $110,000. There are also older single-family homes and Cape Cods in this area that are priced from $90,000 to $160,000. Sixty-three percent of Virginia Park's households own their own homes.

In the city's 1990 survey, 62 percent of Winewood/Thaler's households were renters. (The 75-unit Charlton and 120-unit Westwood apartment complexes are in this neighborhood, and many of the smaller houses in the neighborhood are also rented out.) Starter homes, ranches, and Cape Cods, along with a small

How to Choose a REALTOR®

When buying or selling a home, you need a skilled person to help. How can you find the best one for you? Someone to trust, whose integrity and ethics are beyond question. A person you can really communicate with, in the initial stages and later when in serious negotiations. Someone with expertise in the task.

I suggest that you evaluate Realtors® for yourself—no one else can look out for your interests. Interview several agents before choosing one to work with exclusively. Some questions to ask:

How long have you been in the business? Do you work full-time, year-round in real estate? Are you a member of the Ann Arbor Area Board of Realtors®? (This group provides the only access to the Multiple Listing Service.)

What is your specialty? What geographic area? Are there any kinds of transactions you prefer not to deal with? Do you make referrals to other Realtors® who specialize in such matters?

Is there teamwork in the company? Will other agents help in an emergency—when you are away for a few hours or days? Do you inform each buyer of all appropriate homes, so that both buyer and seller have the best chance of connecting? Or are buyers pressured to select only from your company's listings (which makes more profit for the company, but doesn't serve the seller or the buyer)?

Is there real communication with the agent? Does he/she really listen to you, or just give speeches? Is there empathy with your needs, wants, and lifestyle?

Other considerations may be important to you. We can discuss them and decide whether to work with each other, or perhaps I can refer you to a trusted colleague. Please do not hesitate to call on me today.

32: EBERWHITE WOODS

Named for Eber White, an early farmer in the area who helped fugitive slaves escape to Canada, Eberwhite Woods is one of the loveliest neighborhoods on the west side of town. It's made up of several small subdivisions, along with rental property in the Pauline-Arbordale-Northwood area.

Most of the houses in this area were built between 1915 and 1935. Rolling tree-lined streets are showcases for a variety of two-story traditionals. The smaller houses, which are rarely available, are priced around $110,000; larger ones sell for up to $190,000.

Dover Parkside, a subdivision along Dartmoor Street, was built in the 1960's by George Airey, who also developed subdivisions in the Dicken neighborhood. Just west of Dover Parkside, south of Liberty and east of Stadium, are the new Ridgewood condominiums. Houses sell in the $140,000 to $200,000 range.

Eighty-two percent of the Eberwhite Woods households are home owners; 26 percent are seniors; and 36 percent have children at home. This neighborhood lies completely within Ward Five. Schools are Eberwhite Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$$, CCC , R.

33 & 34: PAULINE/STADIUM & DICKEN

This flat area at the base of the Fort Wayne moraine was farmed up into the early part of this century. Today, it is dotted with heavily landscaped subdivisions and a sprinkling of wooded areas near Pioneer High School and Greenview Park.

Most of the houses in the Pauline/Stadium neighborhood were built in the 1950's and 1960's. Ranches sell for $105,000 to $135,000 and colonials in the Meadowbrook Avenue area cost $150,000 to $160,000. There are two good-sized rental complexes in this neighborhood—Stadium and Wyndham Hill apartments.

Families constitute 51 percent of the Pauline/Stadium households. Median income is slightly lower than the city's average. Schools for the Pauline/Stadium neighborhood are Eberwhite Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Across Stadium to the southwest, in the family-oriented Dicken/Vernon Downs area, 94 percent of the residents own their homes. Houses vary from 25-year-old ranches like those on Norfolk and Suffolk to the spacious ranches and two-story colonials in the Barnard Heights subdivision near Dicken School. The smaller ranches, many constructed by builder George Airey, start at $95,000; prices in the area range up to $165,000. Median income is considerably higher than in nearby Pauline/Stadium, partly owing to Dicken's lack of apartment buildings. Dicken has Ann Arbor's third-largest number of households with persons over age 60 (41 percent). Both neighborhoods are in the Fourth Ward. Schools are Dicken and Lawton elementaries, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Pauline/Stadium: $$, C, RR.

Dicken: $$$, CC, R.

35: SOUTH MAPLE

Located on the city's far west side, just east of I-94, this area is dominated by condominiums and apartment complexes concentrated in a dense cluster around the intersection of Pauline and Maple. Walden Hills, a recent condominium conversion, is just north of Pauline and west of Maple. Across the road, a newer complex of contemporary condominiums on Pauline Court is set back behind a berm that makes the units barely visible from the road. Also off Pauline are the Park Place and adjacent Hillcrest apartments. Across South Maple, from the east, are the 167-unit Surrey Park apartments, the Pine Lake Village Cooperative, and the South Maple public housing project. Country Village, west of I-94 near the High Point Center, is a new development that has added 22 single-family homes to the area.

This area is in the Fifth Ward. Elementary schoolchildren in the Pine Lake Village co-op are bused to Lawton School. Otherwise, schools are Dicken Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, CC, RRR.

36: LAKEWOOD

The city of Ann Arbor's westernmost subdivision is bounded by I-94, Liberty Road, and Wagner Road. Near the Fort Wayne moraine, overlooking the kettle-hole lakes of Dolph Park, the Lakewood neighborhood has a rare blend of residents—both professionals and blue-collar workers.

Older colonials and newer custom-built tri-levels and ranches (some built in the 1920's), border the wooded areas near First and Second Sister lakes; they sell in the $90,000 to $230,000 range. Smaller ranches that went up in the 1940's, 1950's, and 1960's start at $100,000. The recently constructed 180-unit Liberty Pointe condominiums are just west of I-94 on Liberty. Newly built homes in the Liberty Glen subdivision range from $160,000 to $220,000.

Lakewood is home to a number of U-M faculty and staff as well as retired people. Families are common in this neighborhood: 84 percent of the households surveyed in 1992 were families, and 31 percent had children at home. Lakewood neighborhood is located within Ward Five. Schools are Dicken Elementary,

37: LANSDOWNE

The Lansdowne subdivision sits on slightly rolling terrain on either side of Seventh Street south of Scio Church Road. Its meticulously kept lawns and large, modern homes make it Ann Arbor's model of a classic suburb. Some newer streets still have the characteristic openness of a new suburb, but others are now lined with mature trees.

Lansdowne's families tend to be older than their neighbors in the nearby Churchill Downs and Meadowbrook subdivisions. Houses are generally about 25 years old, although some date back to the mid-1960's and a few are newer. They vary from ranches, colonials, and tri-levels to traditionals, with prices ranging from $170,000 to $350,000 or more.

The Churchill Downs subdivision is west of Lansdowne and is made up of slightly newer and less expensive single-family ranch, colonial, and tri-level houses in the $130,000 to $180,000 price range. Like Lansdowne, it is popular with families.

The Meadowbrook Village apartments and Meadowbrook subdivision, built in the mid-1980's, are located on the west side of Ann Arbor-Saline Road just north of I-94. The houses are single-family bi-levels and ranches priced from $110,000 to $140,000. Occupants range from retirees to young families. The Meadowbrook apartments feature unusual floor plans designed for unrelated people who live together: in two-bedroom units, both bedrooms have adjoining baths, and they sit at opposite ends of the apartment with common living areas in between.

Home owners dominate the neighborhood's demographics (78 percent home owners) and many families have children at home. Lansdowne residents vote in the Fourth Ward. Schools are Lawton Elementary, Slauson Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$$$, CCC, R.

38 & 39: HIDDEN VALLEY & BOARDWALK

These neighborhoods, just north and east of Briarwood, have only a smattering of houses off Main Street, on Valhalla near Scio Church and on Golfview past Ann Arbor-Saline Road. Housing here is dominated by the 324-unit Hidden Valley apartment complex on South State and, off South Main, the 108-unit Burlington Woods complex (which includes apartments and townhouses) and the luxurious new 208-unit Harbor House apartments.

In the city's last household survey, 100 percent of the households were renters, 57 percent were single-person households, and only 3 percent had children. Median income was slightly below the city average. The Hidden Valley and the Boardwalk neighborhoods are located within the Fourth Ward. Schools are Pattengill and Bryant Elementaries, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, C, RRRR.

40 & 51: CRANBROOK & BRIARWOOD

These neighboring areas were once dense woods and open fields. Since Briarwood's completion in 1973, they have been transformed into a profusion of commercial, office, and residential developments.

As recently as 1986, Cranbrook Tower for seniors was the only housing in this area. But the construction in 1987 of the roughly 300 apartments and townhouses in Woodland Meadows, located at the corner of Main Street and Ann Arbor-Saline Road, marked the beginning of an apartment boom in the neighborhood. Four more large residential projects followed, most recently the 139-unit Brookhaven Manor luxury senior development. In all, the area added well over 1,000 apartments, including the luxurious Signature Villas and Briar Cove apartments. It's now adding single-family units as well with the 140-unit Oakbrook Condominiums between Ann Arbor-Saline Road and Main Street.

Two percent of the area residents questioned in the city's 1992 Household Survey were home owners, and 63 percent of households had at least one resident over age 60, the highest in the city. Both the Cranbrook and the Briarwood neighborhoods are located within Ward Four. Schools are Pattengill and Bryant elementaries, Slauson and Tappan middle schools, and Pioneer High.

Cranbrook: $$, CC, RRRR.

Briarwood: $$, C, RRRR.

41: WOODBURY GARDENS/ROSEWOOD/JEWETT

Moderately priced houses built in the 1940's and 1950's are mixed here with modern apartments. The Woodbury Gardens complex features a clubhouse and one-, two-, and three-bedroom apartments and townhouses. The complex takes its name from the U-M Botanical Gardens, which were located in the Stadium/Iroquois area from 1915 until their move to Dixboro Road in 1959.

This area's western border along South Industrial is home to numerous small commercial and industrial businesses that spill over onto the western portions of Rosewood and Jewett streets. Along the eastern ends of the tree-lined streets there are single-family ranches and small Cape Cods that sell for $70,000 to $110,000.

Seventy percent of households are renters, and 25 percent have children at home. The neighborhood falls within the Fourth Ward. Schools are Bryant/Pattengill and Burns Park elementaries (the latter for Iroquois Place residents only), Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.

$$, CC, RRR.

42: GEORGETOWN/PINE VALLEY

These two subdivisions are southwest of Packard Road and stretch across Eisenhower Parkway all the way to I-94. Single-family houses in these areas are a mix of tri-levels, ranches, colonials, and Cape Cods.

The ranch houses that dominate the Pine Valley neighborhood northeast of the Georgetown shopping center are priced from $120,000 to $200,000. Georgetown's homes, to the southwest, are somewhat larger and sell for $120,000 to $200,000. The 164-unit Pine Valley apartments and townhouses and the 168-unit Spruce Knob apartments are also located in this neighborhood.

Sixty-three percent of these households are owner-occupied, 62 percent are families, and 33 percent have children at home. Schools are Pattengill and Bryant elementaries, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High. Twenty-three percent of the residents are over age 60. Median household income is above the city average, despite the presence of the large apartment complexes.

Both Georgetown and Pine Valley subdivisions have winding, tree-lined streets. Georgetown has the advantage of a semi-private golf course, a private pool, and a tennis court. Functioning as Georgetown's social hub, the country club heightens the neighborhood's strong sense of cohesiveness; many residents feel that Georgetown is one of the most social neighborhoods in Ann Arbor. This area lies in the Fourth Ward.

what was once prime farmland, are a number of neighborhoods built shortly after World War II and on into the 1950's and 1960's.

The Pattengill/St. Francis neighborhood is fairly evenly divided between renters and home owners in the Arbor Hills apartments and the Ann Arbor Woods apartments and subdivision. The older and smaller bi-level and ranch houses in this area start at $110,000, with newly constructed houses selling for as much as $350,000. The Nature Cove condominiums are located on St. Francis Street. In the 1992 household survey, median household income was just above the citywide average.

In Kimberly Hills, 71 percent of the households own their residences. Eighty-three percent are families, and 44 percent have children at home. Retirees live in 18 percent of the households surveyed. New and old houses of varying architecture occupy tree-lined streets. Older homes are in the $150,000 to $225,000 price range. Nearby, a 134-unit upscale apartment complex, the Ponds at Georgetown, was recently constructed across Packard Road from the Georgetown shopping center. Hearthstone, a new 65-unit subdivision, is currently under construction east of Packard off Gladstone. These homes run from about $200,000 to $250,000.

Both neighborhoods are located within the Third Ward. Schools are Bryant/Pattengill elementaries, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High, except that children living on Manchester and Colony attend Allen Elementary and Huron High.

45: ALLEN SCHOOL/BUHR PARK

This neighborhood is bounded by Packard on the south, Platt Road and Huron Parkway on the east, Washtenaw to the north, and Manchester to the west. It is the home of Buhr Park, with its much-used swimming pool and ice rink, and Cobblestone Farm.

Houses, which are generally on gently rolling terrain, range from tiny brick-trimmed frame ranches built after World War II ($80,000 to $125,000) to large colonials and tri-levels built in the 1960's that can sell for as much as $160,000.

The Allen School/Buhr Park neighborhood lies in the Third Ward. Families are numerous. Schools are Allen Elementary, Tappan Middle School, and Huron High.

$$$ CC, R.

46: FORESTBROOKE/ PITTSFIELD VILLAGE

This heavily settled neighborhood is bordered by Huron Parkway and Platt Road on the west and Packard on the south. The northern Washtenaw Avenue border is packed with commercial businesses, with US-23 marking the eastern edge.

The two-, three-, and four-bedroom townhouses along and off of Pittsfield Boulevard were built in 1943 as a self-contained new rural village. McKinley Properties took over the 422-unit complex in 1986, fixed up the aging units, and simplified its name from Pittsfield Village to The Village. McKinley is in the process of selling off units to individual owners as "market rate co-ops."

West of Pittsfield on the streets between Platt and Parkwood is the Darlington subdivision. Small starter homes (Cape Cods, ranches, colonials), some of them 50 years old, sell in the $65,000 to $100,000 range. Forestbrooke, built in the 1960's east of Pittsfield, has a mixture of ranches, colonials, Cape Cods, and tri-levels going for $90,000 to $135,000. The many children in the area enjoy a neighborhood pool and swim club.

Recent city surveys have shown a strong shift toward home ownership here as the Village Townhomes sell off. Fully 80 percent of residents are now home owners. This neighborhood lies in the Third Ward. Schools are Pittsfield Elementary, Scarlett Middle School, and Huron High.

Greenview Dr. in Dicken (34)

$$, CC, R.

47 & 48: BROWN PARK & SCARLETT/MITCHELL

Young families find this area on the far southeast side of town appealing: the prices are right, and shopping and schools are nearby. Small three-bedroom ranches in both areas, built in the 1950's and 1960's, range in price from $65,000 to $100,000. A few two-story colonials in the Scarlett/Mitchell area, built in the 1960's, cost between $70,000 and $150,000.

The Brown Park area has a slightly higher percentage of renters (59 percent) than the Scarlett/Mitchell area (52 percent). The difference is due to the 281-unit Mill Creek Townhouses on Birch Hollow east of Stone School Road, and the 112-unit Homestead Commons apartments off Eisenhower near Packard Road. However, Scarlett/Mitchell's home ownership is rising fast as buyers snap up bargain-priced homes ($105,000 to $130,000) in the 210-home Turnberry subdivision on Packard Road just west of US-23.

In the Scarlett/Mitchell area, the Colonial Square Cooperative, on Wolverine and Williamsburg off Platt Road, offers rental townhouse units that are shared by both professionals and blue-collar workers. Colonial Square has a higher initial member buy-in fee than most other co-ops in town, but it also has the lowest rents. With one-bedroom units renting for under $200, it's no surprise that this close-knit co-op has a long waiting list.

Both neighborhoods sport large numbers of families and a moderate contingent of children. Median household income is below the city-wide average in both neighborhoods.

Scarlett/Mitchell and Brown Park are both located within Ward Three. Schools are Mitchell Elementary, Scarlett Middle School, and Huron and Pioneer high schools.

Brown Park: $$$, CCC, RRR.

Scarlett/Mitchell: $$, CCCC, RRR.

49: BRYANT

The Bryant neighborhood, just off Ellsworth and Stone School roads, is built on open and slightly rolling terrain, with young trees taking hold on many of the streets. The neighborhood is almost entirely made up of the Arbor Oaks subdivision along Champagne off Stone School Road and the Forest Hills and University Townhouses co-ops that sit north of Ellsworth Road between Stone School and Platt roads. All three developments were built in the late 1960's and early 1970's as federally supported low-cost housing. Arbor Oaks houses are small two- and three-bedroom ranches, most without basements, that sell for $40,000 to $65,000, making them the least expensive single-family homes in the city. Median household income is low for Ann Arbor, approximately $33,000 in 1992.

The city's third-highest concentration of children is found here: 57 percent of the surveyed households have children at home. The Bryant neighborhood lies in the Third Ward. Schools are Bryant/Pattengill elementaries (Braeburn Circle children are bused to Allen Elementary), Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High.
$$, CCCC, RRRR.

50: RESEARCH PARK/PHEASANT RUN

The Research Park/Pheasant Run neighborhood lies across Stone School Road from the Bryant neighborhood. It is an intensely research- and commercial-oriented area, with a single residential complex. The 472-unit Pheasant Run apartments, just south of I-94, house 100 percent of the neighborhood's residents. Median income is a little below average and schools are Bryant/Pattengill elementaries, Tappan Middle School, and Pioneer High. Research Park/Pheasant Run is located in the Fourth Ward.
$$, C, RRRR.

51: (SEE 40)

52: ABBOT SCHOOL

This neighborhood lies on the far west side of town in the V-shaped area formed where M-14 and I-94 converge; Maple Road is its eastern edge. It includes the north end of the Stadium/Maple commercial strip, older homes south of Dexter Road, and the Hollywood Park subdivision to the north.

In Hollywood Park, off Maple along Hollywood and Sequoia Parkway, most of the houses are single-family two-story colonials, Cape Cods, ranches, and tri-levels, costing between $100,000 and $150,000. Farther west, out Dexter Road, houses come in a variety of ages and styles and sell for $70,000 to $150,000. South of Dexter Road just east of I-94 is the recently completed 168-unit Arbor Landings apartment complex. The Kelly Green condominiums are on Miller Road just east of M-14.

The Abbot School neighborhood is largely occupied by families—66 percent in the most recent survey. This neighborhood lies within

The Suburbs

Ann Arbor is still the demographic giant of Washtenaw County. With 109,592 residents in the 1990 census, it's home to 39 percent of the county's population. But growth is spilling over the freeway loop that marks the city's political boundary, and its dominance will inevitably dwindle as the county enters the twenty-first century. Already, the fastest population growth is occurring in nascent suburbs beyond the city. While the number of Ann Arbor residents increased minimally in the 1980's, the once wide-open townships surrounding the city have skyrocketed in population: between the 1980 and 1990 censuses, Pittsfield Township's population rose 36 percent. For Ann Arbor Township the figure was 38 percent, and for Scio Township the gain was a whopping 70 percent. Other nearby townships have experienced similar gains.

ANN ARBOR TOWNSHIP/ WESTERN SUPERIOR TOWNSHIP

These areas north and northeast of the city are thinly settled with expensive homes on large, semi-rural lots. That low-density development seems to suit existing residents just fine, but it's by no means clear that they can indefinitely resist pressures for more intense settlement, given their proximity to freeway access and to the burgeoning western Wayne County suburbs of Detroit. Ann Arbor Township is already home to two huge office parks on Plymouth Road west of Dixboro: the Ann Arbor Technology Park and Domino's Farms, the sprawling, Frank Lloyd Wright-influenced headquarters of Domino's Pizza. Development of expensive single-family homes remains very active in this area.

The 100-home Tanglewood community is located near the split between Plymouth and Ford roads. Recently built multi-story contemporary dwellings there sell in the $250,000 to $650,000 range. The nearby hamlet of Dixboro has a small core of historic homes; they rarely come on the market, but one that did in 1993 sold for around $110,000. Smaller and newer Cape Cods on Dixboro's side streets sell for about $115,000.

South of Dixboro Road and the tech park are three major new residential developments. Laurel Gardens is a luxury condo development with units in several different sizes including some two-story spaces. Farther south, near the intersection of Dixboro and Geddes roads, are the Arbors condominium project and the large Village Green luxury apartment complex.

Off Geddes Road, private drives wind away to the carefully isolated riverfront retreats of the wealthy. The new Towsley Farms development abuts Geddes Road itself, with homes in the $480,000 range. Geddes Glen, a new subdivision of luxury homes, offers units starting at $500,000. Farther north, off Gale Road, is the retreat-like Matthaei Farm development, with homes starting at $300,000; building sites are also available.

Schools for this area are Logan and King elementaries, Clague Middle School, and Huron High.

PITTSFIELD AND LODI TOWNSHIPS

South of Ann Arbor, the Briarwood area boom is moving out into Pittsfield Township. Big office parks have sprung up on State Road south of I-94, while the Ann Arbor-Saline Road-I-94 intersection has become a major retail area. South of I-94 off Oak Valley Drive, a new road connecting Scio Church and Ellsworth roads, lie the Oak Meadows and Weatherstone condominiums and the sizable colonial homes of the Briar Hill subdivision, which run from $190,000 to $365,000. The 168-unit Valley Ranch apartments are farther east on Oak Valley.

South on Lohr, past Ellsworth, is the massive new Stonebridge golf course and housing development. Plans call for 711 detached condominiums and single-family homes in this one-square-mile area. Prices for the condominiums start at $189,000; prices for the homes start at $260,000. Many of the sites back up to the golf course. Construction started in 1991 and is scheduled to continue through 1998. Two small developments are under way off Waters Road west of Ann Arbor-Saline Road, and more major projects are in the works between Ann Arbor and Saline.

Farther west in Pittsfield and neighboring Lodi townships, settlement remains sparse. Dotted with ranch houses and the occasional horse farm, the dirt roads in this part of the county look much the way they did two or three decades ago.

Large areas of Pittsfield and Lodi townships are served by the Saline school district. Children in the new Stonebridge development, which lies right on the line dividing the Ann Arbor and Saline districts, attend Ann Arbor schools. Those students living in western Pittsfield (west of US-23) and Lodi townships who attend Ann Arbor schools are assigned to Lawton and Bryant elementaries, Slauson and Tappan middle schools, and Pioneer High.

is rapidly filling in with mostly modestly priced housing and apartment complexes. This area has become a sort of bedroom community for an increasingly hard-to-afford Ann Arbor, as well as Ypsilanti and points east. Saline Meadows, on Michigan Avenue west of US-23, is a recently finished 148-lot mobile home park for would-be home owners on a budget. The 122-lot Coachville trailer park is located on Carpenter Road just south of Packard. Both parks have a fairly high turnover rate, making lots available on a regular basis.

The subdivision near Golfside and Ellsworth roads is composed mostly of small ranches, with a few large new houses mixed in. Prices range from $120,000 to $180,000. Homes along Golfside Road overlook the Washtenaw Country Club golf course. The new University Palisades subdivision off Ellsworth between Carpenter and Golfside roads offers ranches, colonials, and split-colonials, priced from about $170,000 to $200,000.

The Carpenter School neighborhood between Washtenaw Avenue and Packard Road east of Carpenter Road was one of the first parts of this area to be built up after World War II. The homes are mostly small frame structures and ranches that sell for $100,000 to $120,000. Farther south and east are smaller new developments and many apartment buildings.

Elementary schoolchildren are bused to Carpenter, Angell, Mitchell, Allen, and Pittsfield schools. The middle school is Scarlett; the high school is Huron.

SCIO TOWNSHIP

This township directly west of Ann Arbor is bisected by Jackson Road, a fast-growing industrial and retail corridor. North of Jackson Road, major development is centered in the heavily rolling terrain near the Huron River. The River Pines and Timberwood subdivisions off Huron River Drive near Wagner Road include many homes that have sold for upwards of $300,000. Away from the river, the Parkridge Estates project, under construction off Wagner Road north of Miller, will include homes in the same price range. South of Miller on Wagner, homes in the new Scio Hills development sell for $215,000 to $290,000.

Older semi-rural subdivisions and individual houses are clustered on or near Dexter and Miller roads. These are mostly 15 to 25 years old and come in a wide variety of sizes, styles, and prices.

Scio's southern half is less thickly settled. Individual developments dot the landscape, often situated atop one of the rolling hills that cover the area. The Uplands of Scio Ridge, off Wagner Road north of Scio Church Road, includes homes from $210,000 to about $375,000; lots are also available. Two more major projects are Saginaw Hills, on Liberty Road west of Wagner Road, and Saginaw Green, off Park Road near Zeeb. Farther out, Scio's still-numerous dirt roads are dotted with individual country houses, large and small.

The Parkwood condos, on Zeeb Road between Jackson and Park, sell for about $150,000 to $180,000. Smaller housing complexes (some with small older homes under $100,000) line Jackson Road, interspersed with strip centers and light industrial buildings. A major reservoir of affordable housing is Scio Farms Estates, a mobile home park off Jackson Road. All 853 lots were quickly filled after it opened in 1986. Homes resell at $25,000 to $65,000, and lot rents start at $255 a month.

Elementary schools for northern Scio Township are Abbot and Wines; students living south of I-94 attend Lawton. Middle schools are Forsythe and Slauson and the high school is Pioneer.

BARTON HILLS/ NORTHFIELD TOWNSHIP

Barton Hills, an enclave of 135 households on the north shore of the Huron River, is the most exclusive and expensive community in the Ann Arbor area. Thanks to its secluded location and semi-private legal structure, it stays out of sight and largely out of mind for most Ann Arborites.

Barton Hills was originally planned as a preserve of executive mansions by Detroit Edison, which in the 1920's laid out the beginnings of the community on land it owned north of Barton Dam. Today, Barton Hills is legally a village, but its streets and shared facilities are owned by a private home owners' association. As a result, Barton Hills is legally off-limits to outsiders; large signs at the village entrance on Whitmore Lake Road announce "no thoroughfare." Those with business in the village may enter, and membership in the magnificent Barton Hills Country Club is open to anyone with money to join. Those who opt for a social membership (which does not include golf course privileges) face a very short waiting list; a full residential membership involves a one-year wait.

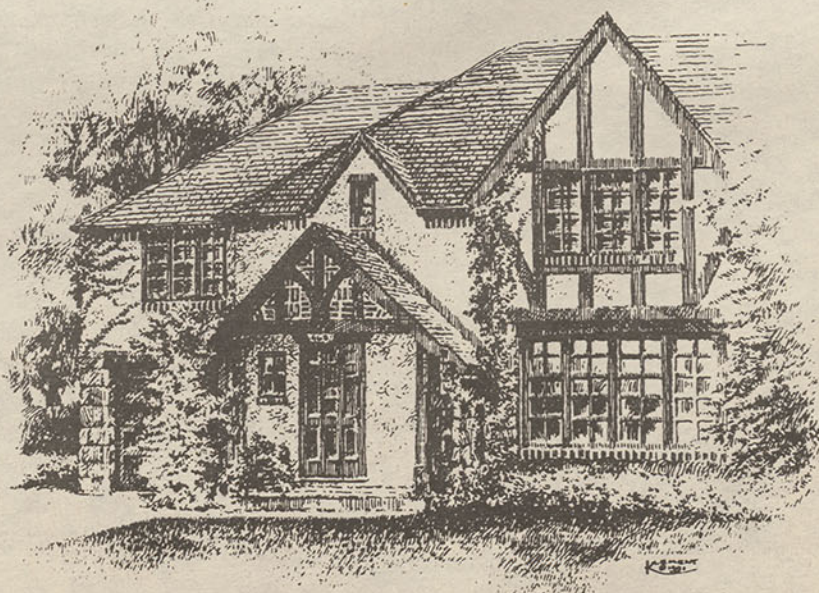

Most of the village's formidable mansions, often in the English Tudor and cottage styles, were constructed during the 1930's. Architect-designed modernist showpieces from the 1950's and 1960's are also common, and a small amount of construction continues even today. The heavily wooded lots are several acres each. Home prices range from $300,000 to $800,000.

Despite their close proximity to downtown Ann Arbor, the portions of Northfield and southern Webster townships north and west of Barton Hills have long resisted development. But as the northern reaches of the city fill in, back roads here are increasingly dotted with large new homes. Older housing here for the most part is limited to farmhouses. Only a small number of these remain in the Ann Arbor school district, and they tend to turn over quickly when they do become available.

Schools for Barton Hills and the northern townships are Wines Elementary, Forsythe Middle School, and Pioneer High.

Ann Arbor Apartment Complexes

Apartment Guide

Rents and amenities at 110 apartment complexes. Complexes are grouped by location: central or outlying (see map above). The central area is considered to be within walking distance of either downtown or the U-M Main or Athletic Campuses.

Rents are current as of mid-1993. Year of construction is noted when available, and whether units are furnished (F) or unfurnished (U). Apartment complexes that allow pets are noted. Landlords often charge an additional fee for pets, either in the form of a security deposit or a monthly surcharge.

To locate a complex on this map, use the number and coordinates at the end of each listing. For example, the notation 1, E4 at the end of the listing for Arbor Valley Apartments indicates that the complex is number 1 on the map and is located at the intersection of column E and row 4.

Child Care Programs

The child care centers in this listing have been approved and licensed by the Michigan Department of Social Services (Washtenaw County). The Child Care Network (761-6040) maintains a current list. Ann Arbor also has approximately 350 smaller licensed day care homes, most caring for six or fewer children.

All of the public elementary schools in Ann Arbor offer before- and/or after-school care for children in grades K-5; for information and locations, contact individual elementaries. Private schools that offer extended care before or after school are noted in the list above. For children ages 3-26 with developmental and physical disabilities there is an after-school program at High Point Center, 1819 Wagner Rd. Call Hasana Abdullah or Mary Brady at 994-8100, ext. 1699, between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The child care section has three parts. The first section lists community resources to help parents locate appropriate child care facilities. The second section lists child care centers offering full-time care. The third section lists centers offering only part-time care (including co-op nurseries). Costs for full-time care centers are for a three-year-old child attending the center for a full day, Monday through Friday. This figure represents the average cost of care at most Ann Arbor centers. Costs for younger children are usually higher; costs for older children are usually lower. Part-time centers and co-op prices are less standardized, reflecting each center's specific program. All centers take applications at any time, unless otherwise noted.

To locate a child care center on the map on p. 69, use the number and coordinates at the end of each listing. For example, the notation 49, G6 at the end of the listing for Ann Arbor Hills Child Development Center indicates that the center is represented by the number 49 on the map and is located at the intersection of column G and row 6.

Bach teacher Joan Goldsmith

Almost everyone in Joan Goldsmith's open classroom at Bach Elementary School is busy: a little girl is doing math problems on the room's one computer, two boys are playing chess, four children are at a child-sized table writing stories. But one boy forlornly approaches Mrs. Goldsmith, a porcelain-complexioned woman with cornflower-blue eyes, to tell her that, though Activity Time is almost over, he hasn't been able to play the game "Sorry."

"Well, Gabe, I can't get your time back," the veteran teacher says, reasonably. "How did you use your time?" The two have a brief but earnest discussion about how he might do things differently next time.

Taking children's concerns seriously—and insisting that they do the same—is part of Joan Goldsmith's teaching philosophy. She has worked with the peanut butter and jelly set for more than forty years, mostly in alternative or "open" classrooms.

An unflamboyant free spirit, Goldsmith is devoted to Bach's highly individualized approach. Open ed emphasizes children learning at their own speed with the teacher acting "more as a facilitator rather than as a lecturer," says Goldsmith. Other distinctions include a multi-age classroom (hers includes children ages five to seven); hands-on projects (using blocks, not worksheets, to learn to count); and allowing children to make decisions about their own education.

Goldsmith's relaxed confidence in her children's ability to learn "takes a lot of the anxiety out of the process," says Bach parent Christine Lux. Lux's daughter, nine-year-old Laura Lux-Wells, a Goldsmith graduate, reports, "She doesn't yell at the kids."

But there is a teacher-imposed structure in open schooling, says Goldsmith. Her students, for example, can decide when to work on writing, math, reading, or other activities. But they have to do them all eventually. "These children have learned what their responsibilities are," she says. "I can say, 'Have you done your writing?' and they know that's something they have to do during the day."

Still, the setup allows a lot of flexibility. When a little boy tells Goldsmith he wants to write stories all day, she answers, "Just make this a writing day."

Goldsmith's work at Bach is a far cry from her own student days in a staunchly traditional elementary school in her hometown of Coalgate, Oklahoma (population 2,000). "You weren't allowed to talk in class," she recalls. All students had to do the same assignments at the same time, and "when you finished your work you would have to sit there" until the rest of the class caught up.

At Michigan State, Goldsmith majored in music therapy. Very reluctantly, she switched to elementary education when she decided to get married, figuring that it was more practical. "I was not a born teacher," she says. "I don't like to tell people what to do."

It was "pure luck," Goldsmith says, that her first teaching job was at what was then called a "progressive" school in East Lansing. Since then, apart from the year she took off to stay at home with her daughter, she's been in the classroom. She has taught at various schools in southeastern Michigan. Although a couple of them were quite conventional, she managed to be subversive in a low-key way: given stacks of math and writing workbooks, she dutifully distributed them to the children but rarely used them. To survive as an alternative teacher, she says with wry humor, "you have to be a pretty good politician."

Life was easier when Goldsmith began teaching in Ann Arbor in 1970. She taught in what were called "informal" classrooms at Bach, Pattengill, and Northside, then returned to Bach in 1986 when, in response to intensive lobbying by parents, it was designated an Open School. It's currently riding a wave of popularity: some 450 students were on the waiting list for the fall of 1993.

Goldsmith has a veteran teacher's recall: when I mention the family name of one former student, now twenty-one, who asked about her, she responds instantly, "Lisa. Big blue eyes." For their part, the thing many former students remember most vividly is "Bumble Boogie" cleanup; Goldsmith plays a jazzy song on the piano while the children rush around putting away their things.

To other Bach teachers, Goldsmith, sixty-six, is "the ongoing spirit of open education," says Bach principal JoAnn Okey. Goldsmith is modest about her work, Okey says, but not about her students. "She takes such joy in her kids. When she looks at her kids, she doesn't define them by their deficits. She sees their strengths."

Health Care

Providing health care to the uninsured will be the political issue of 1994. While insurers, doctors, and other health care providers negotiate with the Clinton administration over the specifics, hospitals are gearing up for an inevitable change. Already the University of Michigan Hospitals and the Catherine McAuley Health System, parent of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, are building the comprehensive, integrated health networks needed to provide the kind of community-based managed care the Clinton administration favors. One result is that the hospitals are now positioned to take on traditional medical insurers in the competition for medical insurance dollars.

Care Choices-Michigan (the health maintenance organization run by Catherine McAuley's parent, the Sisters of Mercy Health Corporation) is the second-largest nonprofit provider-based HMO in the country, according to a 1993 survey in Modern Healthcare magazine. Current statewide membership is 122,000, with over 90,000 of those members living in Washtenaw County. M-Care, the University of Michigan's HMO, also is growing rapidly, adding more than 5,000 new members in the past year for a mid-1993 total of 47,000 members.

New clinics and services become available all the time. This information is current as of June 1993. For descriptions of the various health-related support groups and mental health and chemical dependency counseling services in Ann Arbor, see the Community Services section, p. 113.

Emergency phone numbers and services are listed on p. 192.

Many of the clinics and health centers listed below accept a wide variety of insurance coverage. Others accept only one kind, or none. In some cases, major credit cards are accepted for payment. Call ahead to find out what insurance and payment options are accepted.

Emergency Services: 936-6666
Pediatric Emergency: 936-4230
General Information: 936-4000
Patient Information: 936-4000

How to get there: The UMMC is located between the U-M Central and North campuses. It is accessible from Observatory St., Fuller Rd., Glen Ave., or Maiden Lane. AATA bus routes #2 (Plymouth Rd.), #4 (Washtenaw Ave.), and #14 (Geddes Rd.-Stadium Blvd.) serve the UMMC.

Signs on westbound Washtenaw Ave. in the campus area direct drivers to the UMMC via Observatory St. and Zina Pitcher Place.

Fuller Rd. intersects East Medical Center Dr., which leads into the Medical Center from the north.

Description: The UMMC includes the U-M medical school, whose faculty serves as the hospitals' medical staff. The hospitals in turn provide educational and research facilities for students and faculty. UMMC researchers win more than $100 million in research grants each year. As a research institution, the UMMC can offer new and experimental treatments not available elsewhere. Patients at a research hospital may also find themselves being scrutinized and discussed by medical students and faculty.

The Medical Center is comprised of a network of specialty hospitals and the adult general hospital; the Taubman Center, housing over 120 specialty outpatient clinics; several other outpatient clinics; the Taubman Medical Library; and many research facilities. There are over 1,500 physicians, including residents and interns, and almost 2,000 nurses on the UMMC's medical staff. They handle nearly 850,000 patient visits each year. Numerous clinics affiliated with the UMMC are located throughout Ann Arbor and surrounding communities.

Parking and Shuttle Service: The Patient/Visitor Parking Deck is next to the Taubman Center and the main entrance to University Hospital. An adjacent deck, also open to visitors, serves the new Maternal and Child Health Center. Decks are staffed 24 hours a day. Cost is 60¢ for the first three hours, 25¢ for each of the next three hours, and $1 for each of the last two hours, with a maximum daily charge of $4.50. Parking decks are free to individuals with handicapped stickers. Valet parking is available at the main entrance from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. (ask at the desk). Cars may be retrieved anytime before 7 a.m. the next day. Cost for valet parking is $6 a day or fraction ($2.50 with handicapped sticker).

Free shuttle buses run between the many medical campus buildings. The North Ingalls Building-Mott/Women's shuttle runs every 20 minutes 6:45 a.m.-5:15 p.m. The Riverview-Kellogg Eye-Taubman-C.A.P.H. shuttle runs every 30 minutes 8 a.m.-8:30 p.m. The Main Entrance-V.A. Hospital shuttle runs approximately every 30 minutes 8:20 a.m.-5:15 p.m. The U-M bus system also stops at the Medical Center. All U-M buses running between North Campus and Central Campus make stops at the Kresge Medical Research Complex.

HMO's and PPO's

Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO's) and Preferred Provider Organizations (PPO's) provide an alternative to traditional health care insurance. A PPO offers health care from a network of physicians and hospitals. Members may seek care from outside the network, but must pay more if they do. HMO's provide more restrictive care: a patient is assigned to a primary physician who coordinates care and must authorize referrals to specialists. On behalf of employers, HMO's and PPO's contract with physicians, clinics, hospitals, and other health care providers to supply health care for their employees. In Michigan, a percentage of each HMO's membership must include individual subscribers; see listings below for information on non-group enrollment periods.

Care Choices, 2000 Hogback Rd., Suite 15. This subsidiary of the Sisters of Mercy Health Corporation, a member of Mercy Health Services, is affiliated locally with the Catherine McAuley Health System and with Chelsea, Saline, and McPherson hospitals. Other Michigan offices are in Lansing, Troy, Muskegon, and Grand Rapids. Statewide membership in mid-1993 was 122,000; membership in Washtenaw County was 90,000.

Open enrollment for individual subscribers takes place at this office the last two weeks in Nov.; call 971-7667 for information in early Oct. Businesses interested in information on Care Choices coverage for their employees can call 971-7667. People who are already Care Choices members, or who are currently being offered membership through their employers, can call (800) 852-9780 (Mon.-Fri. 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.) for information.

M-Care, 3601 Plymouth Rd. 747-8700. Sponsored by the U-M in conjunction with its Medical Center and satellite clinics, M-Care offers HMO and Point of Service (allowing visits to non-plan providers for a higher co-payment) coverage to businesses and individuals in Washtenaw, Jackson, Oakland, Livingston, Macomb, and Wayne counties. It is affiliated with 19 area hospitals. Membership in mid-1993 was 47,026.

Individuals can subscribe for coverage during annual month-long open enrollment periods. Enrollment information for businesses varies by number of employees. M-Care also offers an insurance plan for U-M employees. Individuals, university staff, or businesses interested in enrollment information can call 747-8700.

Preferred Choices, 2000 Hogback Rd., Suite 15. 971-7667. This PPO is administered by Mercy Alternative, Inc., and affiliated locally with the Catherine McAuley Health System and the Huron Valley Physicians Association. Coverage is currently offered only to businesses interested in self-funding that employ 100 or more people. Coverage extends west across southern Michigan from Oakland and Wayne counties to Muskegon and Ottawa counties. Coverage also includes Iowa. Membership in mid-1992, including Iowa, was 29,000; Washtenaw County membership was approximately 5,000.

Preferred Health Partners, 2000 Hogback Rd., Suite 9. 677-6790. Owned by the Allegiance Corporation, a company jointly owned by the Catherine McAuley Health System and the Huron Valley Physicians Association, this PPO currently offers coverage only to businesses and insurance carriers. Coverage includes all of Washtenaw and Livingston counties and parts of Oakland, western Wayne, and Jackson counties. Participating hospitals include CMHS, Chelsea, Saline, and McPherson. Membership in mid-1993 was approximately 5,000.

PETER YATES

The U-M's Taubman Center

Washtenaw County residents, and discounts are offered to seniors. Open to new patients. Dental insurance is accepted. Open Mon., Tues., & Wed. 8 a.m.-5:30 p.m.; Thurs. 8 a.m.-7 p.m.; Fri. 8 a.m.-1 p.m.

U-M School of Dentistry, 1101 North University Ave. at Fletcher St. The advantage of having dental work done at the dental school is that the fees are less than those you would find at a private practice. Treatment takes longer because it generally is performed by student dentists who are closely supervised by the faculty.

Anyone is eligible to become a patient at the dental school; a screening evaluation is necessary to determine if the dental school can meet your treatment needs. To make an appointment for a screening evaluation, or for general information, call 764-1516.

To make an appointment for teeth cleaning, patients who have already had a screening evaluation can call 764-1544.

The dental school also operates a walk-in emergency clinic that provides treatment to anyone in pain or distress. Patients are seen on the basis of urgency, Mon., Tues., Thurs., & Fri. 8-9:30 a.m. and 1-2:30 p.m. Patients arriving late in each session might not be seen—show up early. Call 763-3374 for information about emergency services.

Dental patients can usually park in the U-M Fletcher Street structure for 50¢ per hour or a maximum of $4.50 per day.

Washtenaw District Dental Society, 761-2445. Refers callers to dentists who practice in the Washtenaw County area, including specialists in pediatric dentistry, periodontics, oral surgery, and orthodontics. Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Sliding-scale fees. Open Mon. 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.; Tues., Wed., & Thurs. 8:30 a.m.-8 p.m.; Fri. 9 a.m.-4 p.m.; and Sat. 8 a.m.-1 p.m.

UNITED MEMORIAL GARDENS

PROVIDING EVERY KNOWN
BURIAL OPTION

WHEN MEMORY COMES TO LIFE

CEMETERIES ARE NOT ALWAYS A SAD PLACE TO VISIT. There is life, love, praise, peace, joy, and often laughter, especially on a conducted tour.

TOURS

May through November of each year, an average of 1000 people of all ages visit our grounds each week.

We give Artistic, Historic, Religious, and Humor in Stone tours. We provide books and literature at no cost and donations are not accepted.

UNITED MEMORIAL GARDENS

is one of three cemeteries in the United States which use their grounds for teaching, learning, and fun-type experiences.

The Old Testament Tabernacle

Location of the only full scale replica of the Old Testament Tabernacle. Free tours available to churches and seniors.

On the grounds of United Memorial Gardens is a full scale duplication of the Old Testament Tabernacle. The Lord spoke to Moses, "BUILD ME A TABERNACLE so I can dwell with my people." You can see this duplication on our grounds including the Outer Court, Brazen Alter, Laver, The Golden Lampstand, Table of Showbread, The Veil, The Holy of Holies, The Ark of the Covenant, The Mercy Seat, The Cherubim, The High Priest, AND MUCH, MUCH MORE.

MICHIGAN GARDEN

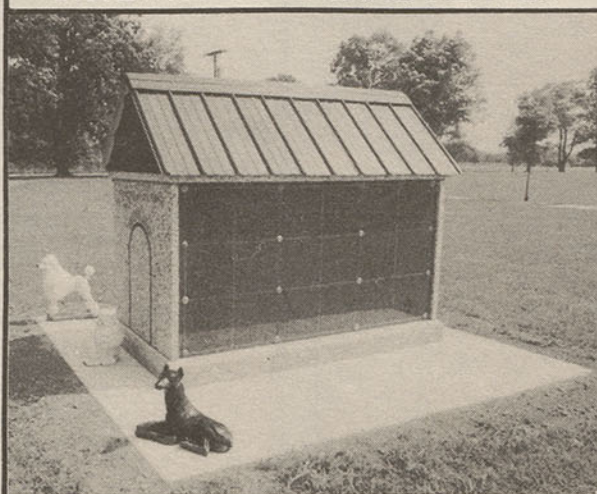

You can observe the Michigan Garden from the observation deck and even take a 1/4-mile walk around the state, outlined by engraved in granite pictures of the many wonders of Michigan.

As you tour the grounds, you will see ducks and swans, the Early American Chapel, the Praise Gazebo, and the award-winning sculpture of the face of Jesus in the Garden of Truth.

"It's like regular school except nobody flunks!"

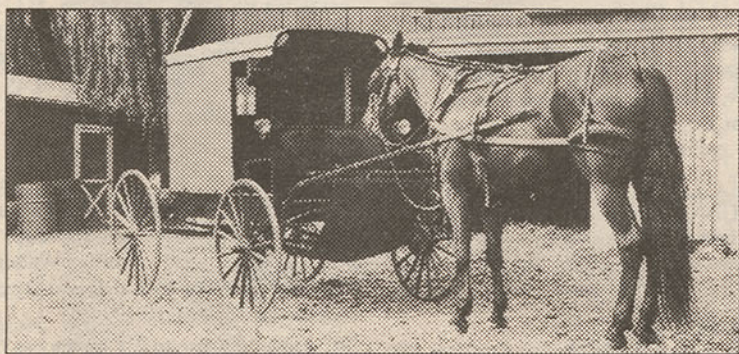

"Our parents want us to learn about our religion, but others too."
"They want us to know about all kinds of beliefs, 'cause Unitarian Universalists have all kinds of beliefs."
"And every religion has good things in it."
"In our Sunday School, we talk about what religion means, and what God means, and why people believe what they believe."
"And why animals can't talk!"
"They don't teach us all the answers. They teach us how to find the answers for ourselves."
"There's no tests or bad grades or anything. That's my kind of school!"

Ask Some Mennonites To Hitch Up A Horse And Buggy, And You'll Either Have A Confused Horse, Or A Very Strange Ride.

If you think all Mennonites look, think, and live the same, you better think again. Ask this poor horse what we mean. He'll tell you all Mennonites aren't alike. You know us as the Mennonites, but do you really know us? This Sunday take a face-to-face look at a church that may surprise you.

University of Michigan

With its more than 36,000 students, the University of Michigan is virtually a city unto itself, and a pervasive influence in Ann Arbor. Economically, the university is the engine that drives the city, providing roughly one job for every three adults in the city.

The University hosts a wide range of cultural events, featuring both local and visiting artists, musicians, writers, and public figures, and most are open to the public. (For details, see Entertainment, p. 139, and the monthly Observer Events calendar.) The U-M's many museums and libraries, also accessible to outsiders, further enrich the city's cultural life. (For a detailed list, see Museums & Libraries, p. 147.)

Hour-long student-led tours of Central Campus leave the Alumni Center, 200 Fletcher St., 763-9754, at least once each weekday and on Saturdays from September through April, except on university holidays. During peak recruiting season (Oct. 5-Nov. 23, 1993, and Nov. 29-Dec. 10, 1993) tours leave three times on weekdays and twice on Saturdays. Call for a tour schedule; reservations are not necessary. High school students can also attend one of the general information sessions offered year-round by undergraduate admissions counselors. Call the Office of Undergraduate Admissions, 1220 Student Activities Building, 764-7433, to reserve a space. Brochures for self-guided tours are available from the Campus Information Center on the first floor of the Michigan Union, 530 S. State Street.

ENROLLMENT

The U-M has seventeen schools and colleges, twelve of which offer undergraduate degree programs. For information or application materials, call the Office of Undergraduate Admissions, 1220 Student Activities Building, 764-7433. The application fee is $40. Prospective first-year and transfer students face extremely competitive admission standards. Last year, there were over 18,000 applicants for only 4,750 openings. First- and second-year undergraduate (lower division) tuition and fees for the 1993-1994 academic year (two terms) are $4,864 for Michigan residents and $15,130 for nonresidents. Third- and fourth-year (upper division) in-state students pay $5,344; out-of state students pay $16,202. Questions regarding residency should be addressed to the Residency Status Office, 764-1400.

To enroll for a graduate degree in the liberal arts, contact the Horace H. Rackham Graduate School, 915 E. Washington, 764-4415. Professional schools, such as business, engineering, law, and medicine, handle their own admissions, and should be contacted directly. School phone numbers are available through the university operator, 764-1817.

Call the Office of Undergraduate Admissions, 764-7433, for undergraduate nondegree course information and applications. Prospective visiting students in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts should request a "nondegree" application. Visiting undergraduate applicants to all other schools should request a "guest" application. Nondegree graduate students should contact the office of their individual program directly. Fees for nondegree students are steep. For Michigan residents taking lower division classes, tuition is $432 for the first credit hour and $175 for each additional credit hour elected; upper division tuition costs $20 more—$452 for the first hour, $195 thereafter. For nonresidents, lower division tuition is $860 for the first credit hour and $603 for each additional credit hour elected; upper division costs are $904 and $647. Classes are available at half-cost to seniors age 65 and older (call 764-6280). Those who want to visit a single class are welcome at large lectures without prior permission. Visits to smaller classes, however, require the instructor's permission.

Contact the individual school or college to receive a catalog of course offerings. Time schedules for the entire university are available at Checkpoint, 1419 Mason Hall, 764-6810.

EMPLOYMENT

With a total work force of 27,243 for fall 1993, the University of Michigan and the U-M Medical Center are together Ann Arbor's largest employer, providing roughly one job for every three working-age adults in the city. Openings are posted on four campus job boards and are updated at noon every Monday. Job boards are located at the employment offices at the LS&A Building, 500 S. State St., 764-6580; Administrative Services, 1009 Greene St., 764-7280; and the Medical Center, 300 N. Ingalls Bldg., 747-2375. A fourth job board is located at North Campus Commons, 2010 Bonisteel Blvd. Prospective employees may submit a general application at any of the three employment offices and then may bid for particular jobs. Kinko's Copies, in the Michigan Union, also maintains job postings, and it's usually open until midnight during fall and winter terms. Most job openings are also listed in the University Record (see Media, p. 149), and some are advertised in local newspapers. Job information is also available through the Merit Network to anyone with a computer and a modem. Just access Merit Network; when asked which host, type in "um-gopherblue." You'll then see Jobnet "job postings."

SPORTS

U-M sports draw enthusiastic crowds of students, townspeople, and visitors. Downtown and campus Ann Arbor look like ghost towns on football Saturdays: State Street is empty and there's no line at Zingerman's.

Football tickets are hard to come by. Every year the ticket office has to refund money to several hundred people who have requested season tickets. Those whose money is refunded are placed on a waiting list for the following season. Season tickets go on sale on April 1; for the 1993 season they cost $175 for the general public. Student season tickets are $80; faculty, staff, and students' spouses pay $140. Individual tickets are sometimes available through the ticket office, 1000 S. State St., 764-0247, because of late cancellations. The price is $25, plus $3 service charge per order. Scalpers in front of the Michigan Union and in the parking areas around the stadium may have offers too good for die-hard fans to refuse.

Basketball tickets are harder to find this year given the team's recent NCAA performance, and individual games (especially Big Ten contests) usually sell out. For 1993-1994, men's basketball season tickets cost between $170 and $220 for general patrons, $136 to $176 for faculty and staff, and $88 for students. Individual tickets range from $12 to $15. Also, scalpers on and around the Crisler Arena steps have tickets for sale before popular games. Tickets for the underappreciated women's basketball team are much easier to get, and a much better deal—sold for individual games, they cost $3.

Hockey games are relatively accessible (except against MSU). Season tickets cost from about $88 to $122. Faculty and staff pay $71 to $100, and students pay $70 for the season.

Individual games are $6 or $8.

Spring baseball is another underappreciated sport at U-M. Individual tickets are a mere $3 for Big Ten games (other games are free), the level of play is high, and Ray Fisher Stadium is a great place to watch a game. The women's softball team also plays at Fisher Stadium. Their Big Ten games are $3 each (others are free).

Concordia College

Preparing for lives of service

"Everyone knows everyone else here," says Jack Davidsen, who describes himself as the "entire public relations staff" of Concordia College.

Of the nearly 55,000 students enrolled in four-year liberal arts colleges in Washtenaw County, 99 percent are at the U-M or EMU. The rest—just 550 students—attend Concordia College, giving the Lutheran-sponsored school a student body one-third the size of Huron High School just a mile down the road.

Its pastoral setting along the Huron River and its striking, modish campus give Concordia surprising visibility for its size. But most Ann Arborites know no more about it than they can glean from a sidelong glance as they drive by.

Those who turn right at the stoplight at Geddes and Earhart enter a self-contained campus with the look of a New England prep school: small classrooms huddling protectively around the central chapel, clusters of dorms flanking the wooded grounds, and the student union housed in the stately, slate-roofed Earhart mansion. Across busy Geddes Road are playing fields and college-owned houses rented to many faculty members.

Dressed in a cotton sweater and jogging shoes, Davidsen exudes the same casual accessibility as the campus itself. He describes Concordia as a small Christian college which "tries to provide an ideal academic and spiritual community" for its students. "We're a liberal arts college, but we also appreciate moral and ethical values. We don't apologize for that. The mission of the college is to prepare young men and women for lives of service, both in the church and in the world," he says.

Concordia Ann Arbor, opened in 1963, is one of nine colleges in the country affiliated with the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church. The system was chartered at the end of the last century, mainly as a place to train teachers for the Lutheran school systems.

Not surprisingly, about 75 percent of the 550 full-time undergrads are Lutheran, as are many of the fifty-five faculty members. But Concordia has always been open to everyone, and only about a third of current students plan to teach in Lutheran schools. Daily chapel services are voluntary, and according to Frankenmuth senior Jodi Zehnder, "we're like most college kids—some of us go to church regularly, some don't go at all."

Although the school maintains separate dorms for men and women, the students on campus (unlike those at some other church-affiliated colleges) have no curfew, and there has never been a religious test for enrollment. "In fact, the only test we require," Jack Davidsen says, "is the ACT."

Concordia offers a continuing education program and a handful of non-degree courses, but the bulk of its undergrads pursue bachelor's degrees in the liberal arts. "We're sandwiched between two fine state institutions, and we don't try to compete with them in some ways," says Davidson. "But in others—in community, accessibility, quality of education—we compete very well."

Concordia is large enough to have an intercollegiate athletic program, although soccer, not football, is the autumn sport. Davidsen says the college would like to grow—but only a little. A graduate program is in the works, and so is the addition of a swimming pool for the athletic building. But no one at Concordia expects its air of friendly intimacy to disappear.

Jodi Zehnder transferred to Concordia from MSU, and she has no trouble putting her finger on the main difference between them. "People here know each other. You smile at someone and say 'Hi' when you pass them. If you did that at State, everyone would look at you like you were crazy."

As you read this, our community is fighting hunger...

In 1992, Food Gatherers rescued over 400,000 pounds of food that would otherwise have been thrown away and distributed it throughout Washtenaw County to agencies who provide food to people who need it.

Started in Ann Arbor in 1988, Food Gatherers is an independent, non-profit food rescue program supported solely by donations of food and money from businesses and individuals in this community. Its work is done primarily by trained volunteers.

Food Gatherers is truly our community's own solution to the problem of hunger where we live.

In June 1993, Food Gatherers moved into our new home at 1731 Dhu Varren Road in Ann Arbor Township, purchased with grants from Washtenaw County and the City of Ann Arbor. Food Gatherers shares the space with the Huron Harvest Food Bank, a program of Child & Family Services. This is a huge step toward improving, enlarging, and strengthening the food relief effort for all of Washtenaw County.

Parents & Friends of Lesbians and Gays

P.O. Box 7471 • Ann Arbor, MI 48107-7471 • 741-0659

In America today, there are millions of parents with lesbian daughters and gay sons who are victims of social, political, and economic oppression. Gay people in many communities are still obstructed by prejudice in their pursuit of happiness and in striving to live their lives with openness and dignity. But homosexuals are not the only victims of this oppression; it also touches their friends and families. We at Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays feel that the time is right to join together to appeal to the public conscience in order to achieve equal opportunities for our daughters and sons. We challenge society's status quo attitudes. We have a commitment to actively help our gay children by working for the same basic human rights, liberties, and opportunities for them that are enjoyed by others. As proud parents of gay people, new windows of understanding have been opened to us which have enriched our lives. We want to bring this understanding to the community.

The Huron River at Gallup Park

J. ADRIAN WYLIE

Ann Arbor offers a superb variety of recreational opportunities, and Ann Arborites take advantage of them in droves. Thousands of people take part in organized team sports—it's a rare Ann Arbor workplace that doesn't have a softball or basketball team—and hotly contested league games are rehearsed in the city's taverns late into the night. Ann Arbor's numerous off-street trails and lightly traveled neighborhood streets pulse with joggers throughout the year, and gently lit summer evenings find legions of cyclists gliding along the winding Huron River or through the flat, sparsely settled farmlands west of the city. The U-M's large, modern recreation buildings, along with various city structures and private health clubs, ensure the popularity of indoor sports. And Ann Arbor is blessed with an abundance of parkland, intelligently acquired and evenly distributed all over the city. See map, p. 123. For information on children's recreation and sports, see Children, p. 67.

The city's Department of Parks and Recreation is located on the fifth floor of City Hall (994-2780). The department's recreational facilities hotline is 769-9140. Scholarships for low-income Ann Arborites are available from Rec & Ed or the Department of Parks and Recreation which both provide free or reduced-price passes to city pools, rinks, and classes.

The Ann Arbor YMCA, located at 350 South Fifth Ave., is a nonprofit, community-based membership organization. There are different membership plans available for different age groups, with a discount for seniors. Individuals who would like to take a class through the YMCA do not have to be members, although members receive significant discounts, priority enrollment, and free day care during activities. The YMCA has lowered its class fees this year, but costs were not finalized as of July 1993. A new catalog and time schedule that provides class fees, times, and locations is available each September. Time schedule flyers are available prior to each new class session (six per year). Call the YMCA at 663-0536 to be put on the mailing list. Building hours are Mon.-Fri. 6:30 a.m.-10:30 p.m., Sat. 8 a.m.-9 p.m., and Sun. 11 a.m.-7 p.m. S

ICE HOCKEY

Organized ice hockey, sponsored by the Department of Parks and Recreation, with a season running from mid-October through mid-March, is coordinated through Veterans Park Ice Arena (761-7240). About 40 teams participate in the various leagues. Leagues include the Masters 30-and-over draft, competitive adult men's programs at three different skill levels, and the Adult Never-Ever Program, a unique spring and winter league that stresses noncompetitive play and is designed for those who have never played organized adult hockey. Costs average $175 per person. Individuals who want to play hockey should call Veterans Park Ice Arena to receive a waiver releasing their names to team managers who need extra players.

The Department of Parks and Recreation maintains an outdoor ice rink at Buhr Park (971-3228) that offers drop-in hockey for players age 15 and over on two afternoons per week from November through March. The fee is $2.75. Drop-in hockey is available for players over age 30 on Sunday mornings at Buhr Ice Rink (971-3228) and on Wednesday evenings at Veterans Ice Arena (761-7240), in October and November only. Players must be preregistered to participate. On a more informal basis, the Burns Park rink (1620 Wells St.) also offers drop-in play during the winter. Call the Department of Parks and Recreation (769-9140) for more information.

Soccer is second only to softball as the most popular participatory sport in Ann Arbor. The Ann Arbor Soccer Association's adult recreation program (994-KICK) offers open and women's leagues during the fall, spring, and summer. The AASA assembles teams of balanced ability levels. Each season lasts eight weeks; teams play two nights a week at Fuller Park. Twenty teams usually participate, each with twelve players. There is a $37 fee.

The AASA also facilitates an adult competitive soccer program. Top men's and women's teams travel to area and regional tournaments. Participants must enter on organized teams. Call the AASA for more information.

SOFTBALL

Softball draws more participants than any other program offered by Rec & Ed (994-2300). Approximately 390 teams play in the summer season (organizational meetings held in February; play begins early May). 110 teams play in the fall season (organizational meetings held in early July; play begins early September). Watch the sports section of the Ann Arbor News or contact Rec & Ed for specific dates of registration.

Teams are divided into leagues of varying skill levels for men's, women's, and co-rec slow-pitch softball. All teams must pay sponsor fees and individual player fees. Cost of sponsorship in the summer is $163 or $378, depending on whether teams play one or two nights per week. Individual fees for the summer are $29 ($38) or $45 ($54) respectively. For fall softball leagues, the sponsor fee is $163; the individual fee is $29 ($38). Fees for summer fast-pitch, the fall co-rec central league, and other municipal teams are slightly higher. Softball players who are not on a team can have Rec & Ed release their names and phone numbers to managers or can join one of its Players Without a Team teams.

Also, the Department of Parks and Recreation provides softball diamonds at Ann Arbor schools and parks for people who organize their own games. Approximately 60 diamonds are available to the public 9 a.m.-9 p.m. from early May through the end of August on a first-come, first-served basis. These and other diamonds may be reserved by calling Cathy Moore, (994-2300, ext. 241). Make reservations one or two weeks in advance. (The parks department provides bases on request if reservations are made two weeks in advance.) The first 90 minutes are free, and there is a $6 charge for each subsequent 90 minute period. An additional $35 maintenance fee will be charged to organizations that use the fields intensively.

VOLLEYBALL

Rec & Ed (994-2300) sponsors spring volleyball leagues (organizational meeting is January 19, 1994; play begins in March) and fall volleyball leagues (organizational meeting in late July; play begins early September) in which close to 300 teams participate. Leagues are available for open, men's, women's, and co-rec teams of varying skill levels. For the open leagues, the sponsor fee is currently $160 for the fall season and $124 for the spring season; the individual assessment is $38 ($45)/fall and $30 ($36)/spring. For men's AA or A leagues the fall sponsor fee is $125, and the individual assessment is $32 ($38). Spring men's AA or A sponsor fee is $98; individual fees are $26 ($31). For all other leagues the fall sponsor fee is $90 and the individual assessment is $27 ($32). The spring sponsor fee for all other divisions is $72; individual fees are $22 ($26).

Rec & Ed (994-2300) also has introduced sand volleyball outdoors during the summer. Teams of four people play at Forsythe or Slawson Middle School's new sand courts, one evening per week. Registration is June 2-4, 1994, and play begins later that month. The team sponsor fee is $50 and the individual assessment is $12 ($14). Call for rules and scheduling information.

The Department of Parks and Recreation also sponsors sand volleyball leagues at Fuller Park (761-2460) during the summer. Organized teams of women's doubles ($30), men's doubles ($30), and co-ed fours ($40) begin play in mid-June. Games are held one evening per week. Call for rules and scheduling information.

The Washtenaw County Recreation Center (971-6337) organizes volleyball leagues. Two-, four-, and six-person teams at all skill levels participate in a number of different leagues. Leagues are run year-round, except during the summer. Teams play one night a week at the County Recreation Center on Washtenaw. Players must form their own teams and enter them as early as possible; limited space is available. Players without teams can have their names released to managers needing more players by calling the Rec Center.

Volleyball courts are also available for pick-up games. Interested players can use U-M courts at the CCRB and NCRB if they have a user pass or are guests of a student. Sand courts are available for public use at Elbel Field (U-M), located at Division St. and Hill St., and outside the NCRB. Indoor volleyball space is also available at the County Recreation Center. In addition, the Ann Arbor YMCA often has pick-up games on Monday nights and Wednesday nights at noon for members.

The U-M Adult Lifestyle Program (763-1342) offers volleyball instruction for adults, students, and nonstudents. Call for more information.

Individual Sports

AEROBICS AND WEIGHT TRAINING

Community organizations offering aerobics and weight training classes include the Ann Arbor YMCA (663-0536), the Washtenaw County Recreation Center (971-6337), and Community Education and Recreation (994-2300). Classes are offered throughout the year for a fee. See the Yellow Pages for private fitness clubs.

U-M offers the Adult Lifestyle Program (764-1342), open to students and community members. Aerobics (nine different programs), toning, weight training, and a special "Fitness over Fifty" program are offered each semester. The CCRB, the NCRB, and the IM Building also have weight training and conditioning facilities open to students and user pass holders (see Major Facilities, above, for information).

BICYCLING

Besides being an enjoyable form of recreation and exercise, bicycling in Ann Arbor is a recognized alternative means of transportation. The city has a well-marked network of bike routes and bike paths and—since 1970—a bicycle program within the Transportation Department (994-2786). The office publishes a map of bike paths and recommended street routes in Ann Arbor and Washtenaw County (the city portion is summarized on the parks map, p. 123), and offers cycling courses, safety workshops, and maintenance clinics.

Bicycle registration is required of all city cyclists over age 12. It can be done through most local bike shops or at the city clerk's office on the second floor of City Hall. There's a one-time fee of $2.50.

The mostly flat lands surrounding Ann Arbor are ideal for amateur cycling. Especially popular is scenic, winding Huron River Drive, running northwest out of the city, which maintains a 35-miles-per-hour speed limit all the way to Dexter.

There are seven bike shops in Ann Arbor and three active cycling clubs. The Ann Arbor Bicycle Touring Society (AABTS) organizes group day trips around the city and the surrounding area for its 700-plus members. The AABTS also plans out-of-state tours and publishes a bimonthly ride calendar and a monthly newsletter, both free to members. Annual dues are $10 (individual) and $13 (family). For more information, write to the AABTS, P.O. Box 1585, AA 48106, or call the AABTS hotline at 994-0044.

The small Ann Arbor Velo Club, sponsored by the Cycle Cellar bike shop, focuses on racing and arranges numerous workouts and meets for its members. The $25 annual club membership includes a newsletter. For information, call or write Cycle Cellar, 220 Felch St., AA 48103, 769-1115; or Paul Alman, 642 Greenhills Dr., AA 48105, 761-1603.

The Potawatomi Mountain Biking Association is an organization dedicated to safe and responsible mountain biking in local recreation areas. This group also works to develop and maintain mountain biking trails. Weekend trips and community service activities are planned. For monthly meeting information, call Reinhold Cordella at (313) 231-3725.

Single and tandem bicycles are available for hourly rental at the Gallup Park Livery (3000 Fuller Rd., 662-9319). Cost for one hour is $4 (single) and $5 (tandem). The maximum charge is $7 (single) and $8 (tandem) for five hours of cycling. A $10 cash deposit ($15 after 5 p.m.) and a driver's license is necessary.

FISHING

On its journey through the city, the Huron River is repeatedly dammed to form serene ponds. The river contains a variety of fish: largemouth and smallmouth bass, rock bass, crappie, bluegill, carp, pike, catfish, and even some walleye and tiger muskellunge. Popular fishing spots include Barton Dam (off Huron River Dr. at Barton Pond), Gallup Park, and Argo Dam with its adjacent spillway complex. Those who want to get away from civilization may rent canoes from either the Argo Park or Gallup Park liveries and fish upstream. Live bait is available at both facilities. Gallup Park offers a free youth fishing pond.

All anglers are advised to consult the State Department of Natural Resources fishing regulations; a copy is available at the Gallup canoe livery. Anyone 16 or over must have a fishing license. Licenses cost $10.85 per year and are sold at Kmart and Dunham's Sports Outfitters.

Numerous small lakes, a short drive from Ann Arbor, offer good fishing. Call the Huron-Clinton Metroparks Authority at (800) 47-PARKS, or the Michigan Department of Natural Resources at (517) 373-1220 for maps and information.

ICE AND FIGURE SKATING

One of Ann Arbor's most popular recreational facilities is Veterans Park Ice Arena, the city's indoor skating rink. The city also runs an outdoor artificial rink at Buhr Park, and the public can use the U-M's Yost Ice Arena, giving ice skaters a wide choice of places to skate.

Natural ice rinks: When conditions permit, you can skate on the river at Gallup Park or on First Sister Lake at Dolph Park. In December the Parks Department (994-2780) offers a demonstration of how to build and maintain a backyard ice rink; assistance is also available for neighborhood groups wanting to construct a community rink.

Veterans Park Ice Arena, 2150 Jackson Rd. 761-7240. Open from mid-October through May. It has a regulation-size rink (85 feet by 200 feet), seating for 3,000 spectators, skate rental ($1.75), skate sharpening, coin-operated lockers, and a snack bar. Fees are $3.75 for adults and $3 for youths (17 and under) and seniors (60 and up). General skating on weekend afternoons and evenings. (Hours vary with hockey league play. Call for drop-in times.) U-M's indoor regulation-size rink provides skate rental ($1 for all students, $1.50 for all others), skate sharpening ($3), and lockers. The Ann Arbor Figure Skating Club, P.O. Box 1082, AA 48106. 475-0417, 662-1037. A registered chapter of the United States Figure Skating Association, the club offers fall, winter, and spring lessons for skaters of all skill levels in freestyle, ice dancing, figures, and precision at Vets and Yost ice arenas. The first year of membership is $20 plus a required $10 USFSA fee. The subsequent yearly fee is $40. Instructional and rental costs vary with skill level and season. In addition to its regular programs, the AAFSC holds a popular winter show, "Melody on Ice," at Veterans Park Ice Arena.

IN-LINE SKATING

In-line skating (also called rollerblading) has taken Ann Arbor and the rest of the country by storm. Skating is not prohibited or restricted anywhere in town, unlike skateboarding. For those that do not own their own blades or who would like to try out this exercise option, three downtown sport shops rent in-line skates: Ann Arbor Cyclery, 1224 Packard, 761-2749; Eric's Action Sportswear, 419 E. Liberty St., 663-6771; and Running Fit, 200 E. Washington St., 769-5016.

Sand volleyball at Forsythe Middle School (Team Sports)

MARTIAL ARTS

Martial arts classes are offered by the Ann Arbor YMCA (663-0536) year-round in Tai Chi, Judo, Aikido, Karate, and Choi Kwang Do. The YMCA also offers a Karate club. All classes are held in a special Dojo area. Rec & Ed (994-2300) provides instruction in Aikido and Tai Chi throughout the year. The U-M Adult Lifestyle Program (764-1342) sponsors beginning and advanced Tae Kwon Do classes for students and nonstudents at the CCRB. See the Yellow Pages for private martial arts studios.

RACQUETBALL

Racquetball/handball courts are available at several public facilities. The Ann Arbor YMCA (663-0536) has two courts open to members and their guests. The U-M's CCRB (936-0627) has 13 courts; the IM Building (763-3562) has 12 courts; and the NCRB (764-2117) has five courts. Hours vary with the semester, and courts are in high demand. Reservations are usually necessary except on challenge or open courts, which change players on the hour. Most private health clubs have racquetball courts for member use. (See the Yellow Pages.)

RUNNING/JOGGING/WALKING

The city's plentiful parkland, including long stretches of scenic river-front pathway, yields miles of off-road running. Many Ann Arborites don't even have to leave their own neighborhoods to find prime jogging space—the city abounds in residential nooks and crannies secluded from traffic, including a surprising number of zealously preserved dirt roads.

Ann Arbor offers a variety of running clubs, stores, and events for both advanced and beginning runners. The Ann Arbor Track Club (AATC) has become the major cohesive force for Ann Arbor's running population. AATC events include a weekly Speed Workout on Tuesday evenings throughout the year, held at the U-M outdoor track in good weather and at the U-M Track and Tennis Building during the winter. During the summer, the AATC holds many All-Comers meets for runners of all ages and skills. For meet schedules and locations, call the AATC hotline at 663-9740 or pick up flyers at downtown running shops. The AATC also has a very active youth program and offers training sessions during the fall, spring, and summer.

AATC membership also entitles runners to a yearly picnic, seasonal meetings, a newsletter, and discounts at area running events and sports stores. Membership costs $10 a year

($15 for a family). For more information, write to the Ann Arbor Track Club, Box 7551, AA 48107, or call the hotline, 663-9740.

The Ann Arbor Hash House Harriers is a group that emphasizes creatively planned running events that runners of all abilities can enjoy. Harriers model their runs after the British fox-and-rabbit hunts, with a "hare" marking the trail (usually in white or colored flour) that the other members ("hounds") follow. "Turtle checks" are waiting points, often supplied with beer and refreshments, which allow slower runners to catch up. For information, call the Hash Hotline, 485-3298.

For more information on area running events and organizations, contact the Ann Arbor Track Club or one of Ann Arbor's two complete running centers: Tortoise and Hare, 213 E. Liberty St., 769-9510; or Running Fit, 200 E. Washington St., 769-5016.

For indoor running in the winter or during inclement weather, the U-M has indoor tracks at the CCRB (763-3084) and the NCRB (763-4560). The County Recreation Center (971-6337) also has a two-lane indoor track.

The Washtenaw Walkers Club invites people of all ages and fitness levels to join its free walks for fun and health. Meet at County Farm Park, Washtenaw Ave. at Platt Rd. (summers and good weather) or at the adjoining Washtenaw County Recreation Center (winters and bad weather). Walks Mon. & Wed. 6:30-7:30 p.m. A separate downtown walking group also meets Mon.-Fri. at noon. Call Washtenaw County Parks and Recreation Commission, 971-6337 (Mon.-Fri. 9:30 a.m.-5 p.m.) for more information. Also, the Wednesday Walkers meet at 9:30 a.m. at the Gallup Park Canoe Livery (3000 Fuller Rd.) for a brisk morning walk every Wednesday, rain or shine. Call 769-5016 for more information.

COURTESY U-M SCHOOL OF MUSIC

A cornucopia of free concerts

Like most people who have lived here for years, I knew that Ann Arbor is a center of musical activity. But it was only after my retirement last fall that I realized what a wealth of free concerts is available through the U-M School of Music. Between October 1992 and March 1993, I attended over forty concerts, every one of them free. And they were just a sampling of the 350 to 400 performances the school offers every year, ranging from fugues to arias, tubas to harpsichords, Vivaldi to Vaughan Williams.

Concerts are held almost every day during the school year, and many days offer four or five choices. Many student recitals are presented in partial fulfillment of degree requirements, and there are also faculty and guest recitals. All the musicians are superior artists, and some are world renowned—I was treated to an organ concert at Hill Auditorium by Andrzej Chorosinski, professor of organ at Warsaw's Chopin Academy of Music, as he began a concert tour of the United States.

How to choose among so many possibilities? My interest in pipe organs soon led me to other things: a flute performance in conjunction with one organ concert prompted me to take in a flute concert, while the soprano who sang at another was so good that I followed her to two more performances.

The university's annual conference on organ music provided four days of concerts, morning to night. (The 1993 conference will be October 10-13.) The Midwestern Conference on School Vocal and Instrumental Music (January 21-22, 1994) also offers free entertainment, including the popular annual Collage Concert featuring U-M bands, choirs, and orchestras. A delightful Mozart Birthday celebration in January 1992 came complete with notes on musical selections, biographical information on Mozart, and free birthday cake and punch for all attending. So many people had to be turned away from the 1993 concert that the 1994 Mozart Birthday Celebration, on January 27, will be moved from Rackham to Hill Auditorium.

To keep abreast of concerts, check the monthly Observer Calendar. The Ann Arbor News also carries daily schedules in the entertainment section and in the weekly Spotlight magazine. From September through April, the School of Music publishes its own bi-monthly calendar of events. For a free subscription, write to the Circulation Office, 2221 Moore Building, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor 48109. Or call the school's twenty-four-hour calendar update line, 763-4726, for a recorded announcement of upcoming events.

761-9700. The Ann Arbor Theater offers a mix of first-run Hollywood releases and more esoteric fare. Its conversion from one screen to two left it with one theater that is incredibly long and narrow with a very small screen. Plan on sitting near the front of this one. The second theater is unexceptional. Projection, sound, and upkeep are good at both theaters. Two extra pluses here: the popcorn is the best in town, and, in true Ann Arbor fashion, muffins and hot cocoa are for sale along with the usual high-priced boxed sweets. There is a small parking lot next to the south side of the theater and two public parking structures on Fourth Avenue within a few minutes' walk. Admission: adults, $5.75; students with valid ID, $4 at all times; children and seniors, $3.50. Weekdays before 6 p.m. and Tuesday all day and evening (except from Memorial Day to Labor Day and Thanksgiving to New Year's), $3.50.

The Movies (United Artists), Briarwood Mall, 769-8780. The Movies sports seven screens, in theaters ranging from 200 to 350 seats. The set-up is typical of the modern shopping mall cinema complex: an efficient, low-overhead operation that reduces film-going to the bare essentials. Programming is strictly mainstream, with the playbill often a clone of the Movies' chief competitor, Showcase Cinemas. Projection is fine, upkeep is adequate, and the popcorn is slightly better than average. Ample parking is available. Admission: adults, $5.75 ($3.75 Mon.-Sat. before 6 p.m. and Sun. before 1:30 p.m.); students, $4.50; children and seniors, $3.75.

Showcase Cinemas, 4100 Carpenter Rd. (Pittsfield Township), 973-8380. This 14-screen megaplex, which opened in 1988, is big in every way, beginning with its awe-inspiring parking lot. Efficient crowd control seems to have been the main concern of the interior designers, and large crowds and the ushers' herding mentality sometimes make weekend movie-going unpleasant. Buying tickets and refreshments, despite the long lines, is relatively simple. The theaters themselves are the nicest in town, with large, comfortable seats, good viewing angles, and wide aisles. Programming stays squarely in the middle of the road. The sound system and projection are generally excellent. Technically the best, but popcorn is well below average. Admission: adults, $6 ($4 weekdays before 6 p.m.); children and seniors, $4.

State Theater, 233 S. State St. 994-4024. Like the Ann Arbor, the State Theater's two small screens used to be one big one, and the theater used to be in the space that's now Urban Outfitters. Most movie-goers forgive the severely cramped seating at an angle to the screens because the shows (mainly just off first runs) cost only $2.50. Along with the newer Hollywood films, the State shows classic and art films and features an animation festival several times a year. Concessions, like the seats, are the least expensive in town. Candy costs what it does at the grocery, and popcorn starts at $1 a box (for the prepackaged unbuttered sort). The projector in one of the theaters is old and stops on occasion, but the manager's response time is improving. Parking is available in two nearby public parking structures, on Maynard and E. Washington streets. Admission: $2.50.

NONPROFIT GROUPS

Ann Arbor Film Cooperative, U-M Michigan League, 911 North University Ave. 769-7787. This group was formed in the late 1960's, originally to support the work of local filmmakers with income from screenings. Gradually, production efforts dwindled, and the organization evolved into an exhibition-only group. Current offerings span the spectrum of quality art and commercial films. Admission: $3; double feature, $4.

Ann Arbor Silent Film Society, Sheraton University Inn, 3200 Boardwalk Dr. 761-8286.

The Ann Arbor Silent Film Society shows classic early movies monthly at the Sheraton University Inn.

Monthly showings of classic films include a feature and usually a couple of shorts. Admission: $3.

Cinema Guild, Michigan League, 911 North University Ave. 994-0027. The oldest of all student film groups at the U-M, Cinema Guild has been showing since 1950. Cinema Guild began by showing Chaplin, Eisenstein, Welles, and other film pioneers. Today, films are chosen by group members with an emphasis on foreign cinema. Under financial pressure from rival groups and the VCR revolution, Cinema Guild has lately begun showing more contemporary films, but the orientation toward quality remains. Admission: $3; double feature, $4.

Hill Street Cinema, Hillel Foundation, 1429 Hill St. 769-0500. An off-campus film group housed at the local center for Jewish students, the Hill Street Cinema screens a wide variety of films in the Irwin Green Auditorium, which seats 500 and is air-conditioned. Programming ranges from classics to contemporary films, with a particular specialty in Israeli films and films of interest to the Jewish community. The group also sponsors guest speakers. Admission: $3-$4.

M-Flicks, University Activities Center, Michigan Union, 763-1107. The only film group with university funding, M-Flicks, originally called Mediatics, was founded within the University Activities Center in the mid-1970's. In the past, selections have tended toward commercial fare, but recently programming has become more interesting and original. Admission: $3; double feature, $4.

Michigan Theater Foundation, 603 E. Liberty St. (at Maynard). 668-8480. The Michigan Theater, an ornate relic of a much grander era of film exhibition, is indisputably the city's most handsome theater. Programming is eclectic, with a varied schedule of foreign and domestic films forming the core of screen offerings. The theater will often run first-run films for a week or so with a second revival film that changes daily. Occasional silent films are accompanied by the thundering harmonies of the theater's restored organ. The reinstallation of 70mm projectors allows big screen masterpieces like "West Side Story" and "Spartacus" to be shown in their full glory. Every March, the theater is the location of the Ann Arbor Film Festival, a week-long binge of selected avant-garde and student films from across the country and around the world. Parking is available in two nearby public parking structures, on Maynard and E. Washington streets. Admission: adults, $5; students and seniors, $4; members, $3.

U-M Center for Japanese Studies, 108 Lane Hall, 204 S. State St. 764-6307. For the past several years, Japanese Studies has sponsored a series of classic Japanese films by noted directors such as Akira Kurosawa and Kon Ichikawa. This year's films, to be shown in the U-M's Lorch Hall Auditorium Fridays at 7 p.m., include a fall series of Classical Japanese films, and a winter series to be announced. Admission is free.

U-M Chinese Students' Association, 104 Lane Hall, 204 S. State St. 764-6308. This student group offers a film series whose popularity has grown by leaps and bounds. Features range from People's Republic realist tales to hyper-kinetic Hong Kong sock-'em-ups. Films are shown intermittent Saturdays at the U-M's Lorch Hall auditorium; call for fall schedule. Admission is free.

U-M Program in Film & Video Studies, 2512 Frieze Building (105 S. State St.). 764-0147. The Film Classics Series, featuring great movies from the silent era to modern times, runs during the school year on Sunday evenings in the U-M's Natural Sciences Auditorium. Admission to this series is free.

CAMPUS AUDITORIUMS

Angell Hall Auditorium A, concourse between Angell, Haven, and Mason halls. Enter the glassed-in "fishbowl" directly west of the U-M Grad Library front steps, and proceed straight ahead into the concourse. Approximately 385 theater-type seats. Decent-sized screen, fair to good sound, slightly shallow seating angle. Equipped to show 35mm films and Cinemascope. Parking in the U-M's structure on Thayer St.

Lorch Hall, Tappan St. at Monroe St. Entering Lorch Hall from Tappan, you will find the auditorium at the left rear corner of the building. The longest operating film auditorium on campus, Lorch Hall has about 350 seats, good acoustics, and a long, narrow rectangular shape that's good for viewing films. A recent renovation, which included air-conditioning and cushioned seats, makes this the best place on campus for film viewing. Unfortunately, the Economics Department, headquartered in Lorch Hall, discourages public film showings, so most films shown here require the co-sponsorship of a U-M department. Parking: U-M structures at Hill St. near Tappan St. or at Church St. near South University Ave.

MLB 3 & 4, Modern Languages Building, corner of Thayer and Washington streets. MLB 3 seats about 500 people in theater-type seats and is air-conditioned. It has a smallish screen, and the side seats in front are at a sharp angle to it. Sound is fair at best. MLB 4 seats 350 people in theater-type seats and is also air-conditioned. This smaller auditorium has about the same sound and relative screen size. Parking: The U-M Thayer St. structure is across the street.

Natural Sciences Building Auditorium, Natural Sciences Building, 830 North University Ave. at Thayer St. The auditorium is at the back of the building, on the Diag. This steeply sloped lecture hall offers a good view from all seats. The picture and sound in this theater are excellent, after an extensive 1991 renovation, and the newly padded seats are much better than the old wooden ones. Unfortunately, the leg room remains minimal. Parking: U-M Thayer St. structure.

Museums and Libraries

Museums

Many of the museums listed here often have special temporary exhibits. For information about these and about exhibits at local galleries, see the "Galleries and Museums" section in the monthly Observer Calendar. For locations of major museums and libraries, see the map on p. 145.

The U-M library system is one of the largest research collections in the country and probably one of the most accessible (see U-M map, p. 107, for locations). Although use of the library system is free to all, borrowing privileges, when available at all, come at a high price for outsiders.

This is the largest facility in the system, primarily meant for research—specifically in the humanities and social sciences. The public catalog and the MRLYN computer system on the second floor list all publications in the university library system. The Grad's stacks are open for browsing. Hours: Mon.-Thurs. 8 a.m.-midnight; Fri. 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; Sat. 8 a.m.-6 p.m.; Sun. 1 p.m.-midnight (Sept.-April); Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-10 p.m.; Sat. 10 a.m.-6 p.m.; Sun. 2-10 p.m. (May-Aug.).

Hours: Mon.-Fri. 10 a.m.-noon & 1-5 p.m.; Sat. 10 a.m.-noon. The Map Room, (764-0407) on the eighth floor of the Graduate Library, has windows on four sides. It affords a great panoramic view of Ann Arbor.

People who are not affiliated with the U-M who wish to check out books from the Graduate Library must purchase a user's pass for $250/year; less expensive group rates are available. The pass is also good at the U-M's many departmental libraries.

Undergraduate Library, 919 South University Ave. 764-7490. The Undergraduate Library (known also as the UGLi) offers books and periodicals, which are listed on the MRLYN computer system. These materials are geared toward the curricular needs of undergraduate students. There is also a small collection of leisure reading materials. The building is currently undergoing expansion that will be finished by the spring of 1995. The expansion is to accommodate a central campus science library on the 3rd and 4th floors of the building including these libraries: Chemistry (764-7337), Mathematics (764-7266), Natural Science/Natural Resources (764-1494), and Physics-Astronomy (764-3442). The library is, however, open for the full range of services. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-midnight; Sat. 10 a.m.-midnight; Sun. noon-midnight. During the fall and winter semesters, the library is open daily 8 a.m.-5 a.m. from the third week of each semester to the end of the semester.

The U-M Film and Video Library, on the first floor of the UGLi. 764-5360. This library has a collection of over 6,000 titles on 16mm film and VHS cassettes, including items like foreign features and educational programs that aren't available elsewhere. Anyone can view films at the library (free), but 24-hour notice is recommended. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-noon & 1-5 p.m.

PETER VATES

Reference librarian Ruth Haldeman

During a recent two-hour shift at the Ann Arbor Public Library reference desk, Ruth Haldeman fielded twenty questions, ranging from "Which university is located in Fort Collins, Colorado?" (Colorado State University) to "How can I get permission to quote Maya Angelou's poem from the inauguration?" (She provided both Angelou's address and her publisher's.) Other queries required tracking down clippings about the Ecology Center; finding a list of colleges offering MBA programs; and unearthing information about home schooling.

Haldeman came through for nineteen of the twenty information seekers (and for a few others who just wanted to find a bathroom or a photocopier). The one miss was a question the caller described as a "Jeopardy" question: What's the name of a vessel that comes from the Greek word meaning "to carry air?" Haldeman looked fruitlessly through the Oxford English Dictionary and other reference books before regretfully admitting failure. "If you have to say 'I can't answer that,'" she says, "it can be devastating."

The head reference librarian, Haldeman is also the veteran among the seven full-time reference librarians. She started in what she calls the "pre-photocopy" days, in 1967.

Favoring moderately funky, loose-fitting skirts and tops, Haldeman is unfailingly solicitous and helpful—committed heart and soul, say her fellow librarians, to public library service. Passion tinges her mild voice when she talks about people paying to dial 900 numbers to get information that they could find for nothing at the library. "That's an underlying philosophy of the public librarian—people should feel they can come in and get this information without paying for it."

The reference librarians' most visible task is helping people find the specific fact they need among the library's riches. Haldeman says this part of the job satisfies her need both to help people and to do "intellectual detective work." In addition, the reference librarians also order the downtown library's adult nonfiction books, videos, CD's, and tapes, and maintain extensive clipping and brochure files.

In her childhood days in Mount Pleasant, Ruth Haldeman didn't hang out at the public library. The librarian at the time was a stern, formidable woman who intimidated her. But as an undergraduate at Central Michigan University (where she majored in Spanish and considered going into the Peace Corps), she was inspired by two librarians who were "tenacious at seeking out facts and had a very strong commitment to public service." She went on to get her library science degree at U-M and then, after short stints elsewhere, came to the Ann Arbor Public Library and never left.

The computer revolution, the downtown library's expansion and renovation, and the growth of the library's collection of non-print materials have dramatically transformed the library during Haldeman's career. Most recently, in June 1993, the library's card catalog went on computer, something Haldeman says makes older patrons wistful but pleases the on-line generation.

Another change, she says, has been the dramatic growth in the number of telephone inquiries. When she started, "answering questions on the telephone was a rarity," she recalls. Now, 50 to 70 percent of all queries (a total of 35,000 last year) are made by phone. To accommodate them all, the librarians limit callers to no more than three short items per call. And they don't do homework.

While the technology has evolved, the questions people ask have changed little in Haldeman's almost three decades. The most common queries are requests for addresses and phone numbers of businesses and organizations. Consumer questions ("How can I find out if my car has been recalled?") are the next largest category. Job seekers, students, business owners, and trivia lovers are also frequent users. Haldeman especially enjoys the calls from kids, who come up with challenges like, "Where do butterflies go when it rains?"

Although extremely well organized when it comes to finding answers, Haldeman claims she has the "worst memory" of the reference crew, several of whom play a mean game of "Trivial Pursuit." In her free time, she does another kind of "intellectual detective work." She checks out and reads lots of murder mysteries—and someday wants to write one. —Eve Silberman

The Moveable Feast

The Moveable Feast, located in a red brick Victorian mansion, captivates you even before you enter. It's even more homelike and inviting inside. The entry is small but seldom crowded: reservations are scheduled at short intervals, and on their arrival, guests are greeted quickly and led to cloth-covered, candlelit tables. There are often open tables—the Moveable Feast will not seat more people than the staff can adequately accommodate with its superior, unhurried service.

Something about the quiet house makes you want to whisper to the other guests at your table. But the clientele is broader than the formal, romantic setting would suggest. Along with power couples are business groups, young people, and even families with kids sharing elegant feasts. This is not a place, however, for a quick bite. Dinners are a visual and taste experience that can last two or three hours.

I have always found the Moveable Feast's hors d'oeuvres to be extraordinary. On my last visit, each one was a succulent piece of art, complete with edible flower accents from the Feast's garden. The smoked salmon platter was my favorite—fresh pink salmon with two goat cheese wedges (one mild, the other biting) and two little scoops of caviar (black American sturgeon and red salmon), all served with slices of one of the Feast's own sourdough baguettes. As we passed the plate around our table, sampling bites, we joked that the Moveable Feast took its name, not from Hemingway, but from its guests' tendency to pass their dishes around to share.

We also tried the gingered carrot timbale with basil sauce and the grilled barbecue shrimp with corn relish and polenta. Both were extravagantly presented. I liked the light and airy timbale, but the shrimp seemed ordinary—everyday barbecue sauce was not something I had expected to find on the Feast's menu. Those looking for the friendly and familiar will be pleasantly surprised, however, and will probably also enjoy the tangy corn relish served on the side.

After such appetizers, the salads were a letdown. Ours were five types of greens. But the bitter radicchio overtook both the other greens and the balsamic vinaigrette. The only out of the ordinary touch was the crunchy topping of baked sesame seeds.

On to the main course. The chef here has a unique relationship with Michigan morels. These large, wrinkled wild mushrooms frequently show up in a dish or two on the Feast's menu, and those dishes always end up as favorites. This time, it was grilled breast of duckling in a morel sauce. The lightly sweet sauce flowed around strips of peppery grilled duck. We also ordered the breast of chicken Stonehenge, expecting, mistakenly, that it would be a plain, serviceable standby. We should have known better. The chicken, surrounded by an intriguing marsala, garlic, and shiitake mushroom sauce, was anything but usual. Even the redskin potato was creatively carved into the shape of a large mushroom.

A grilled swordfish steak was slightly dry, but the pineapple and pine nut salsa served over it was a delicious complement. And the crisp, sesame-cornmeal-crusted catfish was out of this world. The intense mushroom citrus sauce hits the nose long before the tastebuds and completely masks any hint of oiliness. I'm not usually a fan of catfish or of strong lemony sauces, but this was a perfect combination that should appeal even to those who rarely order fish.

The desserts match the splendor of the appetizers. A creme caramel, its coated custard accompanied by an orange-almond tuile, was wonderful. But our favorite was the lemon mousse. The cardamom cookie shell surrounding the rich mousse was paper-thin, even better than the authentic Italian pizzelli it's based on.

Gratzi

Gratzi, the vibrant Italian restaurant housed in what was once the Orpheum theater, is both sophisticated and lighthearted. The lively chatter bouncing off the balcony to the tables down below, the waiter introducing you to the splendor of Ed's bread dipped in seasoned olive oil, and that whimsical Bacchanalian mural all combine to create an enchanting mood. To me, it's as important a part of a meal at Gratzi as the food.

As for the food, Gratzi's menu is pleasantly varied without being overwhelming. I started my recent meal with grilled polenta and the simplest version of the pizzas—margherita. With these two dishes I discovered one of the truths of Gratzi—simple is not always better. The polenta was one of the highlights of the evening. The buttery polenta circles found their perfect companion in a light, creamy sauce of roasted red peppers infused with Italian sausage and fontina cheese. Each bite was a delight. Perhaps the pizza, topped with tomato, basil, and mozzarella suffered by comparison. I'm a firm believer that the crust makes the pizza, but Gratzi's version was too insubstantial a foundation for even the most modest of toppings.

I've never been disappointed with a pasta dish at Gratzi, but on my last visit I fell in love with pollo alla bandiera. The bow tie pasta with smoked chicken, broccoli, and tomatoes in a cream sauce was rich and nutty, but not heavy. My companions that evening tried the grilled pork tenderloin and the roasted leg of lamb. The tenderloin proved surprisingly tough, but the onion, apple, and cherry relish and fresh-cut orzo were so good, I'd still be tempted to try the dish again. Garlicky through and through, the lamb received high praise from one of my fellow diners. The sauce served on top was good but somewhat mysterious—the lengthy menu description never mentions a sauce, and this dish was swimming in it. Which leads me to another Gratzi truth: when it comes with sauce, the chef is very generous.

CHRISTINE ROSS-CAVANA

For dessert, sweet cherry gelato remained true to the fruit—not too sweet and wonderfully creamy. Gratzi serves its tiramisu in a fluted glass with a single crispy chocolate-dipped ladyfinger perched on top. Although the treatment is a bit unusual, it's as good as any I've had. And the cioccolato ultimato caters almost as much to berry aficionados as chocolate lovers. It's a flourless, dense chocolate cake swimming in a raspberry sauce. It makes a delightful combination, and, who knows, maybe someone else at the table will help finish all that extra sauce. (See note above.)

The service is worth a mention because I've had both extremes at Gratzi. My in-laws are still talking about the waitress who navigated us through a few menu pitfalls to recommend the clear winner of the evening, a sauteed chicken breast in marsala sauce. But on a recent visit, our waiter seemed a bit distracted, so much so that we had to flag him down to request the ground pepper treatment for our salad. Usually they're grinding away before you can say insalate.

Gratzi's popularity means that almost any night of the week you can expect to wait for a table. Outdoor seating is available in the summertime. But even on a beautiful summer evening when outdoor seating was immediately available, most diners chose the half-hour wait to sit inside. They seemed to agree with me that the atmosphere is an essential part of the complete Gratzi experience.

The Burro

Given its close proximity to Angell Hall and the Diag, I thought that the Burro would become a student hangout when it opened in early 1993 in a tiny space on William near State. I was only partially correct. Students eat there all the time—but so does everyone else. Despite the small quarters, I've seen professors, families with small children, graduate students, suited business people, construction workers, and lots of others who like good, healthy south of the border cooking eating at the Burro.

Quarters are tight, especially when winter cuts the Burro's seating capacity by half. Five tables and a four-person counter provide the only seating inside the restaurant, and I've never been in there when there were fewer than five customers. Luckily, it's the kind of place where you can pull up a stool next to a stranger and eat a foot-long burrito without feeling uncomfortable. And you never have to wait long for your food, even during the noon rush when the line runs out the front door onto William.

Inside, the walls are full of art from the Ann Arbor Artists' Coop. It's all for sale, except for the trademark burro. Everything else—the stools, the tables, and the floor—is made of spotless, beautifully polished wood. Music aimed at the discriminating college student (Cowboy Junkies to Sting) is piped into the tiny joint at medium to high volume, but it's not loud enough to stifle a normal conversation. It's even possible to read and dine without being bothered, except during the lunch and dinner rush—and is there ever a rush, especially between noon and one o'clock. At these peak times, the music gets louder, keeping the Burro's beat, as the staff moves to get the food served fast and hot.

Burro fare is strictly Mexican-inspired fast food, but it's far removed from the greasy, limp offerings of Taco Bell. The food here is fresh, flavorful, and prepared in the cleanest of open kitchens. A peek behind the counter at the pile of diced tomatoes, looking red-der and juicer than anything from the backyard garden, is proof that these are perfectionists.

With a streamlined menu built around a few basic ingredients, the Burro is able to keep service quick and prices low. The centerpiece of the menu is the Burro burrito, a twelve-inch monster, and its smaller counterpart, the baby burrito. Both come with lettuce, tomatoes, and vegetarian pinto beans unless you request their deletion. Beyond that, you can choose to add beef, chicken, more beans, or vegetables (red peppers, zucchini, and onions), or replace the pintos with black beans. You always get a small dish of cilantro-tinged salsa, of whatever heat intensity you request, and a choice of three "extras" from a list of nine. There's ample variety here, since a spiced chicken burrito with pinto beans, tomatoes, black olives, cheddar cheese, and jalapenos tastes very different from a black bean, brown rice, sour cream, and red pepper one. Portions are extremely generous, and for $5.15—which includes the price of a large drink—you won't be hungry again until well past your next mealtime.

Although the burrito is what keeps Burro-lovers coming back, devotees of cheese will appreciate the crispy, chewy quesadillas. The Burro's quesadillas are tortillas grilled with cheese and a choice of hot jalapenos or mild green chilies. Salsa and sour cream come with the large stack of triangles. For an extra buck, you can add chicken, beef, or pinto beans. Onions aren't automatically included, but ask and you'll get them, too. The tacos are also excellent, although it takes at least two to make more than a snack.

The starters and side dishes offer a few departures from the Burro's mainstream philosophy. The restaurant recently changed from a rather dry and boring Mexican rice to moist brown rice. The sign above the register says it's healthier, too. The Burro asks for customers' opinions, and changes like this (and the introduction of black beans) suggest that the young owners are listening. The soups of the day are also interesting, including a potato garlic soup that's been on the menu since day one. Avocado lovers will find the guacamole top-grade, and at under $1, it's dirt cheap.

Given the Burro's atmospheric similarity to the nearby campus cafes, one omission from the menu is surprising: there's no coffee. But the truth is, nobody misses it. The Burro stays focused on what it does best—healthy, consistent Mexican eats.

Shopping

Although Ann Arbor has more than its share of intellectual anti-materialists, its shopping is big-city quality. It's a shopping draw for all of southeast Michigan and northwest Ohio. Downtown, campus, and Kerrytown area stores cater to exuberant students, their happy visiting parents, and campus and corporate visitors, as well as local residents. Add in the out-on-the-town high spirits of customers drawn by the area's many good restaurants (see p. 155), and you have the makings of an unusually festive shopping atmosphere.

Shopping information is organized into three sections:

Campus and Downtown Major Malls Streets and Boulevards

Campus and Downtown

Main Street and its east-west allies, Liberty and Washington streets, feature a mix of the old and the new. Long-established family-owned shops dovetail with contemporary boutiques, galleries, and a dense concentration of restaurants and cafes. Unlike most small downtowns, this one still has a department store, Kline's, which has frequent deep-discount sales. Traditional stores such as Schlenker Hardware and very contemporary ones such as Falling Water, which specializes in gifts and books of spiritual interest, share an emphasis on personal service.

Unlike the malls, downtown flourishes with one-of-a-kind sales. That makes it a natural for art galleries of all kinds. A few that reflect the wide range that's available: the two Selo-Shevel stores, one with artifacts from all over the world, one with sophisticated contemporary jewelry and glass; the Barclay Gallery, specializing in antiquities; the Lotus Gallery for ancient and contemporary Oriental art; Art Deco Design, with pieces from the 1920's through the 1950's; the Ann Arbor Art Association shop, which carries work of local artists; and Gallery Von Glahn, selling mainstream southwestern art.

Many of the traditional stores still keep traditional hours. But as the restaurant crowd has increasingly made downtown a spot for evening strolls, many stores, such as the Terra Bella nature store, Occasionally gifts, with lots of made-in-Michigan products, and Afterwords bookstore are staying open till 11 p.m., and even later.

The Kerrytown area, on North Fourth and Fifth avenues and Detroit Street, increasingly rivals downtown as a destination dining and shopping area. The two are close enough that as each grows bigger they may eventually touch.

The Kerrytown complex was in the vanguard of the trend toward conversion of old urban warehouse and factory buildings into prime retail spaces. It first sprang up in the late 1960's to take advantage of crowds drawn to the Ann Arbor Farmers' Market next door. The Farmers' Market is open Saturdays until 3 p.m. year-round, and on Wednesdays from May through December; handmade arts and crafts are available at the Ann Arbor Artisan Market, open Sundays 11 a.m.-4 p.m. May through December.

In the 1980's, the matching old houses on Braun Court near Kerrytown were converted to restaurants, and the former White Swan Laundry (built in 1853 as Moses Rogers's agricultural implement works) was renovated and expanded as Market Place. It now houses offices, the vibrant Sweet Lorraine's restaurant, and shops including the mirthful De Boer Gallery.

Kerrytown itself now consists of three buildings housing over 30 shops and restaura-

From fancy fabrics to single-malt Scotches

"I moved here from Philadelphia and before that I lived in New York," says a tiny woman with a melodic voice. "I do a lot of fabric buying and I'm always on the lookout for a fabric store. I saw this place and just walked in. They have wonderful fabrics."

The place is Whole Cloth, in the increasingly quirky 200 block of South Fourth Avenue. Judging by the new customer's enthusiasm, it looks as if the store has just found another of the "fabriholics," as co-owner Millie Ostrowsky calls them, who make up a significant chunk of her and fellow owner Anne Moray's trade.

Like seabirds that nest at a specific altitude on the face of a rocky cliff, Ann Arbor's specialty retailers claim some highly particular niches. For Whole Cloth, it's fine fabrics and 1,000 varieties of buttons. For the Caravan shop, it's foreign-language greeting cards. For In Flight sports, it's alternative sports equipment. Castle Remedies' pride is its stock of homeopathic supplies, while the Big Ten Party Store and A&L Wine Shoppe No. 3 offer, among other things, self-medication of a different sort—single-malt Scotches and specialty liqueurs.

These are places where enthusiasms are taken seriously—where a request for an obscure item is taken as a challenge, not a nuisance. Customers for niche retailers come from miles around, and they may be sent a considerable distance if they're disappointed.

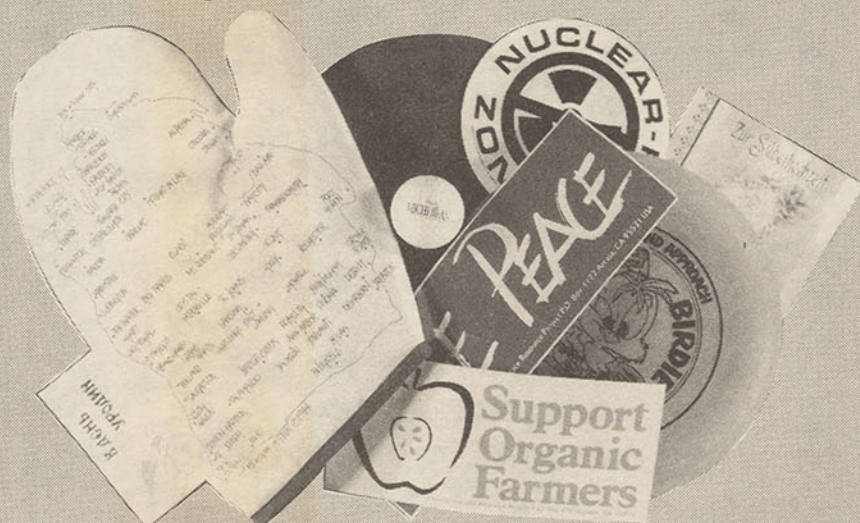

"If I don't have it, I send my customers to Big Ten, plain and simple," says A&L buyer and co-owner Maher Jaboro, who stocks about forty single-malt Scotches.

"If we're out of a liquor or don't carry it, A&L is the shop I recommend," says Big Ten manager Mark Gibson, whose store has more than fifty. "Or Chicago."

Holly Klave had a walk-in customer from Chicago at Castle Remedies, which occupies a breezy corner on the second floor of the Parkway Center on South Huron Parkway. Thousands of bottles of tinctures, ointments, gels, and food supplements line the walls, along with holistic room fresheners, insect repellents, and cosmetics, and plenty of books.

Actually, the customer from Chicago was primarily there to visit one of the healing practitioners in the building. But an out-of-state sale is hardly unusual. "We have UPS here every day," says Klave. "We ship to people in New York,

Specialty Stores

Washington, Oregon, Texas, Canada."

Merchandise at Caravan, in the Nickels Arcade, not only comes from all over the world, it goes there, too—especially the greeting cards. The store stocks them in at least sixteen different languages, including Serbian, Portuguese, and Ukrainian. The store has been carrying them "at least twenty-eight years," says manager Ruth Richards. "We sell 'em all the time. The surprising thing is, they're cheaper than any other cards—forty cents to a dollar, where all the others start at a dollar." Not surprisingly, there are almost as many cards in German as in all the other tongues combined, evidence of the ethnic heritage that is still Ann Arbor's most pervasive.

Richards wishes she could get her hands on more cards in Chinese and Japanese. Bill Cusamano, assistant manager of Webster's Books at Traver Village, would like more Asian magazines. "Foreign publications are something we do well with," he explains. "If we could get more Asian publications, we would do well with them." Webster's doesn't do badly for periodicals as it is, stocking close to 3,000 titles. Its sister store, Community Newscenter on East Liberty, carries the same variety plus "adult" magazines, which push its magazine roster past the 3,000 mark.

"Periodicals are our main strength," says assistant manager Liz Nunemacher. "Around here, magazines are very special-interest: we don't just have music magazines, we have keyboard and bass and drum magazines." Following a renovation in the summer of 1993, Community News expanded its selection of out-of-town newspapers, formerly the almost exclusive province of the venerable Blue Front, at State and Packard. But the Blue Front got out of the business just as CNC got in.

"The demand for out-of-town newspapers has dropped," says Jim McKenzie, the Blue Front's manager. "Who wants a paper that's two weeks old and costs four ninety-nine?"

Presumably, CNC will find out. "Basically, newspapers are just a loss leader," Nunemacher admits. "You can't return a newspaper after you've sent it cross-country, and you only make twenty-five cents on it. But we got calls for them every week, so I don't think the interest has died."

Pat Timmons gets calls, too, from people who know he'll be able to fill them in on the next Frisbee Golf or Hacky Sack competition. Timmons himself is a top-flight Frisbee player whose Team USA has traveled to competitions as far away as Japan and Norway. His store, In Flight, stocks seventy-two kinds of flying discs (Frisbee is a trademark, of course).

Other uncommon specialties that lure customers upstairs to In Flight, on South State, are a collection of 600 bumper stickers ("We haven't found anybody in the U.S. that can compete," Timmons says), Jerry Garcia neckwear ("The only other outlet that carries them is Bloomingdale's, and they charge thirty-five dollars to our twenty-three"), incense, and an array of products—hats, shirts, shorts, wallets, fanny packs—made from hemp.

Like many Ann Arbor stores, Occasionally gifts on South Main draws some customers from out of town. But the store, which bills itself as "Your Michigan Products Store," has also found a niche selling to the outward bound.

"Ann Arbor being the kind of town it is, there are both a lot of tourists and a lot of people going elsewhere," says assistant manager Jerry Drummond. "Exchange students, for example, like to take presents to their host families." They can pick their gifts from a selection that ranges from Mackinac Island fudge and mitten-shaped cutting boards to Gwen Frostic stationery.

Some niche stores grew out of an owner's personal passion. Others began in a conscious quest for an unusual niche. But what really counts is not the owner's motive but the public's response. Behind their diverse merchandise, that's the one thing that Ann Arbor's niche retailers have in common: they've all survived the stern review of the marketplace. "We're five years old this month," Whole Cloth's Ostrowsky said recently. "That's the real test."

rants selling everything from foodstuffs to candles, clothing, and creative toys. The center's largest stores are Kitchen Port and Workbench furniture. The food shops on the ground level, including a bakery, wine shop, and meat, produce, and seafood markets, attract residents and out-of-town traffic daily. Hours vary, but closing hours are generally 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and 5 p.m. on weekends.

The streets in the vicinity of Kerrytown are dotted with galleries, small stores, and restaurants. A flourishing food co-op, a community bakery, and New Age and used bookstores are some highlights along Fourth Avenue. North of Kerrytown on Detroit Street, droves of people shop for authentic New York deli food and dine at Zingerman's, an Ann Arbor institution that recently opened an adjoining coffee house. Treasure Mart, a beloved consignment resale shop, stocks everything from battered pots and pans to first-rate antique furnishings. Campus Area—State Street. The area just northwest of the main U-M campus, (including South State Street, Maynard, and nearby cross streets), attracts throngs of shoppers, especially on sunny weekend afternoons. Students and nonstudents mingle in these shops, where the U-M campus meets downtown Ann Arbor.

Bear is to forests. Borders Book Shop, a national chain owned since 1992 by Kmart, originated on State Street. As this City Guide goes to press, Borders is about to begin renovating the old Jacobson's department store at Liberty and Maynard into a huge store and corporate headquarters. The continued presence of longtime manager Joe Gable should mean that this shop will keep its cherished local flavor and academic depth even as it becomes a national model and training ground. Even Borders's offerings look frivolous compared to the soothingly intellectual Shaman Drum, in an upstairs spot on State Street. Kaleidoscope, farther north on State, is the most unusual of a whole batch of fascinating used-book shops—it also sells collectibles from about the 1930's on.

The State Street area also has an astonishing collection of well-stocked recorded music outlets. The biggest is Schoolkids' Records, home of the Schoolkids' Records label, which specializes in popular music, especially rock and folk. In the summer of 1993, it was busily at work on a major expansion that would unite its space with that of its genteel sister up the block, SKR Classical.

First-rate men's and women's clothing shops are dotted throughout this area. Van Boven's has both a high-quality traditional menswear store and a shoe store for both men and women. The elegant Renaissance clothing store on Maynard has the distinction of advertising in the New York Times. The Van Buren shop on State carries luxurious women's lingerie, while right across the street, the trendy warehouse-like interior of Urban Outfitters announces an upscale-downscale shopping experience for the under-30 crowd.

The seventy-five-year-old Nickels Arcade is a block-long (State Street to Maynard) glass-roofed assortment of shops and offices with a European air. The Edwards family owns three distinctive shops in the arcade: Maison Edwards, selling travel goods, including hard-to-find items like plug converters; the aromatic Maison Edwards tobacconist; and the Caravan Shop, with imported gifts and well-chosen stuffed animals. A children's bookstore, a cooperative pottery shop, a florist, an antique store, and a baseball card shop add to the intimate arcade mix.

The South U strip abuts an area inhabited most entirely by students, and the retail mix reflects that customer base. Ulrich's, a long-established textbook, computer, and school supplies outlet, anchors the corner of South University and East University. Ann Arbor's first shopping mall is announced by a giant red "A" that towers over the entrance to the parking lot and also marks Ann Arbor's busiest border (see p. 11). The mall houses mostly outlets of discount chains such as Marshall's, Service Merchandise, Burlington Coat Factory, Toys R Us, and F&M Distributors; smaller shops offer everything from kitchen supplies to bulk foods. There are more than forty stores, plus a food court. The mall is open Monday through Saturday 10 a.m.-9 p.m. and Sunday noon-6 p.m.

more to Mozart than Mantovani.) Anchor stores Sears, J. C. Penney, and Hudson's will be joined in late 1993 by a classy Jacobson's store newly moved from the campus area to the more sedate mall. The mall also incorporates seven movie theaters, collectively named The Movies at Briarwood (information: 769-8780). Mall hours are Monday through Saturday 10 a.m.-9 p.m. and Sunday noon-6 p.m.

Strips and Boulevards

Ann Arbor-Saline Road at I-94, which a decade ago passed through old farm fields on the city's south side, is now densely lined with new offices, apartments, and shopping centers. Clustered around I-94's exits are several shopping plazas: Cranbrook Center (Ann Arbor-Saline Road and Eisenhower Parkway) is home to Mervyn's, Office Depot, F&M Distributors, Ethan Allen furniture, Redwood & Ross, Pier 1 Imports, and several smaller discount clothing stores. Across Eisenhower, the Colonnade shopping center combines service and retail, including such regional chains as Newton Furniture, Reid Lighting, and Heslop's china. Heading south across I-94, there's a new Meijer superstore with a vast produce section and a jammed parking lot. Across from Meijer, the Oak Valley shopping center is home to Target, Office Max, MC Sporting Goods, and many smaller stores and restaurants.

Carpenter Road from Washtenaw Avenue to Ellsworth Road is a diverse strip anchored by the older of the two local Meijer stores. Scattered along Carpenter Road north of Meijer, along with motels and chain restaurants, are a Minnesota Fabrics, a Nevada Bob's Golf outlet, the Future Sound high-end car stereo shop, and a Best Products catalog showroom. South of Meijer on Carpenter, Pace Membership Warehouse offers discount opportunities on food and housewares, while Showcase Cinemas offers fourteen theaters and a huge refreshment stand (see Entertainment, p. 141).

Jackson Road, bisecting fast-growing Scio Township from east to west, has sprouted a series of small strips in recent years. They cater mostly to the needs of residents of the new subdivisions leapfrogging their way across the township. There are stores selling home furnishings, hardware, and many other domestic items. At Parkland Center, the union of the Elite Bakery with Uptown Coney Island makes for a special hangout. Even before the strips' arrival, Jackson Road was home to many auto dealerships and garages, and the number is growing with the development of an auto mall on the former site of Mercywood Hospital.

Plymouth Road is the main artery of Ann Arbor's north side. Near US-23, the Plymouth-Green shopping center is anchored by Arbor Drugs and a new Busch's Valu Land supermarket. Several gift shops and restaurants round out this plaza. Further west, two neighborhood shopping centers occupy opposite corners at the intersection of Plymouth and Nixon roads. At Plymouth Mall, adventurous shoppers make discoveries at the Merchant of Vino food store, which specializes in wine and beer but draws customers with unusual gourmet items plus first-rate produce from the Produce Station. The mall also has a fine Chinese restaurant and a fascinating Chinese grocery store as well as the north side's only hardware store, Carpenter Brothers. Across Nixon Road, Traver Village has a Kroger that is traditional in every way except its enormous size. Most women agree that Ann Arbor is short on one kind of shop—women's wear. With its attentive service and sensible high-quality selection, Letty's at Traver Village draws a loyal following.

The Courtyard Shops off Plymouth at Murfin Drive are a mix of charming stores, including a quilting-fabrics shop, a set of gift shops with a country flavor, women's clothing stores, and a health-food store. It's also becoming a lovely home-style eating destination, especially for breakfast and lunch. Exotic Bakeries, with Near Eastern food and extraordinary pastries, has been at the plaza since 1991. It has been joined by a Subway, Ben's, Cafe Marie, and Ayse's Courtyard Cafe.

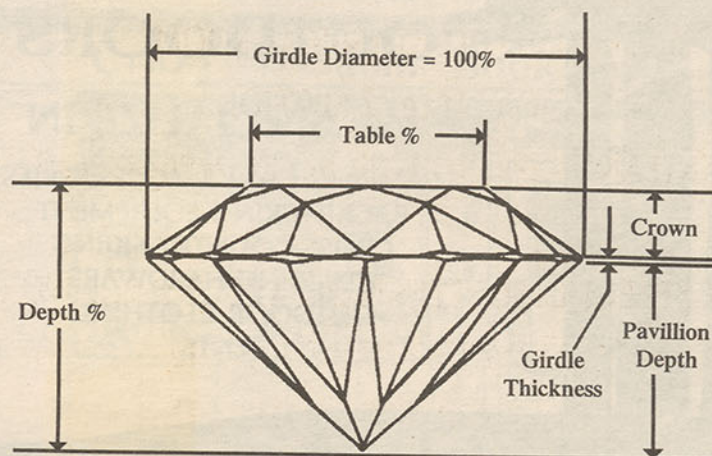

Washtenaw Avenue from Platt Road to US-23 is home to two regional appliance chains, ABC Warehouse and Fretter's, as well as Frank's Nursery, auto dealerships, locally owned and chain restaurants and motels, and stores selling hardware, floor coverings, and other domestic merchandise. A recent addition is Simon's Farm Market, just west of Huron Parkway. As we went to press, a Barnes & Noble book superstore was under construction on the corner next door. Arborland Mall is at the top of the hill, just before US-23.

West Stadium Boulevard between Pauline Boulevard and Jackson Road is the west side counterpart of Washtenaw, displaying the mix typical of classic American arterial retailing. Businesses concerned with cars and food, including locally owned and chain restaurants, dominate a scene spotted with sporting goods, appliance, photo, clothing, and hardware stores. Westgate and Maple Village shopping centers, located at opposite sides of the intersection of Jackson and Maple roads (Stadium merges into Maple just south of Jackson), once marked the western edge of urban Ann Arbor. Kmart, Dunham's Sporting Goods, and Frank's Nursery account for most of Maple Village's business, while clothing discounters T. J. Maxx, the Little Professor Book Company, and another of the city's Kroger supermarkets anchor the Westgate strip. Just north of Liberty is Arbor Farms, from all of us at Schoolkids!

Welcome to Ann Arbor

We are proud to be celebrating our seventeenth year in Ann Arbor. Schoolkids' has been rated one of the top twenty music stores in the country. Here's a sample of what folks are saying about us:

"Schoolkids' has been my favorite store in America for almost 16 years. Schoolkids' is a genuine 'record store' in the classic sense; its atmosphere and its regard for the music it sells is clearly unique in the business. It does not underestimate the taste or intelligence of its customers. It carries the widest spectrum of music—all sorts of music—that I've ever seen anywhere. Its employees are helpful, knowledgeable fans of music rather than mere button pushers. Aside from the obvious hits, the store goes out of its way to carry titles that, however obscure, are genuinely GOOD—a trait which customers respect and appreciate. It also has the best selection of deleted records and CD's I've ever seen."

a complete natural foods supermarket.

Finally, Ann Arbor's neighborhood shopping strips run the gamut from funky to fashionable. The assortment of stores at the foot of Broadway boasts two thrift shops and a Hallmark store that has comically bedecked the towers of an old church with a party hat and a giant gift box. The intersection of Packard and Platt roads, once the center of an independent town, East Ann Arbor, features unpretentious shops in older buildings. Woodland Plaza, at Ann Arbor-Saline Road and Main Street, has a Busch's Valu Land with the selection of a supermarket, but the atmosphere of a small-town store. There's an assortment of chains, including Egghead Software, and a number of locally owned and franchised shops, including a health food store, the Great Harvest Bread Company, which hands out delicious samples of hot buttered bread, and Wild Birds Unlimited, selling thoughtfully selected bird food, feeders, and houses.

Lamp Post Plaza, where East Stadium and Washtenaw merge, has a new Whole Foods grocery store, one in a growing Texas-based chain that concentrates on current ecological concerns. The plaza also houses Charlotte's Corner, a children's bookstore with its own play area, a florist, a floor-coverings store, a jeweler, an optician, a women's used-clothing shop, and several service businesses. The Georgetown Mall on Packard is a neighborhood strip with a Kroger, a drugstore, a gift shop, and several service stores. The Maple-Miller shopping center, though small, has an upbeat set of stores including a friendly butcher shop and Lagniappe gourmet foods and catering.

BRING YOUR GROUP HOME... AND WE'LL DO ALL THE WORK!

The Ann Arbor Area Convention and Visitors Bureau is looking for local people just like you who belong to an association, church, social group, society (just about any kind of group really!), and would like to bring that group to Ann Arbor. A simple phone call will put us to work doing what we do best...locating an ideal site to meet the needs of your group, and then providing the necessary resources and support to ensure that it's both successful and memorable (which will make you look terrific in front of all your peers)!

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU...

Well, for starters, it's an opportunity for you to show pride in—and contribute to—the community in which you live, work and play. Last year, the conventions and meetings industry brought some 3.5 million new dollars into Washtenaw County.

We'll recognize you at our annual dinner next year as a local hero.

You'll be written up in the local press.

We'll feature you in our monthly newsletter that goes to hundreds of local businesses and members of the Bureau.

We'll even get you dinner for two at one of Ann Arbor's many fine restaurants.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR US...

More work! But that's what we're looking for...the opportunity to bring your group into the Ann Arbor/Washtenaw County area for its best meeting experience ever!

What do you have to do? Just one of three easy things...just mail, phone or FAX us the name of the person in your organization we should be talking to about meeting in Ann Arbor, along with their address and telephone number, and we'll do the rest. It's that easy!

We know exactly what to do with your meeting or convention in need of a home...so bring your group home and we'll take very good care of it. Hope to hear from you soon!

Many hotels and motels offer special rate packages and allow children to stay free with a parent. Ask for information when making reservations.
